Babson gives up on business

In a bold move that shocked student and faculty alike and rocked Wall Street to its very foundations, President Ralph Storment has announced Babson will switch from business to liberal arts, effective immediately.

"Our goal, quite simply, is to become the top liberal arts school in the country," Storment said. In discussing the reason for the switch, he responded, "We thought about it long and hard and decided that there was no future in business management, and that arts are the wave of the future."

Reaction has been mixed, although the administration has been encouraged so far. Alumni donations have increased, and most students seem unconcerned about the changes. "All we take the first three years in Liberal Arts one sophomore noted. "Why not?" Another sophomore stated, "I don't like it, the arts courses are a lot harder!" A prominent senior said, "Does this mean I can't take courses at LasBowie or Pine Manor?"

The burst of the blow has fallen upon the faculty, most of whom are unhappy, to say the least. "Marketing is all I know," said one professor. "What can I do?" "This is really rough on me," commented Jeff Halle, Babson's vice president for business. "I just reorganized my office and now I have to move out!"

A large number of the faculty, who are required to be faculty members according to the Pres' pledge not to fire any teacher who would shift to liberal arts. In fact, several faculty members have already signed up to teach in new fields. Jack Morley is managing the transition, and the students are true to their beliefs.

"It's just a matter of time before I get used to the change," Professor Mary was reported to say. "I've been teaching for 10 years, and I think it's time for a change."

Several defections are reported to have occurred in the Accounting Division to teach arts and psychology courses. Michael Fishers commented, "I never could keep track of all that mumbo-jumbo anyway." "Now I'll get respect from students because I'll be teaching some- thing real," said Professor Nancy Cotter. "Let's face it, accounting is dull, dull, dull," summarized Chairman D. Hog- lind.

The Finance Department is reported to be leaning towards the dance and ballet. According to Joseph Lowdell, the depart- ment might still opt for the social sciences, but in either event a decision will be made soon, because all the other depart- ments are struggling to cope with the growing subjects." Other more popular courses announced include the Econom- ics Department, which plans to add French and Italian, and Math and English. "We think these courses now are exciting majors and we're left...

Capital Campaign is floundering

According to reliable sources in the Alumni Office, Biological Col- lege could soon be in dire trouble, raising donations from the amount raised from the college's Capital Campaign.

"Deep waters," our source reports, that collections from the alumni caused only $40 million this year. What's worse, only 99 of the 200 donors who gave in last year's capital campaign have come back this year. "They've given their fair share on the other hand, 100% donors who gave in the capital campaign," said President Johnson saying "Have you given your fair share?" in answer to the question. "Your total donation of $500 entitles the donor to a tax deduction from the Head of the Alumni Department, Joe Moroney. "Our goal is to reach $500,000 this year."" He added, "Please, make it a package deal, two steps as a memorial for $3 million. Who could resist an offer like that?"

Moroney also had some ideas for the Alumni Office's annual Phon-a-thon, where students call alumni to ask them to donate. "The concept is not just plain dull," he said. "It's called Pn-o-a-thon. Knowing the alumni like it, I know the one...

Socialite dead at Pub

Tragedy struck the Babson campus last Thursday evening at the Beaver Brau when Josi LaCroix, leading campus socialite, collapsed and died of heat prostration.

According to one of Croc's confidantes, Shirley Prep, Croc was sitting down drinking a Perrier on the rocks with a twist after dancing to "Last Dance" by Donna Summer. Suddenly, he began to sweat, and then, then, like wow, he really turned red. Ms. Prep stated, continuing...

"It was weird, then he began panting and fanning himself, then began clapping at his shirt and he fell over into his drink. He ruined my Diane Jon Faustenbaker designer shirt. It was gross...

Due to the large crowd at the Pub to hear the "Ball Cap" DJ Carl Miner, it took several hours for Ms. Prep to summon help. By the time Bebe Five-O arrived on the scene at 5 am, Croc was dead. P. Baloney, Medical Examiner for the town was mystified by Croc's sudden col- lapse and death. "The only fact I have discovered that sheds any light on this mystery is the fact that Mr. Croc was wearing 5 shirts, one on top of another. The layering effect of all the fabric had a tremendous insulating effect." Friends of the late social butterfly were also puzziled by the collapse. He was in tremendous condition, one friend said. "He made it a point to get out and boogie at least twice a week." Another female associate notes, "In all my contacts with him I've never known him to be tired for anything."

According to Croc's family, memorial services will be held Saturday morning in Boston. 15 Landdown. Admis- sions will be $2.00, and waiters are asked to "dress to impress." In lieu of flowers, memorial laments may be made to the Halton De la Renta Foundation for the Termi- nally Icic.

New public strategy unveiled

In a bold new attempt to gain fame and fortune for tiny Babson College, Rick Bellhop, Director of Publicity and Newswriting, has announced a new strategy to get Babson on television.

"The idea is simplicity itself," Bellhop explained. "We'll use TV to get on TV! The main idea is that all Babson students, faculty, administration and staff will collectively show the media, I know that this will bring them over in droves. Imagine! A small campus with not one, but two, brilliant, just brilliant! Bellhop models every expansion of thought."

The proposed involves major facets to involve all of the Babson community. Students will be holding demonstrations at Channels 4.5 and 4.7, shouting slogans such as "Cranke is a Commie" and "We're not for 4.8 and 4.9 and we have already hired some radical students to hold reporters hostage, on live TV if possible.

Faculty members will be charged with writing articles for local news media articulating economic, social, and political reasons why. This is a trouble some area right now, because, as Bellhop admitted, "We haven't the faintest idea why we would ever want to get on the news.

Of course, the most difficult part of the project will involve the actual watching TV. This help is expected to be making a treacherous inspection and some for contraband items and a constant watch will be a serious crime," Bellhop emphasized.

Bellhop feels that the boycott pro TV could be the most successful stunt the college has ever pulled off. "Funner's Day just didn't seem to attract the media," he explained, "and the Russian demonstration was only on 2 of the 5 major channels. This is possibly it's most important. Intersted parties are urged to stay tuned for further developments."

Good news on Babson campus

Bodell Bagley, President Soarinsin's Director of Good News, has been working care fully with the Student Gov't and that highly scholarly and intellecutal fount of knowledge, Dr. Alphy Croo, on a new publication dedicated to all the truly good news that happens on the Babson campus.

The Free Press has obtained a special four page tab, which includes many articles and features about good things that everyone really should know.

Stories follow:

The Health Center is running very smoothly, and no one died there last week. Nurse Gerta Putteen reported that someone who visited Mag last week, and she received their check, "has the greatest food from a hospital patient.

The Dry Dock served over 2000 people last week, and gave only 12 cases of food poisoning were reported, a big improvement.

Treasurer Jess Putter reported that the college did not go bankrupt last week.

No one has been in intramural or fraternal sports for the past four weeks.

An incredible 50% of the students, besides the usual trays of Tim Dining Hall, are choosing not to be cleaned at their station.

Tuition is going up a paltry 1.14%.

Security, saw 12 students speeding, but could not go faster than they are allowed, and gave them tickets. To compensate, an extra 100 parking tickets were issued.

There were only 16 fire alarms at Pizitz Hall over the past three days. The W.F.D. showed up for 12 of them, Security was at 2.

A special test done at the library, showed that 300 students noise level ranks below a DC 10, and do not bother a student. An ear-splitting concert, and not louder than a DC 10, as earlier thought.

Four students were actually able to use a book to be finished 1960, in a display of incredible dedication, last Thursday at the library.

The Chamber of Commerce held a meeting last night.

The Republican Club folded after George Bush turned down their invitation to come and speak.

A Student Government sponsored concert broke even last month.

Half the freshmen class passed Physics and Star.

The shuttle ran on schedule yesterday.

Crazed founder shocks club

At the most recent meeting of Babson's most enduring organization, Sucker K, an angry, outburst from the founder and former president, brought tears to the eyes of many, this reporter met with:

The five members of the organization are "Find us a cause and we'll give to it," who attended the meeting were dumfounded, but who witnessed, "I never knew the club was so important..." one member was heard to say. McAnus is reponsible for establishing, a beaten out of time."

The vice-president of Sucker K, Crag Gibson, "an amon from the room as soon as the fight started because he wasn't sure what was going on."

Skepticism was voiced by the club, the only one who kept her head in the crisis. She simply to McAnus there was no point in doing whereupon he regained his com position, and retired to the man. Baby Five-O took the cover and rushed to the assembly for the

When asked what prompted the fray, Anderson said, "It wasn't anything specific. these sort of incidents have been happening all year. Peter just decided he couldn't give up his club."

Anderson and Agnostic said they would have a bake sale to raise money for McAnus's hospita l and psychiatric bills. Anyone interested in working on the project should see Anderson.

Tragedy strikes nurse at Health Center

Have you ever had the pleasure of staying at the Health Center? Then you’ve had the real pleasure, the pleasure, that is, of living with Elaina Wowchick. But have you been there lately? Have you noticed that Elaina is no longer there? Have you noticed that you can now understand the nurses at the Health Center? What happened and why the mysterious disappearance?

Could it be that Horrenda Wowchick ran off with Mrs. Apple and Elaina couldn’t stand it? Could it be that Elaina has run off with Dr. Peabrain? No—it was a much more frightening experience than that. Last week, while Elaina was taking a new human vaccine at the Health Center, she was mysteriously sucked up in the mechanism never to be seen again.

The new machine, purchased only a short time ago, was Elaina’s pride and joy. It was a human vaccine which could be used to keep the Health Center healthy and dust free while at the same time functioning as a dummy for her CPR course. Unfortunately, she was never able to use it for either purpose.

Elaina decided to test the effectiveness of the computerized marvel before the student body returned from vacation when she accidentally pushed the button which said “suckier instead of ‘pucker.’” Both Mrs. Apple and Dr. Peabrain rushed to the scene, but it was too late. The dummy had sucked up Elaina and digested her, and even the Babson green and whiteness couldn’t put Elaina back together again.

But more importantly, what happened to the machine? Elaina, wherever she is, will be happy to know that the human vacuum is functioning perfectly. After a few minor repairs, everything was back to normal. Thank goodness, because President Soretenone was up in arms since it had taken nearly a year to suck an alumni into donating a million dollars for this stupid machine. As Walsh said, “If this machine had been damaged, how would I have ever gotten any alumni to donate money for my personal water bed and sauna?”

The staff at the Health Center expresses their supreme condolences over Elaina’s disappearance. As Elaina said as she was being sucked into the mechanism, “Schickchlow long, Bud!”

The art of being coool

Recently, “Boston” magazine ran an article entitled “How to Pass for a Harvard Student.” I couldn’t help but think of our existential little Babson community and the unique qualities that we are characterized by. How to Pass for a Baboine?

Girls: First, buy a bookbag. Any type will do, but if you want to look sophisticated, you should have this Chestnut Hill Mall or Quincy Market. Next, go out and buy shoes in every color in the rainbow (cotton for the first semester and corduroy for the second). Get them bright so that they throw off more glory than Three Mile Island. Then get yourself at least four button-down oxford shirts, pink, yellow, blue and white are the basics. Next aim your wardrobe come designer jeans (the longer, more foreign-sounding name, the better) and coordinating turtlenecks. You must simply put your initials on everything and complete your wardrobe with either Bass shoes or Bean boots.

Guys: Wear a waist length ski jacket in any of the following color combinations: white/blue, green/yellow, or red/orange. If you can’t find one of these, buy a Baracuta or two. Band T-shirts, jeans or hospital pants and sneakers will complete your wardrobe. N.B. Remember that your jacket is of the utmost importance. Wear it all the time, even if the Beaver Brau is ninety-five degrees. Above all, don’t ever let what the girls wear last you be labeled “preppie.”

Everyone: Spend most of your time in the Dry Dock. Pass through it at every possible opportunity, pretending your going to check your mailboxes.

Drink Heineken out of bottles (Those with real class are permitted to drink Guinness Stout).

Go to all the rush parties, but don’t think of joining a frat.

Get a work-study job at the gym, but never at Trim.

Eat at Danny’s of Nick’s; insist that you hate the cafe.

Only major in accounting, management, or entrepreneurial studies.

Call skipping classes, “Blowing it off.”

Criticize anyone unlike yourself.

Gossip.

Insist that “Disco Sucks”.

Don’t live in Bryant of Forest Hall, or at east don’t admit to it.

Go to the Brau Wednesday night, and Mary Ann’s on Friday night.

Take courses at Pine Mattress during Policy Finalation.

Go to the library whenever you are not in the Dry Dock.
Appalled

Tueday, March 4, marks the date of Babson's annual Founder's Day observance. To honor our founder, Roger Babson, Babson held its third annual induction into the Academy of Distinguished Entrepreneurs. Even though, at the time, there were 18 inductees, the event was well attended and became acquainted with the guests. The guests, in turn, did their best job to interest students in their respective stories of success.

For and intents and purposes, the day's events were executed, the students enjoyed their guests, and Babson received some kudos for diversity. However, this editor is upset with the incident which occurred during the day's proceedings. It may seem minor to some; but, to those of us with pride in our great school, it stung like a slap in the face.

By now, most of the readers of this highly esteemed publication must know what I am referring to. The incident should receive no more attention, as it is rather despicable. However, in order for this editor to set the record straight, this issue must be addressed.

As difficult as it is to believe, it's true that the honored entree to the Academy of Distinguished Entrepreneurs was received by students from this fine institution of higher education. No one refutes a Babson student. After all, just ask any entrepreneur what they are? Or, more importantly, who they would be without Babson's fine entrepreneurship program? Don't they understand that this, the aspiring number one business school, can make them or break them? After all, what was entrepreneurship before Babson made it special?

They question must be raised, "What right does this influential group have to say at all? Typically these people are presented by Babson's finest?" I for one, speaking as a true believer in the Babson mission, can find no excuse for this display of arrogance and think no one should be afforded these egomaniacs to rub Andy Babson against the wrong side of the fence. With whom do they think they are dealing?

Personally, weighing the benefits of winning and bragging, as well as the threats posed by these pesos against the cost of a student, of what may someday be the nation's number one business school, would be far better off shunning these egotistical types and honoring only our own entrepreneurs who will never forget what fine school made them big.

Perhaps, we could give the outsiders one more chance; but then they measure up to expected standards of behavior, they sha'll have Babson to kick around anymore.

Pooh, Pooh

Again, I am faced with the task of coming up with a witty little commentary to brighten up your day. Each week, I ask myself, "What silly little issue or person can I knock to bits this week?" The task seems just a tad too difficult even for the brainiest of minds. Yet, I am sure that I will again achieve amazing success and still avoid an attempt on my life.

With the advent of spring (spring is such a pejorative word), the weather is very, very, very much spring-like. As wonderful things we could all do to make this garbage dump a better place to live.

My first suggestion is to take one day next week during which each little Babson student would plant a flower on campus. Flowers would just be the perfect thing to really make this campus pretty. And besides, with all the digging we have, the students wouldn't even need diggers. Can you imagine the great feeling you could get from literally growing through the tulips you way Poole Hall?

Another day next week, the student body could get together and paint all the classrooms a baby pink. It would make the rooms so much brighter and it would be so cheery to walk into class each day. Some of the rooms could be daffodil yellow or a subtle mimosa color. It would at least be better than looking at those drab, seedy walls we now have. All the little ladies on campus could get together and have a seen bee to make curtains for the classrooms. I think that a nice calico would do the job.

Since making the campus more happy and gay is our goal, how about opening up a little clothing boutique on campus? We could throw out those gross and disgusting things the administration insists on calling the BraeTAG Collegetore and fill that mall with clothing. We could have a department just for quilts. We could also sell things like feathers. Polly Flinders dresses, jewelry and a cute selection of designer sportswear. Fashion is really in this year, and it would help us to be more beautiful students. I think that in honor of this really nasty holiday, there should be some new clubs formed on campus. We could call it the low class and okay we have now. Some tiny, bitter suggestions that come to mind are: a swimming club, a bou' o'clock tea club, a bakery club, and a quilling club. Just think of all the pretty things that the BraeTAG campus could make and do if it were not forced to consider sand as not being dirt, with dirt being full of sand. It is definitely dirt, just mild.

The least offensive, lowest crime form of humor is referred to as sand. Sand is pretty tame, it includes such things as trivial things as what people got on a test, who is in the infirmary, or who will be speaking at Founder's Day. Some rummages.

The next grade is dirt itself, which is the type of gossip used by people who are, that is to say sand is as bad as it gets. The people who are pregnant or who have VP. The people who everyone wants to know about.

The term for the highest level is dirt and is used for dirt about very prominent people. An example might be the President of the United States having an affair or the Governor caught in a compromising position. The word "modest" comes to mind from it. Many of us use this word. Perhaps this information, which has only scratched the surface of the subject, will help to stimulate interest and study in this area.

Sincerely,

R. M. Monger, Ph.D.

Movie Re-view

There is a fascinating wave of new films spreading information, educating, and fascinating entertainment across America. Recently, I had the opportunity to see one of these fine films, In Search of Noah’s Ark.

This film divulged exciting new information from around the world by combining both modern film footage and documentary film footage shot by Moses' son, Moses, on the ark.

Unfortunately these films are usually in town for a few short weeks; so when you see a rate advertisement for this film or any of the other fine American International films, for example In Search of Historic Jesus, run out and see them.

Unfortunately American International has been bought out by a conglomerate concerned only with making a cheap buck, and we may be seeing the last of these fine films. Let’s hope we don’t have to put up with more films like Apocalypse Now, Kramer vs. Kramer, or Breaking Away, let’s hope not.

It takes a tough man to make a tender chicken.

KKB - New Greek success story

What is the most socially and otherwise active organization to hit Camp Babe since the inception of Murders and Inquisitions? What single group of beings has changed the meaning of the word "sorority"? Who has given a new meaning to the term "socially active"? It's the newest sorority on campus: Kappa Klappa Bamma.

Having only been formed last semester, KKB has made explosive progress. From innovative new social activities to stimulating new ways to raise money, KKB has surpassed records for any other campus organizations. According to the President, Lawrence Brando, "Like, ya know, it's really isn't hard to raise money if you know where the money is. It's like, if you want something, there's always something you can give in return."

The sisters of Kappa Klappa Bamma, in the matter of a few short months, have raised enough money to erect their own sorority house. The structure contains approximately forty rooms, as well as a building complete with a thirty-course menu for the sisters, as well as about ten guest rooms for any guests who might drop in. A unique feature of the new residence will be that each room will be stacked with water beds, mirrors on the ceilings and trodeweave five silk sheets, freshly laundered of course.

The sisters also want to be known to their social prominence. Says Nibbly Slimmer, a charter member, "The common wish we all have had in the past was to be a debonair, but none of us were ever able to make it, so this is our chance to be elite, and hopefully catch some rich guy from Groove Pointe to marry us."

Although they all have a knack for social climbing, the girls can be clearly divided into two groups, the intimately friendly and the frustrated witches. Ely Cindypanoh has been known for being outgoing, although reliable sources say that she is not a true blond. Mandy Cathiciz on the other hand, is known for being rather reserved and quite fond of chewing ice.

Kappa Klappa Bamma has set new standards for the campus as a whole, and indeed they may be. They have moved faster than a speeding bullet to make themselves known and available to members of the Babson Community.

Important decisions made at Student Govt.

Ralph Sorenski was photographed by the CIA talking to Soviet officials. According to sources closest to the president, he was discussing the possibility of founding and presiding at the Soviets' first business school. Due to his great charisma, it seems Sorenski had practically convinced the pictures of the CIA to this end. Fortunately for Babson College, the proposal was turned down by Brezhnev. Sorenski was heard saying he would try Red China next.

Hopefully, by now you have found a nomination for the upcoming Garduate Student Association elections. This is your BIG CHANCE to nominate responsible persons of your choice for President, Vice Presidents, Treasurer, and Secretary of the Graduate Student Association. Any association member may run and you may elect yourselves. Second year students are welcome to vote for the candidate of their choice. Be discerning: the responsibilities are not to be taken lightly!

Please! Practice Democracy and fill out nominations. Explicit instructions will be in the packet.

GET DOWN! Friday, March 28 you are cordially invited to the Cambridge Boat House for the Social Event of the Semester. All GSA members ($10 fee for non-members) are invited to attend. You will be among such distinguished people as Ralph Serrien and other members of the Babson community. The gala event is semi-formal and there will be plenty of dancing and good times shared by all. There is no need to bring a date. An open bar will prevail! See you there.

This Tuesday night, March 25, the Graduate Special Events Committee presents the Alumni Career Advisory Dinner. The event will be held in Trim 203, 204 and 205. Discussions begin at 6:00 p.m. followed by cocktails and dinner. If you missed the earlier sign-up, there will be another sign-up this Monday the 24th between 10:00 and 12:00 noon in the Grad Lounge.

This is the learning experience of the semester! Be it management-consulting, Marketing, or Finance-Accounting, these alumnus have important information to tell you about where you are headed. Besides, for a mere $3.00 you get top shelf and a gourmet meal. Both first and second year students are welcome.

Fish Person, Stan Luniewicz, reminds you to be prepared to swim Saturday, March 29, from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. with the New England Marathon Swimmers Association. Meet the best of the waterways!
SKY TEAM WINS N.C.A.A. SKI TOURNAMENT

After displaying their best performance in 17 years of competing, the Babson College ski team entered the N.C.A.A. Ski Tournament. However, the college refused to put up the money to sponsor the team because, as the administration put it, "This college's first priority is academics. Skiing is too much fun and the team did too well to warrant appropriate funding." Thinking quickly, the team started a new business in Trim which earned $7000 in a week. They sold snow balls.

The team could not believe how beautiful the mountains were. In fact, one Meinerd couldn't wait to run to scale the peaks. If anyone hears from him, the team would appreciate being contacted, as he was holding $3000 of their money.

The evening's events were just as exciting as the day's. The team took this chance to visit both of the stores in Steamboat. Being in training, the coach would not let them stay up late or drink. Seeing that Babson students need alcohol to live, the coach spent the night strapped to the gondola.

When the squad came up with adequate funds, they headed for Steamboat Springs, Colorado. Their first surprise came when they found out that their accommodations were limited to one room, with a bathroom down the hall. Being very friendly people, however, the hotel management provided two extra mattresses to cover the floor, so all nine skiers could sleep.

The first day of competition featured the downhill. The team had an impressive first place showing from Peter McKlamm- mer, although no one else on the squad placed in the top 200. It seems that McKlammer had a fortunate advantage in paying the starter off so he could ski first. The rest of his teammates damaged the course so much, that few skiers were able to finish.

The second day's total dropped Babson's standings from a fine 42nd place to a dead last, 42nd.

That night proved to be crucial for Baho. In a team meeting, the Beavers only figured out one thing, Coloradans aren't used to seeing nine college students drink five kegs. In an unanimous vote, the team decided to challenge all other teams to a separate competition. What few rivals were left after these activities were eliminated by some of Babson's female contingent, Cindy "Bombs" Nelson and Evonne Marie Pruell. Cindy "Bombs" Nelson and Spider Skomitch eliminated 14 other teams from any other competition, day or night, by performing their bed sheet routine, leaving all contestants scarred, bleeding and limp.

In the final day's race, the slalom, Jean-Claude Ames and J. Otis Stemmark lured the few competitors left into shots of tequila and kamikazes. While they were under the influence, hard-core salesmen Peter McKlamm-mer sold the favored teams from the University of Colorado collapsible ski poles, and collapse they did! This left Babson's great Bippo the Kidd to win the slalom. On his way to victory Bippo incurred several rear-end bruises as he slid down most of the course on his prettiest part.

Now that competition was over, the ski team could finally party. After drinking the town dry, they went on maneuvers to bring back some sort of momento as remembrances of the fantastic trip. He proceeded to rape, pillage and steal anything that wasn't spelled down and even some that were.

Once again Babson left its mark in yet another place and time.
Hockey team plans move into larger building, as overcrowding prevails

Some Babson officials are calling it blackmail. Many are calling it ridiculous. Whatever the view may be, the Babson Hockey Team, because of overcrowding in their present arena, want a brand new one comparable to the Forum in Los Angeles. The team threatens that if their demand is not met in time they will move in with the Boston Celtics into the Boston Garden arena. The team further claims that they are losing gate receipts to the town figure skating club, which receives all profits from concessions.

The building, which would be situated near the present rink, would seat 12,250 for hockey and 18,500 for basketball. The hockey team has asked the Babson men's basketball team to join them on the venture, but the basketball team has declined. The $1,000,000 entrance fee for a little too steep, basketball Coach Dussart offers that he'd like to get out of the dump he's in now.

The building would not comment or present reports. About when asked the situation, Babson President Berington said that to cover the cost of the arena, tuition would have to be doubled or maybe tripled. Berington said then instead of he thought about the 15,000 seats could be filled per game, 1500 being the break even point. He responded that if the arena was built on campus, probably not, but if the hockey Beavers were tenants with the Celtics, it would be subject. They may be able to, if the team plays immediately before a Celtics game. Baboon admits, however, that skating on the 18-foot floor may cause a few problems.

Is there a solution? The only possible answer is to have the hockey team schedule its games after the intramural games, at Christmas, and Franklin. They noted, however, that getting officials as well as spectators for the early morning contests may be a problem.

Professional wrestling comes to Babson College

Yes, ladies and gentlemen, the event of all events of all events is coming to Babson. Promoted by the National Wrestling Alliance, it is the Babson Recreation Center. In the first attempt of any kind, Bob "Wild Man" Kersten takes on Ed "The Bear" Colletti in an exhibition bout. "Wild Man" Kersten grew up with a tribe of wrestling ancestors in the jungles of South Africa. He was discovered by former World Champion "The Fabulous Wizard," on his recent trip to the dark continent. "Wild Man" Kersten has a professional record of 23-0 and is famous for his ear-piercing howl which he brings up after his opponent.

"The Bear" was raised by his father, the legendary "American". He is a member of the Forests of Upper Mongolia. His father, the first-born of the breed, which covers his body certainly makes "The Bear" the 8th Wonder of the World. Carrying a record of 6-0 and managed by Bruno the Inhuman, "The Beast" looks for a victory to propel him to the top.

The second match features George "the Animal" Mand and Mark "the Butcher" Peterson. "The Animal" is famous for his Cleveland, Armpit Lock, which can be applied from the 10th floor of the John Hancock Building. "the Beast" is handicapped when his head is locked under "the Animal's" arm. This move has been successful in 24 of 25 attempts.

"The Butcher" was an employee at the Acme Slaughter House Company when he was discovered by Bruno when he was at the Minneapolis Forum. "The Butcher" has had Lorry Bird could be the man, but then again he may not be...Maybe he's the son of Jerry J. Jones...? Hey, I don't know if it could be anyone...I guess that must be the way of the world...Just remember, I'll take Sam's girl in that fish...if you give me 3 to 1 odds...If you recall it was rainy the last time we made that bet...Look for the Red Sox to play baseball this summer...Wasn't he awesome?...Well so goes...Fear or maybe five of them will be there and me believe me are good. Celts will win, if they score more points than the team they play. Did you see Joe?...he must have bit off more than he could chew and pulked...Sorry Ralph Z...I'll take Philly and give you two okay...time to get to the local Bebe scene...Babson plays intercollegiate sports...Hot off the press. They won, honest they did...Well not much more to say...Cloudy skies prevail!

Wow, have you ever seen anyone hit a baseball like that before? That man can really hit a long ball...He has a shot of winning the batting crown over the other player...I guess it is just another wall and see situation...Hot dogs are up 50 cents over last years high price...This fact is nothing once you consider the traffic levels of the Lower Kansas City...Dogging to the right side, should play about 396 yards in today's windy weather...The story is indeed yet not to be written. If he beats him in the match, she will without a doubt lose. Look at that club...What is it? I see...Maybe tomorrow or the next day...If not now, when? See you at the circus...Lions and tigers and bears...

Babson's Athlete of the Week Spider Skomish

As Coach Raggedy put it, "In twenty-one years of coaching, I've never seen a racing form even close to the one used by Skomish."

Spider Skomish is this week's Athlete of the Week, for her stunning performances, both on and off the slopes, in the N.C.A.A. Skiing Championships. Coach Raggedy taught herself to ski while growing up with a group of Nomads traveling in the Sahara Desert. It is believed that her parents were skiers however, as she was originally found sliding down an icy hill in the Alps, in a basket.

AKK comes out of its coffin to take Deathball lead

Fraternity deathball continued last week, with Alpha Kappa Pi sneaking into the lead as a result of 22 points earned by their players just before press time. "It's kind of a shame," explained an Alpha Kappa Pi spokesman, "but we're just going to have to go into next year with heads held high in confidence, attitude, and hopefully we'll come back next year stronger and with fewer fatalities to our record." Theta Chi is currently second, with 18-19, zero Beta Tau is third with 8-9-18, and a disappointing Delta Sigma Pi brought up the rear with a score of 4-6-10. A Big Pop-Neck felt that "Our squad can't get into the game anymore, since the rule changes made it into a game for wimps." Commenting on these charges, Intermural and Frat Sports Director Bill Roberts said, "It's unfortunate that we have to use knives and chains, but it was getting a little too rough out there before the Frat Night Specials and flame-throwers." Assistant Intramural Director Stan Dicouicz reports that plans were in the works for a spring outing race. The race, according to Stan, will be run on campus the day after, at Keith/Cantfield will arrive 2 hours later. Publisher will from Knight Annex to Coleman Hall, start used by race. On Fridays between 3:30 and 4:30, Theta Chi will set off their "Big Bum Trot." It will run on Thursday, March 27, at 5 a.m. Commenting on the date, Theta Chi offered to bill about it, and be said they'd have no problem with the time that we could use the road." Stan is also lining up a "special guest," and if you believe the grapevine, it will be either former coach of the Team Dave Kleier or movie star Benji. Concerning the "Swil Trot," North is expected to finish strong, and the faculty will be disqualified for attempting to run the race as a relay. Concerning overall leader Forest Hall's chances, Dorm A.D. Scott Krohen feels that "We'll have about fifty people from dorm; I hope at least a couple finish." Asked about the large number participating, Scott replied, "Oh, they'll be there alright. I'm going to bring two drugs after the race." Everyone with questions concerning the race should contact Bill Roberts, who will be in his office between 3 and 5:20 p.m. on Tuesday, March 25.

Upcoming intramural events include a "central source," and a Founder's Day program, where a Babson Good is hidden, and the winner is the first person to proclaim.
