El Nino Blamed For Reynolds Slipping and Sliding Around

O’Day Relocates To Upper Level and Secures Paintings

ADAM BERGER

Late Tuesday afternoon authorities from the Wellesley Housing Authority and Department of Health were on campus checking the status of the Reynolds Campus Center, blaming it on “El Nino.” Much to the dismay of Babson architects and administrators, the building was found to be slowly sliding off its foundation and, in reality, sinking. Patrick O’Day, Director of the Campus Center, upon prodding by the Babson Independent said, “My building. My building. I can’t believe this is happening after all my work picking out all those paintings.”

Professor Richard Mandel, a certified meteorologist stated, “That damn storm creates so many problems. I’m so sick of ‘el nino’ el nino!”

Billy Bob’s Buildings P.L. was called immediately and said, “Holy coca on a pig’s behind,” said Margane. David Carson, Director of College Planning, said, “We knew something was up when the lights atop the Campus Center were different from normal.”

President Offers Estate To Alleviate Housing Problem

AMIEE DOLLINGER

In a recent decision to help alleviate the housing shortage experienced this year, President Higdon announced Monday that he and his family would be vacating the house on Whiting Rd. and relocating into someone smaller on campus. This would allow the large house to be used for student housing in the coming years. It has not yet been determined where the Higdon family will be living, but some suggestions have been made. Perhaps they could relocate to rooms that are going to be built in Cohan Center, or a very nice town on the second floor of Park Manor South. The recent dorm visits have been rumored as a way for President Higdon to determine the best location for he and his family.

With the house vacated, it has been a subject of great debate as to who and what will go into the space. After careful study of school policy and Wellesley town statute, it has been determined that there is no other student or student group which is not eligible for the house. The two campus sororities, Sigma Kappa and Kappa Kappa Gammas could not take over the house, because the town of Wellesley considers eight or more women in the same house a brothel.

The fraternities on campus could not relocate due to the need to drive to campus for weekends.

President Higdon, feeling sympathetic for students in this year’s housing nightmare has generously donated his estate to the students. He is using his visits to dorms as an excuse for finding himself a new room.

Babson College Demands BCR to “Show Them the Money”

Higdon Stunned By Berger’s Lack of Responsibility

SHIV SINGH AND JOSEPH A. SENOS, JR.

To everyone’s surprise Babson College awoke this morning without a radio broadcast from Babson College Radio. The radio station has been temporarily put on hold by high ranking college officials for various reasons. This comes as a shock to President Leo I. Higdon, who put forth money to fund the station.

The point man for the Radio Station, Adam Berger, has been under numerous investigations that allege that he attempted to crash a student’s computer and that he has been embezzling money. The allegation of embezzlement has left many faculty members scratching their heads about where the money has been going. Many administrators began to become suspicious when Berger was often asking Babson to borrow thousands of dollars weekly. FBI agents traced $100,000 to Berger’s

Adam Berger Solicits Information About Crashing Laptop Computer. Thomas Natt Left Without Globenel

JOSEPH C. CONSILIO III

Thomas Natt, in a call to Babson Public Safety reported that his laptop computer in his Park Manor North room was crashed with malicious intent by Babson College Radio executives.

Natt told The Babson Independent, “I hold them responsible. They don’t have a right to my computer. They should have asked me.” Berger quit his job on BCR. Then, it seems, proceeded to search for information of how to perform a DoS, Denial of Service, attack on my computer.”

BCR called in their most wealthy parents to defend them, like good Babson students. Their team of $5000 on hour lawyers worked not only on the insanity plea, but on campus-wide e-mails that could make them look like the new fad. Rick Mikolos, Chief Information Officer of Babson College, was quoted saying, “BCR, using the screen name ‘bi-gymnast’ was just accessing information and made a mistake. It’s not a punishable crime, it’s just a prank, you know how many lawyers they have.” Of the record, Mikolos was heard saying, “TBS is in full support of BCR on this matter, crashing that brief computer was a monumental step.”

President Higdon told The Babson Independent, “I can’t believe I gave them that much money...and they blew it. At least they could have gone to Cancun. I hope they have enough money to get off for this.”

Natt’s floormates said they teamed up on BCR to the point of intimidation at a meeting. Berger was seen streaming through the campus saying “I did it. I finally did it. That [evasive deleted] will never come near me again!”

The truth of the matter is, Natt is without a computer to gain friends and simple pleasures.

Berger Solicits Information on Crashing Laptop Computer

Excerpts from an internet chat room where someone using the alias "blugs" and having an IP address of 155.48.107.18, registered to Babson, College Radio executive suite, requested information about crashing Thomas Nott’s personal laptop computer. This edited transcript was recorded by another person in the chat room and was forwarded to T.I.T.D. and the Babson Independent.

<blugs>: We need a computer taken out of commission.
<blugs>: Can anyone help us
<blugs>: It's really really important. I might get fired if you don't.
<blugs>: "Firebug" what did he do to you
<blugs>: He made me scared, real scared. I did #2 in my pants I was so scared.
<blugs>: I wanted an MBA greeting card with a rose on it and they scared me when they wanted it done within three days
<blugs>: Firebug's this doesn't sound important to me
<blugs>: I'm not asking for help. I'm estimating your age at about 13.
<blugs>: I really need a laptop taken out of commission, they messed with me
<blugs>: Out they made you mad?
<blugs>: Get out of go out of this channel
<blugs>: What did you say?
<blugs>: FU, PLEASE
<blugs>: Please
<blugs>: Leave leave leave, you are an imbecile
<blugs>: Don't do it.
<blugs>: I'm scared
<blugs>: Can my daddy's firm do it for me
<blugs>: I'm scared
<blugs>: You were right. You are an imbecile. Leave now or forever hold you're remaining braincells in your head.

Berger said, "I can't wait to see that punk at the Judicial Board hearing."

The States Constitution would have been proud of Mr. Tom Nott and the convoluted interpretations of the document they thought would save a nation. Berger said, "I can't wait to see that punk at the Judicial Board hearing. We're going to woop his ass."

The only laptop he'll be getting will be from Alpha Kappa Psi.

President Higdon donates estate to students

In recent months, there have been various improvements and renovations at Babson. However, none of these improvements are more noticeable than the new floor in the PepsiCo Pavilion. The new color of the floor was selected to be painted a rich blue, to the old green that had been there since the building opened.

Coinciding with the new floor was the unveiling of the new Pepsi logo and new spot TV ads with British Pop super group The Spice Girls. The new logo's colors are blue, the blue logo features a blue color. The ads that feature the Spice Girls show them dancing and attempting to sing in front of a blue backdrop while wearing skim kinetics. When asked about the coincidence of the new Pepsi logo color and the new Pepsi can, President Higdon stated, "I have no idea. As far as I know, the new Pepsi logo color was taken care under the supervision of College Marketing and a former Babson Alumni." In fact, this Babson Alumni has been donated to donate large sums of money in name to the College.

The Babson Independent learned through anonymous sources that the underwriter of the Pavilion logo color change was indeed a Babson Alumni, the CEO of PepsiCo. The CEO in question was unavailable for comment on the allega-

To: The IMC students, the Class of 2000, and all other concerned with the future of Babson College
From: Concerned members of the IMC faculty.

We ask all Babson College students and administration to take immediate action to correct the travesties committed against IMC faculty. We understand that we are charting the course for the future of Babson College. However, we believe that there are serious flaws with the implementation of the new curriculum. Babson believes that the five core competencies have been implemented as a roadmap to success in all endeavors. However, we feel that the IMC students have failed to embrace the concepts of leadership and teamwork, ethics and social responsibility, multi-cultural and international perspectives, numeracy, rhetoric. Their failure to do so has lead to great frustration and pain by all faculty members.

Leadership and Teamwork
The IMC student’s ineffectiveness in leadership and teamwork has become painfully apparent over the past semester. Example of this lack of “appropriate deportment” include:
• students directing profanity at professors
• students having heated arguments during group meetings
• students pagers beeping during class
• students cellular phones ringing in class
• students’ failure to take responsibility for what is being taught, just because it’s not discussed in class doesn’t mean that it won’t be on the exam.

Ethics and Social Responsibility
Ethics and social responsibility are a key to success in business. However IMC students fail to understand the importance of this competency, which Babson College holds so dear. Example of the shortcomings in the competency include:
• continuous offensive statements against those with learning disabilities
• intolerance of ambiguity in inherently ambiguous situations
• failure to accept constructive criticism, the belief that students are without flaws
• failure to acknowledge that professors do have a life beyond IMC
• criticizing professors when they take additional time to return assignments, reasonable accommodations are necessary.

Multi-cultural and International Perspectives
We at Babson pride ourselves on our understanding of different cultures, nationalities, and religions. This pride has been degraded by IMC students. Examples of this outrageous behavior include:
• reckless disregard for other countries in case discussions
• failure to acknowledge cultures that are non-western in their traditions during evaluation of cases

Numeracy
Numeracy is a critical component to understanding business, as business is primarily an applied science. If accounting is the language of business, then the Class of 2000 will be business illiterates. Examples of their shortcomings in this competency include:
• excessive anger and frustration over a clear cut Financial Accounting exam
• the failure to apply basic accounting principles needed to complete assignments
• failure to understand the grading concepts clearly outlined in the syllabus

Rhetoric
All business people need to be able to express themselves in a clear and concise manner in order to succeed. The inability of IMC students to communicate in an effective manner drives one to question their ability to independently complete their homework. Examples of their shortcomings in this competency include:
• the inability to communicate their need for help
• frequent grammatical mistakes in assignments and e-mails
• relying on homework that was prepared by other students, Babson students are supposed to be world class, they should be able to complete their homework on their own.

What We Are Asking
First we are asking for a written apology signed by all IMC students addressed to the IMC faculty. We have no problem with the IMC students; we believe that they are a group of intelligent and talented students. In fact we are asking that students take the initiative to use their talents to develop a greater understanding and appreciation for IMC. Furthermore we are looking for students to come prepared and ready to learn in all classes. Finally we are asking that all students submit a draft of their next deliverable one week in advance so that professors can provide adequate feedback. If no action is taken the Class of 2000’s stellar reputation will be severely tarnished.

Note: If no action is taken, we will seriously consider lengthening your future assignments until action is taken.
A Reunion Extravaganza: Commencement 2020

ANONYMOUS WRITER

The announcement of commencement speaker and honorary degree recipients is typically the highlight of the college fundraising committees. The invitees include Joe Lopez of Pummeling The Coffee Farmers Limited, Vikram Gandhi of Brey- ery So The Lie Does Not Hurt People Equally & Sons, and Ti Lee Lung from the Asian Slave Trade Company.

The goals for the commencement money raising rewards are high. Hopefully, we can get our hands on some of those bucks and slave butts, says William Glens, executive director of Project Money. I’m glad I never left this fundraising scheme entirely.

Lopez, the commencement speaker, is so excited to be back in Boston he is barely able to keep from exploding. “I am going to Avalon, M-B, and the Cat Club. My speech will be a blast because I am going to be smearished and thrashed from clubbing.”

“If he is able to stand, he plans on lecturing about the proper methods of running a plantation or manufacturing plant. They don’t teach you in school so I’m gonna tell ya. The secret is in cheap workers, and to get ‘em cheap enough you’ve gotta quit!” Lopez says, “To keep exploiting them you’ve got to halve economic development so they don’t be- ster themselves. The best part is the IMF is on it, too.”

The enthusiasm for this crop is fer- vent throughout the administration. This is the greatest graduation ever,” says Sandra King, vice president of college pro- paganda. “Hopefully, we’ll understand they are invited only because we expect donations.

Gandhi, class of 1998, says he wants students to know hard work in college does not equal success. “If you work success just use your parent’s money to buy it! Don’t feel he would be where he is today if it was not for bribery. Don’t knock it until you try it. It allows someone with nothing but skills to do what they want.”

The prospects of this graduate lead President Lee Higton misty eyed, “This shows what an international school is all about. Money at the cost of the rule of law.” He class examples of how the new curriculum was designed to focus on money at any cost. “It was study at any cost in college, and in the real world it is money. These corrupt graduates show what becomes of our students.”

Higton, who in 1997, advises graduating foreigners to enter the family business. “I wasted three years working my butt of for Smith Barney and I learned that you have to get your hands on some.” He recounts his ex- periences in the family business as more rewarding than the international school. “These girls let me do anything to them, but at Smith Barney they were doing it to me for 120 hours a week.”

With excitement as high as a helium balloon, the class of 2020 can look at the commencement speaker and honorary degree recipients as a future they might one day hold. “Just remember to give money,” says Dick Bishop. “Then when your money comes, be on stage.”

Definitely words for departing se- niors to remember.

Gardner Boulay in a statement crafted by the Public Relations Company of Walker Associates. The statement said, “I committed no crime, broke no law and stole no money. Swiss banks are known to be among the best in the world and the Radio Money had to be.”

Sergeant Walker said, “Berger has been caught red handed.

He also owed Public Safety money. But we will forgive him.”

This new allegation shocked the balance. Berger defended his actions in a statement crafted by his Public Relations Company of Walker Associates. The statement said, “I committed no crime, broke no law and stole no money. Swiss banks are known to be among the best in the world and the Radio Money had to be.”

The case is currently under inves- tigation. Sergeant Walker of Public Safety said, “Berger has been caught red handed. He also owed Public Safety money. But we will forgive him.”

It is rumored that Higton is related to Jacob Walker, senior mem- ber of the Radio Station.

The press release that the discourse- ments have been described as one Jacob Walker of New Jersey. Walker was involved in disbursing and hiding thousands of dollars as Berger was in his office. Walker who just purchased a new Jaguar convertible was drawing funds from both the Free Press and his access to other organizations. This was a just a case of two good kids who saw the money and went bad.

An anonymous student when asked about the station said, “The station is off the air. Before that it was just hot air.”

When asked what would be done, Cameron said, “I hope Phoebe’s plaster is safe. You know, he put a lot of work into those.” Cameron also said, “The art- icles had to be both the costumes and the table to the floor. This was a bad sign of what was to come.”

The global lounge will soon be the subterranean study room, Chrisspy’s Phillips’ store. The offices of SGA will no longer be a late night fornication spot for executive board members. They have been since found fornicating at Babson College Radio’s studios.

Gardner Boulay, Editor-in-Chief of The Babson Free Press told The Babson Independent, “We had them for so far. They’re too close now, especially since they’re in our old offices where I used to fornicinate with off-campus women.”

The Reynolds’ Center has only stuck three feet on the “bookside” set, so only the finance and economics books are on a pool of mud (not that the outside of the building any less muddy). When Reynolds completely falls down, there will be another bridge build beside the Hollister park garage and a half of the paintings picked out by Patrick O’Day. Although President Leo I. Higton, Jr. fe- quests the Campus Center with poten- tial donors wishing to donate large sums of funds, there is nothing that can be done. “Can I get my Ford Explorer put out is the mud?” Haven’t you seen the Ford truck commercials? Build Ford Tough,” said Higton.

Patrick O’Day moved his office up- stairs either because of a quarrel with Paula Termite or for his safety. Authori- ties believe the latter.

In response to SGA’s unfounded complaints about The Babson Free Press’ special parking passes, College Relations decided to forge the original plans for Hollister and make it into a parking garage for the lazy.

Hollister To Be Renovated

Into New Parking Garage

JOSEPH C. CONSLVOIII

After months of construction, the director of College Planning decided to renovate the original plan of Hollister Hall. In recent months, campus parking has been a substantial problem. With the addition of the Arthur M. Blank center as well as the Reynolds Campus Center, more people are now on campus.

College Planning originally re- sponded to the parking problem with the addition of the new Bryant Lot, but cur- rently the lot is empty. Students are up- set that the lot was placed on FAR away. Many people wonder who on Earth would park there other than people who live in graduate housing. One student said, “I would rather park illegally, than walk all the way from there. I’d rather Babo ticket- ing me, and the fine will be well worth it.”

In addition, the Student Government Association has been attempting to limit the amount of special parking privileges hands out to SGA or other organiza- tions. When asked about his parking pass, Gardner Boulay of The Babson Free Press, stated, “We need to park wherever we want. I’m a busy guy and am extremely busy. SGA can try, but I’ll have my way.”

After further investigation, The Bab- son Independent uncovered information about the creation of a new parking facili- ty. After months of planning and con- struction, it appears that all the offices in Hollister will be demolished once again and a new forty-space parking garage will be erected in this location. As for the of- fices that were going to move into Hollister, they are going to be relocated to Trim Dining Hall. The Health Center will remain as far as possible in its current location.

This new garage will be for special parking privileges only. Students, faculty, and administration will be locked out of this lot. The only vehicles allowed will be those with current special parking privileges. Some of the campus organi- zations in this group are the stu- dent Government Association, The Bab- son Free Press, assorted FME Busi- nesses, as well as Physical Plant and Public Safety. The group is an inde- pendent also has unconfirmed reports that President Leo I. Higton also pos- sess one of the special passes, but that he may be revoked now that he is living in a residence hall.

The Hollister Garage is scheduled for completion in early September. Col- lege Planning will also complete the new Arthur M. Blank Center in the Fall, and there are plans for two other parking fa- cilities to be constructed in the future.
Sgt. Walker Caught Speeding in Wellesley

BARDOLL O'BRIEN

A Babson Public Safety cruiser driven by Sergeant Andrew Walker was pulled over and ticketed by Wellesley Police in the early morning hours of Monday, April 6, for speeding. Sgt. Walker was, according to Wellesley police officer Duques, going 87 mph down route 19 where the speed limit is 35 mph.

After being pulled over, Sgt. Walker is accused of scooting Officer Duques with his hand gun (held by Blotter). The officer was, of course, overheard as saying, "just hold onto this gun...and boy does it feel hot...I'm afraid I could shoot anybody with this puppy."

In response to being ticketed, Officer Duques shot and hit Walker with his .38 hand gun. Walker, who was wearing his bullet proof vest, was unharmed and convinced that the Wellesley Police Department is incor-

In an effort to spark the stagnated social development at the College, the Office of Campus Life is sponsoring a "Get a Life" contest. Students interested in entering the contest should submit their page-long proposal on how they can use the money to improve themselves socially. Some possibilities include travel, tickets, decorations, and plastic surgery. The prizes were to include more than the conant of "Babson weekend weeks," as well as the fact that Babson students have no lives. Campus Life hopes to give the lucky student the chance to do something besides hang on the hill on Friday night. Those known to have no lives, such as members of the Babson Free Press and other food, pain, and progress 40 are strongly urged to apply.

Class of 1992 Wished to be the "Most Boring Senior Class Ever"

Class of 1992 has a plan to be the most boring senior class ever. They have been considering it for a long time, as well as less than satisfactory turnout at Roger's Pub and SODA, the Class of 1992 has been designing their last year in accordance with the plan. Of the 1992ers, "In years past we've never been a big hit on campus...now that the seniors are out..." Apparently President Higton was looking forward to dealing with a newly senior class and even went to the rugby game on Saturday, expecting to find the most obvious students. When asked why he left before the end of the game, he simply stated that "from the way they were playing, they seem to be too much trouble. If I continue to look around the dorms of 1992, this is what has left some students wondering about college life in general. With ideas of college off from cultural icons like the movie " malls and the MIT parlors OV hang

VP Reports

Executive Vice-President Paul Johnstone

I have been busy talking to the contractors about possible ways of contacting the students who will be away on the trip during the year. Also, I have tried to keep Bab-son Public Safety Officers from chasing my car when I was ticketing those that are illegally parked on campus. However, for now they will keep on doing it. They also told me that I had blocked my move to remove parking patches from the Free Press. VP Activities Jeff Davis Keller

This week we have another dull Knight party in which students are asked to dress as if they were a semi-formal. We hope that more than 10 students show up.

Also, because of President Higton's hospitalization, I have decided to move the spring carnival to the Presidential estate so that students can see what it is like to live the good life. The rides will contain merry-go-rounds and dunk the SGA E Board members.

VP of Finance - Matt Bennett

On Friday, I met with Joe Billantine to discuss the new budget for the up coming year. He also helped me in running the Ways and Means Committee, and helped with the elections of which organization should be funded and which should not. Joe, or I, will have a report in the next meeting. Finally, I can honestly say that I almost passed my first final exam and am proud of it.

VP Communications-Josh Corson

We have decided to accept two useless businesses on the basis that they will fail, thus helping these students understand that entrepreneurs do fail in life. Also, my committee and I will meet after the SGA meeting and try to get on the same page and be more coherent.

No report-again.

President-Christopher Phillips

For those of you who attend these meetings, and there aren't many of you, we will be a bring a water specialist to answer some of your questions about why the water on campus is terrible. Also, in order to improve and restore some of the lost respect students have for us, we have decided to recognize students with a letter inviting them to come to our meeting on their birthday so that we can sing them a song. Also, we have decided to begin a "fast break after spring break. This of course will be paid by student funding.

We will now open the floor to anyone, questions and comments and concerns that the representatives have."

I Came to Babson Looking For a Potential Husband…

A LONELY FEMALE

And what have I found? Nothing! Babson seemed like the perfect place to go to find a nice, spoiled rich boy that would be able to support my material needs. It advertised as a place that makes millionaires—sounded like exactly what I was looking for. So when I thought it figured I could slide in, do the bare minimum needed to keep me here, party as much as possible and work if I had to, I continued on in order to find a man with a large – um – wallet. Size does matter – and I want a man who is going to make me blog. Though this month at Babson degree, a semester of work, and a handsome young entrepreneur (who had a nice inheritance), I would make it and live the high life in Boston. Boy, was I ever wrong.

Not only are the decent rich boys falling out left and right, but the really cute ones with potential are the ones with the least money!

I pointed out that people seem to have a skewed opinion about people and their quirks at work. These classes there me for a loop, and I was sort of surprised that a man I thought was attractive, a smile, there and these old men know it for me. An easy A is all I get, and it is far better to have a man that I can get. To get in to my added load is a big house, and endless shopping spree, that is.

-Well – I am in the least very disappoint.

Not only are the decent rich boys falling out left and right, but the really cute ones with potential are the ones with the least money!
The Art of Nothingness

JOE SENOS

It seems that everything at Babson is about nothing. See, we go through a cursory work, but in the end what do we get? Nothing. Let’s face it—sitting though a class at Babson is not as sobering as a cup of cappuccino coffee. It is more like a police action.

Nothing is the bottom line to every-thing in life. In men, it is like wearing camouflage in the jungle. You walk into the jungle and I can’t see you. You don’t want to be nothing than clash. Going through college is like being in the Vietnam War. You don’t know who your friends are. You could get up ask, “Are you the Enemy?” but if they say “yes” are you going to do before them to death. Nothing is being useless, well guess what, that is like our free time. Oh well we have no free time. I would just like to say to those students who read this that “it’s what it’s what it’s all about.” If anyone understands this let me know.

Some might think that this is a paradox, ironically enough. It actually makes sense. It seems that there are many ignorant and condescending people on campus, but they too are victims of the vacuum of nothingness. This nothingness leads to more nothingness just piled atop more nothingness. I would like to someone to stick an American flag in this pile of nothingness and see the astonishment that it would provide within the nothingness. Remember the people that brought you nothing, that’s right Babson College. If it is being understood here or abroad it is probably not being done by Babson College. Nothing cannot be better personified than through SGA. How each meeting is the same blah, blah, blah. How we pay these people to do nothing.

I would just like to say to those stuck in the rut of nothing—don’t feel so bad, you may be clogged up now, but we will drop in a little beer and bar-b-que and try and cook them down. Also this is a parody, this is not to be offensive and should be read in a sarcastic tone. Hey but one last parting shot. The nothingness at the end of your tunnel could be you or nothingness is a journey, not a destination. If I confused you—good, and if I didn’t—oh well.

Courses Must
Enlighten Professors

A DELUSIONAL MAN

This school needs to develop more courses to provide a better overview of life. I was so upset that I felt something needed to be done. I almost sent out an illegal mass message, but instead, I withheld it. Therefore, I wrote this article the need for more Objectivist courses.

Objectivism is a philosophy which was originally developed by Ayn Rand. The philosophy when I boil it down like a radical professor might be that one should not apologize for the desire to be money. It is important that Babson students are not only taught that they should make money, but the philosophical reason why they must.

By arguing against you simply show how narrow minded you are, and how you are against multiculturalism and diversity. In fact, one person even referred to the philosophy using the derogatory term: Randist.

The action that needs to be taken involves forcing people to take a required Introduction to Objectivism class. Presently, there are courses in philosophy, but they all deal with Plato and Aristotle leaving Ayn Rand out in the cold.

By adding upper level Objectivist courses students can concentrate in Objectivism rather than economics or some useless subject. Believe me, there are students who would gladly declare such a concentration. At the time though, they are being denied the education they seek.

To move beyond those interested in Objectivism, students should be forced to listen to speakers discuss Objectivism. There are plenty out there so we can certainly have one every semester. Except with Objectivism, not only will students be forced to go, the professor will be required to attend and enlightened themselves. Certainly, it is reasonable to require professors to expand their horizons.

Already, I am dismayed by my liberal arts professors who are shocked that liberal like me is even interested in what someone like Ayn Rand would have to say. Everything I write will be viewed with disgust in their classes, and my liberal credentials are destroyed because I spoke up.

Why God Never Received Tenure At A University

1. He had only one major publication.
2. It was in Hebrew.
3. It had no references.
4. It wasn’t published in a refereed journal.
5. Some even doubt he wrote it himself.
6. It may be true that he created the world, but what has he done since then?
7. His cooperative efforts have been quite limited.
8. The scientific community has had a hard time replicating his results.
9. He never applied to the Ethics Board for permission to use human subjects.
10. When one experiment went awry, he tried to cover it up by drowning the subjects.
11. When subjects didn’t behave as predicted, he killed them from the sample.
12. He rarely came to class, just told students to read the Book.
13. Some say he had his son teach the class.
14. He expelled his first two students for learning.
15. Although there were only ten requirements, most students failed his tests.
16. His office hours were infrequent and usually held on a mountain top.

DOCTOR HUGH G. RECTION

Vomit, a.k.a., gag, barf, or puke. Whatever you choose to call it, it’s very much a part of college life. We all do it, and it turns out we also have to clean it. Most college vomits are a combination of alcohol and pizza with sometimes a sprinkle of cheese thrown in. They are extremely difficult to clean, especially when it is allowed to dry, because of the high cheese content. But there’s a lot more to vomit than what you simply wipe on the floor and I’m here to tell you all about it. The term “vomit” had its origins in France. It is derived from the verb “vomir” (to eject) with the feminine translation being “vomette.” Simply put vomit is a gastroesophageal reflux condition in which the bad gunk or loose mix with the stomach acids and spews upwards into the esophagus.

Well it is pretty damn obvious to me that there might be a more proximal obstructive factor here.

gus, up the shoot, and out the mouth. But on rare instances the jax has been known to go opposite the way into the lungs or larynx. This is known as a found gastroesophageal reflux. And if your really having a bad day it’s been known to go downward into the duodenum and then into the colon (ascending and semi) and out the pooper. The person’s normally screwed in such a case, but at least everything ends up in the bowl and not on the wall. I remember years ago a kid from Convent C by the name of Lurch. I was cleaning his tower one fine Saturday morning when low and behold I came across a humongous pile of pizza puke, a foot in front of the bowl. No biggie, I cleaned it, and went about my way. A few hours later another kid informed me that it was Lurch that left the mess present. Half I can’t throw stones, I did it a million times in my younger years, but I did ask him why he didn’t just leave his head a foot forward to get to the bowl. His reply was that he was taking a dump at the same time. It was speechless. But if he was having a profound gastroesophageal reflux, as opposed to the normal variant, chances are that the whole mess would have ended up in the same place with no clean up. It probably would have killed him, but then again who cares? The kid was sort of a dink anyhow.

While browsing through the history book here, I saw that there was an admiral in the Dutch Navy back in the 1700s who found himself on roasted chicken and literally puked to death. And there was another character running around back then, named Boerhaave, who was possibly the best clinician in all of Europe. He went against the traditional medical of the time quite often. So when he claimed the reason this chicken puking admiral died, was because a full thickness disruption of the lower third of the esophagus, an autopsy was quickly performed. It proved him to be right and thus the epithony “Boerhaave Syndrome” was christened.

“Technically what happens is that there is a tear in the lower third of the esophagus. Initially the mediastinal pleura remains intact and the swallowed as well as some of the fluid in the esophagus escapes in the posterior mediastium and presents as supravacticular crepitus. When the pressure in creases, the mediastinal pleura rupture and a pneumothorax ensues. The later soon becomes infected, becoming and empyema originating in the esophagojejunal fistula. In order words you don’t eat on chicken because the mortality rate is 100% if untreated and 75% if treated. If you don’t like killed numbers you should have been born a cow, and judging by the shapes of some of you, I think you might of been. Anyhow, they have three stomachs or they also have three of all those other things just mentioned. What’s the point of all this? I guess if the chicken swimming Dutch admiral were a cow, he would have two more stomachs.

Even today the question remains why some esophagitis rupture rather than the stomach. Experiments don’t ever work(see/stuff) clearly demonstrate the tension pressure required to rupture the esophaga-

“gus is four times greater than that to rupture the stomach. Well it is pretty damn obvious to me that there might be a more proximal obstructive factor here. It may also be that presure alone doesn’t determine whether or not an organ will explode. Or it could be that the rapidity of pressure build up also plays a role. Every dope knows that there are certain minor muscle deficiencies in some esophagi so maybe folks with the syndrome just had bad plumbing from the start. Well whatever, it’s just from here, I just figure I give you something to chew on next time you’re vomiting instead of just the big chunks. And who knows I might even do a follow up column on vomit. In fact, I think I will because I really enjoy this article. I can’t pin point just when yet, but surely it will be coming up shortly.

What’s Your Sign Baby?

Aries (March 20-April 19): This week your going to wish you hadn’t bathed at everyonewho believes in superstitions. You are going to be plagued with bad luck everywhere you turn to get you back for all of the cracks you have stepped on and black cats you’ve seen. Better start throwing salt over your shoulder and knocking on wood.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): You or any friends you have in IMC are going to be burned this week. You thought the assignments were touchy before, well they will seem easier. Better start making that coffee, as the only way you will make it through this week is to not sleep at all.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Steer clear of Tim’s this week or you will get a definite case of food poisoning. Thought the hot line was good stuff, well your stomach will tell you otherwise. Never fear Domino’s delivers until 2am.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): As the houting and class lottery approaches, you’d better be prepared to get the short end of the stick. Anything you wanted will go to that person down the hall. You will be left wondering what did you wrong. Take heart, living in the bas-nement of the library and having Barn classes five days a week will only last for a year.

Leo (July 23-August 22): This letdown week take a game and enjoy today. I will not pay off big time. You thought I meant money? Sorry, it will just prove you’re a sucker. Be the way the summer is coming to an end, those seven years of bad luck begin today.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The opportunity for your dream vacation will convey the way this week. Not only will be affordable, but during warm weather. Too bad it is during exams. Better luck next year.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Any upcoming papers this week will be passed only by pure luck. Any words you write will sound great you just got bad grades. Take heart, this bad luck will only follow you for a few weeks.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): This week you will lose everything. Keys, money, asignaments. You name it, you’ll lose it. The good news is that by this time next week you will stop being so forgetful. The bad news is that everything you lose will never make track.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You will be another victim to the missing sock is the dryer. Unfortunately, the lucky mom in your household will only make socks disappear, but some of your favorite clothes. Think you can avoid this problem by waiting a couple of weeks to do laundry? Reaid not, I’ll catch you up.

Capricorn (Dec. 21-Jan. 19): All of the tickets and bids you have been avoiding will catch up to you this week. Thought you could avoid the Babson Telephone Company? Guess again. Thought Babson would never be to the point to the ticket office? See you still think that as you see your car towed. And the credit card bills? Better starting looking for somewhere to cut the plastic.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 17): This week you have been expecting some great mail, whether it be about a job or from a special someone. Too bad the mailroom will miss all your mail this week. Will you ever receive it? Any feeling lucky? Too make matters worse, you will realize they have been "repacking" your mail for quite a while.

Pisces (Feb. 18-March 19): This the week you will be spending a lot of time in the computer center getting projects done. Great news, you will finish them all. Too bad teachers will accuse you of plagiarizing and "T10 will accuse you of giving Babson computers a virus. Better hope you have some friends on the inside.

Top Ten Signs You Are in the New Curriculum ...

1. Your but is numb.
2. You hear stories about doing nothing and still getting a 4.0 from the upperclassmen at 2:00 am as you write your IMC paper.
3. You have a shrine to Intel in your closet.
4. You feel like committing mass murder.
5. If you hear the phrases “learning streams” or “core competencies” one more time, you are going to go postal.
6. The only marketable skills you have learned this semester are sleeping while sitting up and yawning through your nose.
7. Everywhere you look, Banco Santiago’s!
8. Twice a week, you walk around bow-legged after a class for three and a half hours straight.

Quotes From Recent IMC Faculty Meeting...

10. Hey guys, check out this cool tattoo of Andy Grove!
11. Don’t tell “them” about Grove! It’ll mess up the whole curriculum.
12. Wigit.
13. Wait a minute, guys… I’m confused.
14. That’s the point!
15. Will someone wake up Professor Doran?
16. Is “department” really a word?
17. You idiot!
18. Is it just me, or is anyone else tired of students kissing my butt?
19. If it weren’t for tent cards, this class would be a complete failure!

Trainers Replace Water with Alcohol, Beavers on Amazing Winning Streak

MICHAEL JACOBS

In an amazing revelation, this newspaper has learned that the Babson College Athletic Trainers replaced the water in those massive jugs and in the water bottles with vodka and beer. The jugs, starting next week, will be replaced with kegs and players can drink straight from the tap while on the sidelines. Water bottles will also be switched, but with bottles of Absolut because they look pretty similar. Right now, the jugs and bottles are hand-filled by the student trainers. Since the switch, all Babson teams have won every game. In fact, the Men’s Tennis team can now keep the ball on the court with their impaired vision.

Some study done at one of the suites on campus showed that students drank so much and so often that they actually depended on alcohol in order to complete basic human functions. They found that athletes at Babson experienced alcohol withdrawal while playing because they didn’t have access to it. So, the training department figured that giving the athletes beer and liquor during games would improve the players and teams’ performances. Boy have we been right.” Statistics show that since the replacement of liquids, requests for vodka is up 15% at the Health Center (you know that place just past Saturn).

Skip Wins Ultimate Fighting Competition

THE ONE. THE ONLY.

The 50th annual Babson College Ultimate Fighting Championships concluded over spring break with tournament favorite Skip Connell winning the event's final round of a crowd of 10,000 alumni, students, faculty, staff, administration, boxing promoters, ambulance cheers, and prisoniers on field trips.

Skip faced the Free Press' Gardner Bouley in the first round. Skip's patented bouldering attack caught Bouley's skull. Bouley tried to use his innumerable investigative reporting questions to wear down Skip like he has done with so many others. However, Skip saw through Bouley by singing old songs really loudly and finally bashing Bouley in the head with the top of his broomstick to win the match.

In their first round competition, John Paulkoutlis cutout Bobo Bobo by stipulating all the rules and procedures of the sonny scuffle for a winnable cause we affectionately know as the J.P.'s. Paulkoutlis' loping kick leapted leaping Bobo. Bobo died due to natural causes at the ripe old age of 345.

Michael Planche of APF tells Gretchen Zielke of the Babson Dance Ensemble in a three-round battle, Zielke used her Laberaha Leg Drop to knock out the party. Planche, also new SGA president Chrispy Phillips bitbashed Matt's Car "the Scrooge" Citron in a quick knockout, just Dowl of CAB best Sig Eta Eddie Gaines in one of the weakest battles. Gaines had the support of his 9 trillion brothers, but Dowell used CAB's unlimited funds to buy steel gloves, spiked shoes, and four personal trainers to gain an advantage. GVE's Melissa Carr fell to BCR's Adam Berger in a close match. Berger won with his new DOG attack move. John Reole of the Babson Boxing Club used his old-fashioned one-two combo to knock-off President Hamilton in a quick match. Finally, Ayn Wolf of SAAB defeated Resident Assistant Ryan Greenberg at Park Manor Court, in a classic crotch. Wolf ended up having an anonymous friend pull Greenberg's hair out.

The second round was full of action with Zielke defeating Paulkoutlis by default after Paulkoutlis tried to cheat by attempting to blackmail Zielke by telling her she would be fired if she broke her promise to have his.Paulkoutlis' board members figure it out. Phiels beat Dowell with a nasty kick to the groin and skip to the floor. Skip beat Zielke by getting the Rado sitting on Zielke's back, then thinking and then beating him with his brolmstick. Wood beat Reole in a major upset after Wood went for Reole's jews and hit the jackpot (literally).

In the semifinals, Phiels beat Zielke into a bloody pulp with the heatwave sunglasses from SGA's drinking binge at their appreciation dinner. In the other semifinal, Skip crushed Wood using a new technique. Skip lured Wood into the Men's bathroom in the basement of Tomasso. When Wood started knocking towards Skip's office door, Skip emerged from the back stall. Skip swung the door open so hard, it hit Wood and Wood crashed to the ground. The forms from the dogged tollies finished Wood off and Skip headed to the finals to face Phiels.

In the final, Phiels tried to get an early advantage by showing Skip pictures of beer, cigas, and women. With Skip distracted, Phiels went for a double-forward-backward bicepsop in which he slapped Skip with the palm of her right hand, then ran back and kicked Skip back on her hand. Skip laughed-off Phiels imaginary power (whether he was laughing about his physical power or power to benefit the school through SGA is still unknown) and played some kind of lethal combination of blowers and bacte- ria in her face. Phiels on her knees and crying, Skip took a breather and knp a fat Cuban stogie. Just as Phiels looked like she was going to get back on her feet, Skip burned Phiels with his cigar and proceeded to beat her with his brolmstick back move. Phiels tenaciously kept her alive though, but Skip finally put her to rest with a flying elbow to the jaw. With the victory, Skip was nothing, except admiration from this reporter. Chiress Skip, "I was a tough battle and I had to utilize all my resources, but I went back to my buddy right elbow. Phiels didn't want to lose, but I knew that my win would represent a win for mankind (B&G). I'm honored to be the 50th winner of the competition and look forward to next year when I can defend my title against even tougher competition."
