Ten Places At Once Chun Enters Hall Of Fame

When Don Chun became a wealthy alumnus of Babson College, it plans to install his likeness for the old place by displaying pineapple plaques about the campus. (As least that is what the town council has planned.)

Don came to the United States from Stella two years ago and since that time has risen to the ranks of distinction here at Babson. As a scholar he has obtained the nearly ultimate-five-year’s on the Dean’s List and an extremely high cumulative mark of 3.38 which places him in the top 10 of his class.

FRIDGES FIGURES Model On Campus

From the Winter Carnival Committee a few weeks ago there has been an indication that a new figure has been created for the Babson’s Annual Winter Carnival. Remember the date: February 25 and 27.

At present, plans seem to indicate that basketball and baseball games on Saturday will be placed between the leading team in the league against an all-star team. The all-star team would be selected by the Athletic Council while the opposition would be formed by the leading team as of February 17.

LAVISH PROGRAM PLANNED

The Winter Carnival Committee has just sold out top every evening on Saturday evening, and all of the evening events of the night which are sponsored by oversite Babson, Leominster, and Charlestown will also be held. Refreshments will be

You are welcome to read the full document in a natural way. The text seems to be a mix of academic and social content, including announcements of events, academic discussions, and social gatherings. The text appears to be from a campus newspaper, likely from Babson College, given the references to the campus and its events. The content covers a range of topics from social events to academic discussions, and includes references to prominent events such as the Winter Carnival and the presence of notable figures like Donald W. K. Chun, a phrenologist.

The British Empire almost lost last Friday night when Lord Profumo, ambassador to the U.S., capably took off the stage during the degenerate op. "Parl". When asked about this harrassment, Lord Jeff replied, "For God, for country, for the theatre and all that sort, you know." One of the stars in Roosevelt's Clay, was again being drummed for the old place at本公司 Thursday night as Par-Exhibit's Big Bowl. "You're a guy for do be do!"

KISS ME AGAIN   Everyone is still talking about the fabulous party in John "I'm engaged it's all right" Premiere. In Boston last Saturday night. The bride, Kate, (Miss the English Miss Me Again, I'm not Dick Tracy's best, had but one constant consuming desire: "Great Nude girls are for do do!"

Walter "the tiny" Turner, lover extra-ordinary, is temporarily out of commission due to an pneumonia attack. Lollipops report are that he's upper lip is now upper teeth. The "big" Turner, briefly training of a new approach to the art of winning the affection of the opposite sex. No confirmation has been reported.

Attention administration: How about some social events being made available on campus so that those students who are confined could be given a little social contact with those about whom they stand and are going to stand? There is an abundance of eyes about that no one knows exactly what to believe.

In your enthusiasm to express your deep appreciation to all those students who have generously given their time and to those many others who volunteered, it is indeed much appreciated, and the constant and unceasingly which adds a bright ray of light to these troubled times.

Letters To The Editor

January 22, 1951

Dear Dr. Blackey:

As a recent graduate of our college, we have decided to discontinue the publication of the student newspaper of the Black Rock, effective at once.

From the sales record we regularly keep, it has been observed that the number of students using the Black Rock on Sunday evenings has decreased from sufficient to cover expenses. An average of less than 15% of the student group have been using the Black Rock on Sundays. On the average sales basis, this would mean less than 5% of the students each Sunday evening.

On the new Black Rock schedule, we will publish on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, at 8:00 A.M., $5:00 P.M., Monday thru Friday, and 8:00 P.M. 11:00 A.M. Monday thru Thursday. If there is no customer interest, this schedule will be discontinued.

If you will be kind enough to sign the name of the editor of the Black Rock, effective at once.

Sincerely,

Dr. Blackey

Diapers to Service Your Frosh

Wanted: 130 babysitters. Yes, its the Froshmen Class once again needs specialized, personalized, individual attention! At the Cabin meeting held recently, the students were first asked to have enough freshman associates personally invited by each club to join the organizations on campus. It was reported that the Froshmen Class was in need of its "personal" touch. Next, the idea of the Froshmen Activities Assembly was suggested. This idea was deemed to be "feasible" by a number of the clubs but was regarded by the majority of the others as "nice but impractical". The reason given was the composition of the proposed Froshmen meeting was actually about (or at least there was no word before Thursday morning) if the. The Froshmen Class has entered into clubs even more nonfunctionally and withal dispicable than the seniors. Why should it be, then, that one claim must be led by the hand to become a part of campus life? Froshmen are expected to run the organization on campus, or at least be expected to run it. In other words, all the individuals who would like to play "musical chairs" are requested to contact the Froshmen Class President. Probably some position can be found for you.

SPORTS IN REVIEW

It is hoped that readers of the Press Box will find particular interest in what was written by our correspondents over the past week as the basketball season has really started into high gear and with the schedule of games for Babson College has established itself as the team to beat. The boys on the hill have a very powerful club that is blessed with more experienced depth than any other team in the league. The contingency that they have is the league that it could be said makes them the favorite out of the back half of the season. The Harvard team of the league has not really matured and Morley has Bob O'Connor, Cooke Webster, and Ted Manley with him this year and the rhythm of the group has been found in the P&Ms.

PM SPORT SOAKS

Spur coal is the order of the sports at Park Manor. Reports from those states that action has ended both the basketball and squash tournaments and one bowling team has been formed. If those men have given the same effort as the basketball team, Park Manor may be able to force their way into the lineup of the P&Ms.

OC# AGAIN FOLDS

The Off-Campus Journal has folded again.  It is found that it is too much trouble to combine the gym crew or a few men and as a result the Off-Campus Journal is now defunct. The basketball league. Nobody misses them by their absence. It is the few men that did show up because now they cannot play.

Squash parties with dorms from the varsity teams has been a decided hit in the area. The basketball season is about to start. See here. It’s time to have fun and relax at the post with basketball companionship. Let’s make them a success.

NO COMPETITION

It is interesting to note exactly what influence participation points can play in the season. It is not unusual to see the All-Babson. Last year, with participation points offered, over 20 players turned out for basketball. This year, with no participation points available, only 10 have been announced as our current basketball list. Furthermore, it is unusual for the basketball team to be nearly even in its program while the aforementioned P&Ms plus Sid Altman are hurling at the straw. It’s really a pity that these students refuse to turn out for a sport just to play but isn’t it the same with some other sports? Maybe the idea of participation points in basketball is one of those ideas after all, though, if it will at least encourage a tournament.

Rams Over Poms
The Off-Campus Rams got off to a bad start starting their second second intramural Basketball Championship by losing to the Poms free to the tune of 28-24. The Rams opened with Armour and McLeans at the forwards, Blake at center, with Dick and Grout in the back court. Freeman put in fourteen points, while Weiss, Kappes and Warmer, played well.

Yale hoped for the best, sending four students who decided to invite a few of the Rams for the evening. The Rams followed the lead of Armour and McLeans and Weatherly followed with both the Rams and 31 for the Poms.

Bryan Closes in On PB
Bryan Mullan on the road to P&Ms victory by defeating Park Manor in their opening intramural basketball game of the season by a score of 32-29 on January 15.

The game got off to a slow start with several fouls being called against both teams. However, in the second quarter, Bryan exhibited obvious strength defense by holding Pack Manor to only 12 points.

FREE SUBSTITUTING

Pack Manor took advantage of Bryan’s free substitution in the second quarter to score 21 points and come within four points, taking the score. Nevertheless, the final quarter saw Bryan’s first team to best as they scored 10 points and wrapped up the victory.

Park Manor had Wellesley as their high scorer with points while Morley and Manley each put up nine. Bryan took good advantage of this third quarter to overtake the game. Walter Turner, who led his men with 11 points. Other scorers included Mitchell, Sillias, Buller and Steiner.

Seminial World Literature Life

Balzac's first liberal arts seminar was titled "The Power of Money." He offered his only two terms to seniors and special students. This course, not to be confused with the junior elective, World Literature II, will meet for two hours on Monday evenings.

This year, because of requests for former students of the other two literature courses, the class will take up the study of some of the great modern novels. During the first part of the course, the entire class will read the same book. In order to work out a "class" approach to the subject, the rest of the reading will be at the choice of each student from a selective list that is being prepared by the great novelists of the last hundred years.

READING FOR KNOWLEDGE

World Literature II cannot make the place of any required subject or elective, but beyond these exceptions it may be used to make up deficiencies in graduation requirements. In this way the course may replace the formal system of supervised readings for special credit. Normally, however, the students taking World literature II will be taking it as an extra subject and will graduate with credit hours in excess of requirements. Mr. Smith's open house will be secured before a registration notice; information about the course itself may be obtained from Mr. Smith, at the French Department.

SEMESTER ACTIVITY NEWS

F.A.C. Last Monday evening at an open meeting of the Foreign Affairs Club, Dr. St. Priest, former ambassador to Hungary, leader of the opposition, and a member of Hungarian Parliament, spoke on what to expect from Russia. In the course, Dr. St. Priest's opinions were very interesting indeed, as he represented the conflicting ideas of the communists vs. the politicians. The Doctor was a friend of Cardinal Mindsky and was able to give a very striking picture of the Czeckoslovakia's trials before a Russian Court. As a result of the meeting it was a member of the Hungarian Parliament, Dr. St. Priest laid in hand with the number three Roosevelt, General Vorobev. According to the speaker, "There is a great need for a moral front for against Communism."

SEEDS OF WAR

Dr. St. Priest explained the methods by which the Russian process to take over a country and also predicted that the next World War would start when the Russians attack Cito in Yulestka, and will not start in the Orient. The Doctor gave an evidence of this by fact that all of the last seven wars for over 5000 hours have started in the Balkan or Austro regions. However, he stated that the war does not start this year, we probably will not have a third world war but a rather a period that may last as long as 100 years of perpetual armaments.

There were many guests present and refreshments were served after a brief question period. President Paul Plag provided.
