Rugby is not a sport for those who enjoy the normal routine. Dizziness is just one of the many altered states your body will succumb to from time to time. In Rugby there are no pads, there is no blocking, there is no break in play, and you play for 80 minutes. In Rugby you are forced to protect yourself, and you are forced to use yourself as both a weapon and a wall. You will be sore, you will be exhausted, you will be dizzy. At times you may want to quit, but you won’t. For although you are forced to lay individually, you will learn to think as a teammate. And it is within the confines of the team that you will become a “rugger.”

On Tuesday the Women’s Tennis team closed out its season with a 4-3 victory over rival Brandeis.

The number one doubles team of Sorrentini and Clark walloped their opponents 8-3. This win was achieved by strong volleys and “put-aways” by each player. In the last match, which had to be moved indoors due to darkness, the duo of Allison Good and Val Masnicki prevailed in a 9-7 thriller.

While Babson was on offense, Kerri-Lee Klett kept focused while team captain Carrie Goan was quite vocal in her support of the Lady Beavers. The Beavers kept up the offensive dominance until there was 1:30 left in the game. At this point, WNEC made an inspired attempt to end their scoring drought. They peppered the Babson goal with many shots in a very short span of time. Klett was on top of her game and was able to turn back everyone and keep the Beavers on top for their first victory of the season. The final score to this exciting match was 1-0 with Babson victorious.

Volleyball

The third game of the night was by far the most exciting. The second point of the game brought on an incredible rally that had the fans at Staake standing up and screaming. Sara Barrett's bomb from the left side ended the rally and the fans gave both teams a standing ovation for their inspired play. Jen Carta followed this unbelievable point with an ace, and it was clear that Babson was in complete control. Melissa Bishop's serving proved to be a weapon for Babson as she finished off Simon's with a blistering low serve.

On April 9 the Babson Baseball gave perhaps its best overall performance of the season. The Beavers plated in 16 runs as they swept the floor with the team from Wentworth Institute of Technology. The Beavers opened the first half of the game with a seven run first inning. The runs continued with three runs in the third, two in the fourth, and four in the eighth. The Beavers would not let up as their bats came alive against the W.I.T. pitchers. Paul Flaherty went 2-for-4 with two runs and the game’s two homeruns.

Babson demolished Pine Manor by 40 points en route to their second straight victory...Tufts University did fare much better when they traveled to Wellesley to take on the Green Machine. Kim McBride was named player of the game with 15 points and 5 rebounds...Babson's next performance was another laugh. Babson once again scored 75 points and outscored their opponents by 40 points...If you thought the other games were blowouts, wait until you hear this one! Babson 80 - CCNY 21! Enough said!
