

Can These Bones Live?

By Roger W. Babson and Dudley Zuver

Published by Harper & Brothers Publishing Company, New York, 1945, First Edition

<http://babsc.iii.com/record=b1089068~S0>

This is a cooperative work by Babson, a businessman devoted to practical affairs, and Zuver, a student of religious philosophy. A study of ways to “find the Church” in the modern world, the book blends economic and intellectual persuasions to present a religious life as something unforced; naturally fitting each individual. The six divisions of the book are titled “What is Religion?” “Religious Education,” “The Churches and Money,” “The Ecclesiastical Mind,” “Church and State” and “The God of the Bible.”

Babson College Archives copy: Gift to the Babson College Library
5 x 8”, tan cloth cover, 254 pp.

Archives

BR

479

B2