In September the juniors arrived full of pep, vim, and vigor. The neophytes hailed from many states—from the sunny shores of California to the variable clime of Massachusetts. To obtain a good business education was their common ambition. Many of them came from other colleges such as Harvard, Yale, Brown, Amherst, Williams, Dartmouth, Ohio U., Georgetown, M. I. T., Rensselaer, Alabama, and others. In the group there were already many mutual friends and acquaintances, and quickly they all became one big happy family. Soon they were swinging lustily along the road that points toward success in business. Surprises have been many. Scholastic and personal problems have been legion. But progress has been definite.
With aid from teachers and help from the administrative staff, a heaping year’s growth has been attained, and the neophytes are advancing.
From the Juniors Viewpoint
