YOUNG MEN'S BUSINESS CLUB
BABSON COLLEGE

DINNER MEETING
Student Council

Chief among the student governing bodies is the Student Council composed of the four officers elected yearly by the student body, one elected representative from each class section and the editors of the two student publications who serve as associate members.

The Student Council was confronted with an entirely new situation as the school year opened last Fall. The creeping paralysis which had been causing minor budgetary troubles in the past was intensified by a decrease in the enrollment due to the world situation. The balancing of the budget was accomplished through skillful manipulations, necessary cancellations, close cooperation between the Council and its subsidiary organizations, and above all the cooperation of the student body as a whole.

Although the quantity of all-student social activities was of necessity less, the quality remained at least the same if not better. The successes of the Winter Carnival and the Spring Weekend were due to the efforts of the entire Social Committee; Bob Grout and Jock McLean, Co-Chairmen, and Harold Wanfried and Rudy Hasak, Committeemen. The efforts of these men helped to more firmly establish these still young Babson traditions.

The Council as a whole continued to grow and mature. Its actions in several important cases added to the responsibility of the group and pointed to the day when it would truly be a student governing body. These examples of self-discipline demonstrated by the Council added to the stature of the organization and helped to emphasize the very dominant role played by it in student life.

The newest distinct function of the Council was the creation of the Babson Institute Charities Chest. Under this plan students were requested to make a general contribution to a charities pool. From this total fund allocations were made to the various charities. Chief among the recipients of this money was the Children's Convalescent Home. This contribution was in the form of the annual Christmas party which was replete with Santa, presents, carolers, and all the trimmings of the season.

The accomplishments of the Council in the performance of its duties were the product of its own efforts plus the very necessary cooperation of the student body. If the full interest and cooperation of the students is given to future Councils they will be able to build successfully on the foundation which has been laid for them. Enormous strides have been made toward the goal of full responsibility. With the full knowledge of a job well done, the members of this year's Council pass back the torch of responsibility to their successors. May they carry it to the summit of leadership and authority which has long been sought.
CABINET

ATHLETIC COUNCIL

Seated: W. S. Schulz, F. W. Turner, R. A. Scavet.
Standing: O. S. Page, W. J. Haskell.
Behaving like a chameleon during its first year on campus, Babson’s service honorary was originally known as the Blue Key Colony, then Green Key, and finally as Blue Key National Service Honorary.

The first fraternity to achieve national recognition following Babson’s accreditation, Blue Key became affiliated with its national organization on March 15. Representing the national at the impressive formal chapter initiation ceremony was the National Blue Key President, Dean Ralph Noyes.

Primarily, the Blue Key Fraternity gives the students an opportunity to honor outstanding students who have proved themselves sufficiently competent in the fields of activities, sports, and studies. These men have been "willing to accept responsibility, willing to cooperate with faculty, willing to work with their fellow-students, and capable of putting across ideas and ideals and creating the right attitudes which will do much to improve student life and welfare." The group supplements rather than duplicates the activities of the present organizations on campus.

Principal activities for the year included work with the Student Council and the Cabinet in the development of plans for an honor system at the Institute; acting as official host at Institute functions; and the preparation of reports on various campus projects for consideration by the students and administration.

Responsible for the introduction of the fraternity at Babson were charter members Sidney A. Adair, G. Ronald Arnbruster, Gordon S. Dawson, Thomas F. Gagner, and Albert J. Kurtz. Fraternity officers include Thomas R. Stewart, President; Carl A. Probes, Vice-President; Robert E. Hallman, Recording Secretary and Treasurer; and Roy A. Seaver, Corresponding Secretary. Initial Juniors elected to membership were Richard C. Belew, Howard W. Harding, Jr., and Rudolph M. Hasak. Dr. E. B. Hinckley served as faculty advisor.

As if to commemorate its Fifth Anniversary as the campus “scandal” sheet, the Beaver this year at last came of age! Reader interest was at an all-time high with circulation and demand shattering all previous records. Only one unhappy note marked the entire year: that was when the paper was forced to grieve its public with the headline “BEAVER SLASHES OWN THROAT” as a result of an extremely large anticipated deficit in the Student Council budget. Thus, a biweekly Beaver (as of January 12) helped to pay for the student activities.

For its birthday edition, students found that the Beaver had suddenly become a red-tinted PALAV-DLA, “The Voice Of The People, For The People, By The Leader.” Responsible for this take-off on a certain notorious Russian poop-sheet was the Supreme Chairman, Douglas S. Burns, and his Assistant, Richard C. Belew. Special features for the year included the Second Annual “Hall of Fame,” guest editorial by local ministers, a special Founders’ Day Edition, and an especially lively sports page edited by Roy A. Seaver and his staff. Other features included a social column by Douglas S. Burns and a man-about-town column by Harry W. Jeffries. Managing Editors for the year included Richard C. Belew, William L. Reineman, and Robert O. Wagner. G. Dean Scott, Jr., served as Business Manager and Chester C. Carmer, Jr., was the able Advertising Manager. Faculty Advisor was Mr. Philip E. Goodhue.

Life, quality, color, and complete coverage were all phrases used to describe this year’s Beaver. One of the most important strides taken this year found the editorial columns followed faithfully every week in an attempt to see what line the next crusade would follow. In fact, it is reported that no one escaped the “axe.” A special cup was given to the Outstanding Writer at the Annual Banquet and a specially bound edition of the first five years of the paper was presented to the school at graduation.

The fact that the Beaver talked, was talked about, and created talk and action was the achievement of its capable editor, Sidney A. Adair.
Delta Sigma Pi

For the past two years, Alpha Chi Epsilon has functioned as a local business fraternity to advance the relationships between students of business and the commercial world, to enhance and develop a feeling of fellowship among the student body, and to qualify for and obtain a charter from the International Fraternity of Delta Sigma Pi.

Immediately after the accreditation of Babson Institute in December, 1950, which qualified Alpha Chi Epsilon for national affiliation, a formal petition for a charter was submitted to the Grand Council of Delta Sigma Pi. The petition was readily approved and on April 21, 1951, the fraternity was formally installed as the Gamma Upsilon Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi.

Delta Sigma Pi was founded at New York University in 1907 to foster the study of business in universities; to encourage scholarship, social activity and the association of students for their mutual advancement by research and practice; to promote closer affiliation between the commercial world and students of commerce; and to further a high standard of commercial ethics and culture, and the civic and commercial welfare of the community. It now has over 25,000 members and more than 75 active chapters in recognized colleges of commerce and business administration.

Among the many functions of Delta Sigma Pi is the publication of a senior directory with the pictures and qualifications of its graduating members, distributed annually to more than 1,000 leading business firms throughout the country. Closely tied in with the directory is the alumni placing service which effectively assists alumni in securing better positions and business opportunities.

Of interest to all undergraduates is the Delta Sigma Pi Scholarship Key Award. Since 1912 these gold key awards have been made annually at each university where an undergraduate chapter is maintained to that senior who upon graduation ranks highest in scholarship for the entire course. The awards will be made each year at Babson Institute starting with the Class of 1952.

Officers of Delta Sigma Pi this year are Richard E. Lucas, President; Rudolph M. Hasak, First Vice-President; Raymond C. Newton, Jr., Second Vice-President; Murray Waldron, Recording Secretary; Richard C. Belew, Corresponding Secretary; James A. Bryan, Jr., Treasurer; and James B. Malloy, Membership Officer.

Alpha Delta Sigma

Collegiate advertising at its best is coming to Boston—Mr. Bertrand Canfield, the national president of Alpha Delta Sigma, and the members of the George W. Coleman Chapter of the national advertising fraternity have the distinction of playing the roles of host at this year’s national fraternal convention. Colleges and universities from all over the country will be represented by their respective delegates. The men in attendance will not only have an opportunity to visit our attractive campus, but they will also enjoy a weekend at Cape Cod.

During the past year, the fraternity enjoyed a series of successful meetings at which several outstanding personalities from the field of distribution were the guest speakers. In addition to the student members joining this year, two professional members were admitted—Mr. Paul C. Stange of the Institute, and Mr. Raymond Strawbridge, President of the Advertising Club of Boston.

For the third year, the Coleman chapter, in cooperation with the Boston Advertising Club, has sponsored the Robert Murray Memorial contest. Awards were given at a special banquet to those students of the various New England colleges who submitted the best advertising projects.

A successful project that was initiated this year was the printing and distribution of Christmas Cards for the benefit of the Children’s Convalescent Home in Babson Park. This program was inaugurated as a pledge project and was an overwhelming success as a result of the conscientious efforts of the respective pledges.

The officers of the Coleman Chapter for 1931 include Albert J. Kurtz, President; Robert C. Hallman, Vice-President; Chester C. Carmer, Recording Secretary; Thomas R. Stewart, Corresponding Secretary; and John D. Gaynor, Treasurer.
Babson Institute this year greeted its newest fraternity when Lambda Kappa Pi formally took the place of the now defunct Finance Club. On February 13, 1951, the members of the Finance Club, founded in 1948, and one of the oldest clubs on campus, voted unanimously to form this new local fraternity. It was only after long and exhaustive deliberation by its members, its officers, a special committee, and its faculty advisor that this step was taken.

The original idea when the Club was founded was to affiliate with a national fraternity when Babson Institute became accredited. After careful consideration of the pros and cons of such a move, it was felt that, at this time, the national fraternity would not adequately meet the needs of the membership or Babson Institute. However, possible affiliation with a national fraternity is still being discussed for the future.

Lambda Kappa Pi is limited in membership to forty members. Its aims are to promote among the brothers, the student body, the related faculty, and associated businessmen the acquisition of those techniques and personal qualifications that are necessary for success in the financial world.

Another aim fostered among the brothers is the honor system. When the Finance Club was begun this idea was incorporated into the constitution, and now each member must sign an honor pledge. The suite parties during and after formal dances are also social activities for which this “frat” is justly renowned. It participated in the tri-fraternity social last fall, and among its several outstanding speakers of the past season was Mr. Charles S. Walkup, Jr., a trial lawyer for many firms in the Boston area. His topic was “Fraud and Embezzlement.”

At the present time this fraternity is ably led by President, John C. Barbour; Vice-President, Manuel Pombo; Secretary, Cari Props; and Treasurer, Joseph Carey. Dr. Fredrick W. Harrison serves in the capacity of faculty advisor.
Society for the Advancement of Management

The Babson Chapter of the Society for the Advancement of Management was founded in the Spring of 1948 to promote the scientific study of management and industry with the express purpose "to help its members obtain a better understanding of the problems of management and the manner in which they are solved."

Having obtained a charter from the National Association for the Society for the Advancement of Management, the society is another campus activity which can claim national affiliation.

In addition to its regular business and social meetings, the society sponsors such activities as movies, field trips, group discussions, and eminent speakers. With ample opportunity to provide a well-rounded program, the members are thus supplied a means whereby they can come in contact with industrial leaders of the area and the industrial organizations which they manage.

The organization has a dinner meeting at the Woodlawn Country Club each term under the sponsorship of its honorary member and advisor, Mr. George B. Heddingendorf, Head of the Department of Production. Mr. Darcy Coyle has been the club advisor for the past year, and Colonel Lawrence Meyns was made an honorary member and advisor to the club.

Among the fine programs this past year were included: Mr. Everett Stephens's report on the progress of Babson graduates in business; a field trip to the Pneumatic Scale Company in Chelsea; a report on investment banking by Mr. Blair Hawley; and an interesting discussion on small business by Mr. James A. McCafferty.

The able officers of the organization for the past year were: Victor Tomasso, President; Ernest Mucke, Vice-President; Theodore Alley, Secretary; and Robert Hennes, Treasurer.
The Foreign Affairs Club, affiliated with the International Relations Clubs of the Carnegie Endowment, has just concluded another successful year. The Club, in its fifth year, has attempted to promote interest in and further understanding of the economic, political, and social conditions abroad and their effects upon the United States. This Club, one of the oldest on campus, forms a very advantageous supplement to the Institute’s curriculum in its role of broadening the members’ conception of current events.

Keynoting the Club’s activities for the year has been an extremely varied program. Inaugurating the program, Philip B. Heald gave an interesting talk, supplemented by color slides, of his tour in Europe last summer. Special guests have been Princess Ilieana of Rumânia, who gave a very revealing talk on conditions in her country; Dr. S. L. Ivanyi, of Hungary, presented first-hand information of life in that section of the continent, first under the Germans, and then under the Russians. He is now a political refugee. Other speakers were Mrs. Laming, who discussed “What the Japanese people think of our occupation troops.” Dr. Amiya Chakravarty, Advisor of the Indian Delegation at the United Nations, discussed the need for closer co-operation between the West and Asia. The Club sent Richard Belew, Surat Osathanugrah and Paul Rugg as delegates to the Intercollegiate Model United Nations Assembly at Wellesley College in March. The Club’s activities came to a successful completion with the annual dinner.

Officers for the year included: Paul E. Rugg, President; Lawrence F. Breita, Vice-President; Phillip D. Jennison, Recording Secretary; James J. Crane, Corresponding Secretary; and Donald O. Sinichak, Treasurer. Donald J. Hobson was the acting president during the fall term.

Dr. Robert G. Wertheimer is serving as a very capable faculty advisor.
Music Club

Founded in 1947, the Music Club has attempted to further the appreciation of music among the students of Babson Institute. The Music Club has always maintained that informality is a prime requisite for enjoying and appreciating good entertainment and has endeavored at all times to present its programs in this manner. Holding open membership at all times, all interested students, faculty, and members of the Babson family and their guests are always invited to attend and take part in the programs and, by so doing, consider themselves members of the Club.

The Music Club is definitely not a "long-hair" club and is interested in presenting all types of music that would seem to please the great majority (and even, sometimes, the minority) of its audience. Endeavoring at all times to present good musical programs, the Club has been forced to resort to fewer programs this year due to numerous complications.

Among important programs presented for the year was the initial appearance of Phil Saltman and entertainers from his School of Modern Music which was received with great acclaim by a capacity audience in the Cap 'n' Saucer. Contemplated Spring Term programs included the concert of Miss Gloria Le-Clair, soprano, in her third annual appearance for the Music Club and a much promised jazz concert to bring all the "cats" out.

The officers for the year include Russell C. Whittaker, President; Harry W. Jeffries, Vice-President; C. Bradford Muzzy, Corresponding Secretary and News Reporter; and Robert M. Walter, Recording Secretary.

Serving as faculty advisor is Mr. Nicholas Raszewski who is the mainstay of the Music Club.
Dramatic Club

The Dramatic Club got off to a fast start last fall. The second week of school saw the Babson Barons troop to Lasell to rehearse a court-room chiller called "The Night of January 16." This was presented twice at Lasell and once at Richard Knight Auditorium on November 20. The audience acted as jury, and it was a great tribute to persistence and good acting that on the final night, the prosecutor was able, with only flimsy evidence, to reverse the verdict of the preceding performances and to get a conviction.

Meanwhile, rehearsals had already started at Wellesley for the Barnswallows' production of "Heartbreak House," by George Bernard Shaw. Shortly thereafter, three of the members participated in a theatre workshop production of a one-act play by Chekov, and in February, a large contingent from the Dramatic and Glee Clubs took part in a lusty performance of "The Beggar's Opera."

About this time, the Club found itself sadly depleted because of probation and nearly two-thirds of the membership was prevented from participating in the Winter Carnival show. Drawing heavily on the talents of the Glee Club, rehearsals were finally started for the "big show." From the beginning, the show ran into difficulties. A quick change of directors necessitated midway through the preparations, and about a week before the performance, most of the cast were stricken by an epidemic of the flu. In the face of such handicaps, "Mind Over Manor" could not hope to achieve the usual high standards of the Club, but, in spite of all, most of the laughs came where they were expected. During the Spring term, the Club was able to partially recoup its honor by participating in a fine show at Wellesley, and another at Lasell.

Officers for the year included: Robert F. Morse, President; Roy A. Seaver, Secretary; and William S. Holabird, Treasurer.

Mr. James G. Hawk did his usual good job as faculty advisor.
The Babson Sailing Club was founded in the winter of 1950 with the purpose of promoting interest in, furthering the understanding of, and organizing the art of sailing for pleasure among the members of the Babson Institute family.

These objectives are carried out by regular meetings during the sailing season. During these meetings, racing tactics, the science of sailing, and other such topics are discussed. To put the theories into practice, the Club races regularly twice each week in competition with the sailing clubs of Harvard, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Tufts, Boston University, Suffolk, Wellesley, and Radcliffe. The annual regatta with Tabor Academy was again held during the Spring Term. Social events for the past year included an annual fall party in Cambridge, and the always famous spring beach party held in May.

One of the ultimate objectives of the Sailing Club is to eventually own its boats. To date, Tufts and Massachusetts Institute of Technology have generously allowed the Club the use of their boats. A fund has been established, and sometime in the foreseeable future Babson boats should be racing down the Charles. It was the Babson Sailing Club, incidentally, which persuaded Wellesley College to join the League.

The officers of the Sailing Club are Howard H. Harding, Jr., Commodore; Russell C. French, Vice-Commodore; Lewis D. Tyler, Jr., Treasurer; and Harold T. Stock, Jr., Secretary.

Mr. Paul C. Staake, Jr., has served as the faculty advisor since the founding of the Club.
In the fall of 1948 a small group of Babson students decided that the late-evening chats they frequently enjoyed would be more beneficial if the discussion group was larger, and had at least some semblance of organization. These men, noting the pattern and content of their favorite discussions, named the newly formed organization the Philosophy Club.

As belies a club devoted solely to intellectual pursuits, there has occasionally been a difference of opinion among the members regarding the objective of the club. However, it has been formally stated in two different ways as follows: (the ideas, if not the language, are in agreement)

"The purpose of the Philosophy Club is to further study and obtain knowledge of the principles that cause, control or explain facts and events," and,

"To pawske a thoughtful analysis of matters of real, current interest and value to students."

The meetings of the Club, usually scheduled for Thursday afternoons, are held in the Cup 'n' Sauer. Refreshments are customarily served during the discussion period which always follows the opening remarks of the guest speaker. Anything but "high-brow," the minutes of the Club indicate that the members have a variety of interests.

Three meetings that proved very popular last year dealt with "The Philosophy of Twentieth Century Man," keynoted by a talk by Mr. Harry T. Moore, of the Institute faculty; "If Hierarchy in the Factory. Why Democracy in Government?" (a forum); and "The Human Venture in Sex, Love and Marriage," a discussion which featured Dr. Peev Bertosci, of Boston University.

The topics that have been discussed this year betray in part the anxiety many students have experienced as the "cold war" has grown warmer: "You and Your World — Where Are We Heading?"; "The European Policy of The Re-Examines — Are They Right?"; and "The Philosophy of the Detective Story," a keen and witty analysis by Dr. Thomas Hayes Proctor, eminent Wellesley philosopher and member of the Babson Faculty.

Officers of the Philosophy Club this year are: John Hahn, President; Richard C. Belew, Vice-President; Robert S. O'Connor, Secretary; and Martin B. August, Treasurer.

The Philosophy Club has been fortunate in having the counsel and interest of its faculty advisor, Dr. Raymond H. Wheeler, since the date of its inception.
"To foster all group singing activities at Babson Institute." This is the brief but important purpose of the Glee Club. Since its founding in the Fall of 1947, the Club has done much to gather goodwill for the Institute.

The group furnished the musical symbolism for the annual Founders' Day ceremony to start their activities for the year. The next step on the ladder of activity was the annual Christmas caroling junket. These hardy souls made musical stops at the homes of the Trustees and also made the usual tour of neighboring campuses.

The most heart-warming effort of the Club was, once again, the annual performance at the Children's Convalescent Home. The Babson Choristers put on a short program for the children and then went through the hospital, ward by ward. The proof of the adage "it is better to give than to receive" was found in the warm glow the men carried around with them for weeks after this affair.

The second annual Winter Carnival once again found the Glee Clubbers putting their best foot forward. The original production, "Mind Over Manor," was among the many high-points of the weekend and found the men both in good spirits and good voice. The music for the extravaganza was entirely original and was a credit to the efforts of Dan Levant and Roger Demaison, an alumnus of the Institute.

All of the above activities have been carried on under the capable leadership of Ric Snow, who left for the Air Force after the first term, Harvey Hubbell, and Harry Jeffries. These men, with the aid of a small but capable nucleus of members, have been the core of the Club throughout the year.

As this book goes to press these men are engaged in planning some musical programs with neighboring colleges. It is hoped that their efforts are blessed with the success which has attended past affairs, a success which is richly deserved.

These men have more than fulfilled their objective and it is hoped that future students will continue to build upon this very solid foundation of musical achievement.
Aviation Club

The Aviation Club, in its third year of reactivation, has continued to command the interest of an even larger group of students than in past years. The underlying purpose of the Club is to encourage interest in the field of aviation as a means of economical transportation for future businessmen through the use of light planes, and to make known to more people the benefits and pleasures of aviation activities.

The Club this year has undergone a slight facelift operation under the capable direction of its officers and committee heads. Besides the drawing up of a completely new constitution, the Club has also adopted a new policy whereby students unable to participate in flying activities may, nevertheless, become members in order to enjoy the other activities of the organization. These include noted speakers, educational films, and field trips.

One notable event of the year was the trip to Logan International Airport, which included a tour through the U.S. Weather Bureau, C.A.A. Communications, and many airline operations. Since this trip was such a great success the Aviation Club plans to make it an annual affair.

Airport operations have been switched during the past year to the Westboro Airport. At this easily accessible airport the club members have been able to acquire more skill in piloting light planes through the exceedingly low rates afforded the Club. Most of the organization's members hold either Private or Commercial licenses, although there are a few men who are at present receiving instruction for the Student License.

The Club is a member of the Association of North Eastern College Flying Clubs, an association which sponsors such events as “Breakfast Flights”, weekend trips, and intercollegiate flying meets. Also, there are several social activities sponsored by the Club during the year.

Eventually the Club hopes to have its own airplane and “operation's hut” at nearby Westboro Airport. To accomplish this aim the Club designates a portion of its treasury balance each year toward an airplane fund.

The President of the Aviation Club this year is James E. O'Donnell; Vice-President is Henry Boulten; John Wood, Secretary; Al McCarthy, Treasurer.
Camera Club

Founded in the fall term of 1949 by Philip B. Heald, the Camera Club has just completed its third year as a campus organization. The Club has continued to provide both facilities and instruction for those students desiring to further this practical avocation.

The Camera Club has continued to grow and now, with a membership of twenty, has taken its place in the campus limelight. Special credit should be given this Club for the excellent assistance it has extended the Barnstorm, the Beaver, and other student activities. The candid shots, appearing later in the latter pages of the book, are largely the result of this Club's efforts.

A highly successful open photo contest, with emphasis on student participation, was undertaken during the Winter Carnival Weekend. This year, special awards were given for colored photographs, in addition to the conventional black and white prints. The faculty was also allowed to exhibit prints, many of which were placed on display in the Park Manor dining room, but they were not eligible for prizes. Throughout the year, photographs of practically all of the campus social functions have been placed on the Park Manor bulletin board, and have served as a continuous source of enjoyment.

Officers for the year included Philip B. Heald, President; Morris C. Foye, Vice-President; Richard R. Orwig, Secretary; and Donald Lutes, Treasurer.

Dr. Lyman Judson served as faculty advisor for the Club.
