Underclassmen

The Classes of 2001, 2002 and 2003 spend their academic year making progress through the new curriculum. In addition to their academic pursuits, the underclassmen participated in athletic events, and all other aspects of campus life. In addition, many underclassmen have distinguished themselves as heads of student organizations, as peer mentors, and as resident assistants.

On The Horizon
Freshman year is a year of firsts. The first FME class, the first semester of college, the first Spring Weekend, the first time hanging out at Roger’s Pub. All these firsts combine to make the experience a unique and interesting one. Life at Babson becomes routine at some point in this year of first experiences.
Sophomore year at Babson brings with it the beginning of the Intermediate Management Core, as well as a feeling of comfort and security in the Babson community. As students begin their second academic year, they know what is expected and what to expect. They are also ready to meet the challenge.
A parent (above right) watches intensely for the winning number as the roulette wheel spins. Two CAB students (above) work the tables in Trim Dining Hall as blackjack dealers. Many families (right) gather together at the end of Casino Night to watch a performance by The Babson Dance Ensemble and to await the raffle drawing to see if they hold the winning ticket.

One of the highlights of Family Weekend is the Campus Activities Board’s (CAB) Casino Night. During this event, family and friends can cap the weekend off with a roll of the dice. Other activities during the weekend included sporting events, the Babson Players’ fall show, “Biloxi Blues,” and a chance for families to experience Life at Babson.
Academics

As the groundbreaking class of the “new” curriculum, the Class of 2000 has utilized faculty, staff and administrators both in and out of the classroom to help us to cope and succeed when faced with this challenge. So often, Babson students build close relationships with Babson’s employees. It is no wonder that when some leave us, it becomes a powerful and emotional experience. This year, we have seen some very familiar faces move on, Dean Connie Bosse, one of the architects of the new curriculum; Class Dean and co-advisor of the Class of 2000 Donna Shea; Assistant Dean of Students Karen Kus and Professor Charles Rotman are amongst some of the more visible people on campus that said good-bye to Babson this year. This section is dedicated to those faces that help us to meet the Babson challenge and succeed.
