By Andrew Morrison

The annual winter rushing period culminated for Alpha Delta Sigma last Tuesday night. After the dust and varied other debris deposited during that period had cleared, the Brotherhood of A, D, S found itself in possession of a substantial group of neophytes.

Three weeks of rushing were hectic, fraught with fatigue for brothers, and some confusion for those being rushed. Time spent variously possibly of Alpha Delta Sigma might be spent answering the donut questions about the questions of helpful, pervasive the reluctant ones, and receiving an occasional snare from people who did not know why they were there.

The climax of the rushing period was the party held in Conn, Mass. It was a night to remember for a multitude of reasons. Problems began in the home, but it was decided that none of the girls from neighboring fraternities would attend. Before the conflict was resolved, thirty or forty members of the group were rapidly overwhelming the inter-\---

The arrival released great merriment, so it was well that the ball was well arranged for an illumination of that daintiness nature. Those partaking of the punch in the cellar were treated to the sound of many feet that danced above; all conversation was syncopated.

The band, known as the Jades, was in a high state of form, and those who kept dancing on the dance floor.

One surprise of the evening was a "bailway," at any rate, there was barely any time to get the dance wagon. This feeling of intimacy one usually has at formal dances was well retained.

Humphrey Calls Business "Public Service"

"A young man eager for public service might well go into business." The advice comes, not from a corporate recruiting officer, but from the Vice President of the United States. In an article in the New York Times, Mr. Humphrey says, "I am surprised at the number of young people who believe that business and public service have nothing to do with each other. This is despite the fact that our profit system has conferred more benefits upon more people than any other economic system in history."

Businessmen have helped the American economy soar to new heights in each of the last three decades. Mr. Humphrey says, "Many business executives have been among the world's foremost progressives." The utilitarian Vice President reasons.

"By helping to create the world's highest standard of living, says the President of the Great Society can be realized through the profits of our economy."

The tax cut of 1964 was a deliberate attempt by the government to stimulate business profits, says Mr. Humphrey, and to create a higher wage and more jobs.

By going into business today, says the Vice President, a young man "can become a part of private enterprise, not with a salary, but with a feeling of pride that he is serving his country's future.

Babson Presents A Funny Thing

The theatre guild is now at the height of its rehearsal for "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" to be presented on February 26 in the Newhall Auditorium.

The show has the professional help of Robert Guest, who has acted in numerous plays and is recognized in the drama world as a professional. Female parts will be taken from students at Babson College. Audition dates are Tuesday and Thursday nights.

"A funny thing," adopted from the book by Larry Gelbart and Robert Sherwood, has a long run on Broadway with Zero Mostel in the lead role as Pseudolus, the slave. Babson's answer to Zero is Jeff Whitkin, Jeff from Glencoe, Illinois, who has played the Junior at Babson and has an supporting role in last year's production of "I'll Knife You." It is a colorful and hilarious experience for anyone interested in the funniest play of all time. Laura Chase, who also played in last year's production, will help fill in the music and dance.

The story begins when Pseudolus is offered his freedom if he is able to unite Philia (Deneen) and her husband (Frank Locascio). He runs into trouble when he finds that Philia is a virgin from the house of Courtesan II, and her is of noble birth. A match between the unlikely couple is considered taboo. The result is a hit in the comedy called "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum." The production will begin at 8:30 p.m. and will be free to Babson and art and dramatics. At this performance there will also be some seats available for the public.

MORE WINTER WEEKEND PLANS

The Dabron Winter Weekend goes into the final countdown this week with Feb. 10, 19, and 20 approach. Plans and preparations for the gala event are now in full swing and the weekend is expected to be a spectacular success.

Signs of this were apparent when the advance ticket sale began four weeks before the date. The first week saw one hundred full tickets sold. This was the first year an advance ticket sale was ever conducted. In the past, ticket sales were held the last week before the event. The fact that so many tickets were sold so far in advance is a positive indication that the weekend will be received favorably. It is being predicted that ticket sales for this year will break all previous records.

Along with regular Winter Weekend activities there will be many added attractions to enhance the whole affair. The idea behind these activities is to keep the whole school interested and to heighten participation of good sportsmanship.

As in previous years, all participation events will take place on Friday, Feb. 19 and Sunday, Feb. 20, and will allow for inter-fraternity and intramural sports.

The snow sculpturing contest will start Sunday, Feb. 19, and will continue until Friday, Feb. 20 at noon. Each fraternity and sorority will compete for the First Annual Snow Sculpturing Cup and De Ma Sip will have to be top favorites as they retain the previous snow sculpturing cup. The Cup will be awarded Friars at the Honorary Friars' Ball on Feb. 26 to the winners. The Social Committee has planned two dances, "My Fraternity is...", and "Bobby Babson Fraternity Women's Ball" in all men's college," for the entertainment and dancing. The judging will be done by social committee, faculty, and administration, and the Cup will be awarded for expression of originality, creativity, and coordination of forms and handiwork in the carving. The winning group will receive a特 prize and location of contest.

The Instable need to participate verbally, a student body, can be boisterous to both profes- sional and non-professional, and if, as does happen on rare occasions, a student should have something to contribute to a lecture, be heard, and not have to state his point. The fact is, that most of the par- ticipants are there just to see or nothing to say. The sound of their own voices masks their thin, and drab, (literally) audience lends an opportunity that is often seized with a fervor when the real world is not at their disposal.

No one, except perhaps a few strangers and old friends want to listen to this chaff and if they were to be made to do so, they would not. The talkers probably become increas- ingly fluent as a result of poor lectures in the past and present. In these environs, even the silent would welcome the friendship-

The system seems to be a method in itself, which is designed and is short lived, to help students carry on lectures courses. These are the courses in which

The best retort ever offered for the traditional theme, that "the LB's are bored," was offered by Dr. D.E. in a letter to the editor. The LB's turned to the student and sneered, "Certainly not!" and while most of them were down stairs and to the right.

Dear Mr. Carpenter,

I want to thank you for your response to my article. The very long paragraph that you have written is remarkable. I know, bring three immediate additions to this letter. The fact that the program is lacking in quality is not something that only students have been aware of as you suggested. I am not interested in any of the facts that are presented, but, I am interested in the facts that are not.

I, as a student, am casual aware that such a program does exist. I do, however, have some current examples. If you would like to be included, I would be happy to provide you with more examples. I am interested in the facts that are not presented, but, I am interested in the facts that are.

The second matter on my mind today is the continued policy of the Placement Office, and how it is that we are not able to participate in the decision-making process. This is a very important issue, as it affects all of us. We are not able to participate in the decision-making process, and I believe this is a serious concern.

Over the years I have felt that you have been a very sensitive person, especially sensitive to matching, and how it affects the lives of others. I am very concerned about the fact that you do not participate in the decision-making process.

Let me be specific. In the first place, you told me that seasoned barn sitting would be used for the speakers. While it is true that this is the case, I do not believe that this is the case. I do not believe that it is the case because I do not believe that this is the case. I believe that it is the case because I do not believe that this is the case. I believe that it is the case because I do not believe that this is the case.

I have never been very comfortable with the idea of matching, and how it affects the lives of others. I believe that it is important to have a say in the decision-making process. I believe that it is important to have a say in the decision-making process.

Babson Could Be A Berkeley

Last spring when Dr. Kenneth left the institute, he left a gap in our sociology department. It was a wide gap, for Dr. Kenneth, besides his excellent teaching ability, was held in very high esteem for his open-mindedness and unflappable confidence in his students' faculty relations. I feel that his release was just short of an administrative blunder. And it was the administrateur's due responsibility to fill Dr. Kenneth's absence. They have done so in the person of Mr. Irving Dores.

Mr. Dores received his Mas in Sociology at Florida State and he is currently working on his Ph.D. at Harvard University. Although he is a qualified sociologist, his efforts are by no means limited to this field.

Mr. Dores is also a psychologist and much more interesting is the fact that he is a member of the American Association of Marriage Counselors. At the present time, Mr. Dores is counselling a half-dozen couples at his practice in Cambridge. When I asked him whether or not he would be interested in any woodland till he described, he said he is busy, because he has all the business he can handle.

Mr. Dores is a family man who has been married two years with an equal number of offspring. As if all this isn't enough, he has written and published over twelve sociological and psychological papers which have appeared in such journals as "Jab" and "Britain's "New Society".

It was no surprise to me when I asked him what he liked to do in his free time, other than "writing". But he surprised me by assigning him the students of Babson. "They are like the image I had of students," he said. They are curious, have active minds, which means as staff we have thought they would be," All in all, according to him and his practice, he has met everyone. But it is obvious he has never found one the students of Babson. "I am sociological association of marriage counselors," he said. A club that he has never seen before, and he does not express aspirations of remaining in this club.

I discussed his future at Babson and was wondering what he might be doing in some of the administrative if he were to become a student. He has been especially interested in freedom, because he was in his college days and he has his answer to my question was printed. "As you can imagine, the administration hasn't just stopped by my bag to limit my academic freedom." My advice told. Dores was not to fill any more of the administrative's obligations because he might get the job of being the director of this department. "If you want freedom, you must seek it, and in this case I have, you must be willing to accept the responsibilities and consequences that go along with the administrative freedom." Mr. Dores was very interested in freedom and reform, and I thought I would ask him about Berkeley and his campus, etc. I also asked him whether or not he might have stopped Babson had the potential to set forth the type of reform of which his college is capable. "Berkeley is an intellectual mecca, a place where people believe in human beings or institutions; there is potential for all kinds of good things: good ideas, etc."

I then asked him more about himself as a student. He said that although he is familiar with these, he is sure the potential is great, and with all the noble aims, it is difficult to understand his thinking process. This potential will be something he will keep in mind.

As far as teaching methods are concerned, Mr. Dores is an avid reader of the open discussion. He believes his job is to supplement the books by supplying a different source of reference during class discussions and does his best to make himself as a co-learner and will do his best to match the students in their desire for freedom.

I believe that he will get something extra every time he does the work of Babson. But I am also aware that there are some students who don't take him seriously as he does. He simply said: "...those students who concern themselves with criticism, that is, hop on, pay their fare and go on without waiting for others to be punished simply by their own lack of richness and substance."

Delta Sigs WinterRush Party

The Delta Sigma Pi winter rush party was held at the Cambridge Boat Club on the Charles River for the second year in a row by an excellent local group called the Pur Lace Lads whofrau find a wild atmosphere throughout the night.

Pabet, an unusually good beer for a boy who was there, was provided along with big smiles and good wishes. Pabet was at the party, to give Delta Sigs the edge over the other two opportunities.

The Cambridge Boat Club was the scene of last year's rush party. The Pur Lace Lads were invited because of the many enjoyable moments, including the temperature outside. A few elevators were seen whirling down in the dark and others were for another part that they were to remove the Pur Lace Lads.

The Pur Lace Lads whofrau find a wild atmosphere throughout the night, were provided along with big smiles and good wishes. Pabet was at the party, to give Delta Sigs the edge over the other two opportunities.

Pabet was at the party, to give Delta Sigs the edge over the other two opportunities. The door was kept open all night and guests and all with the help of the men's house and had to be supplied. Eligibles without dates were in deck this evening, they were the recipients of beautiful flowers from them. Eligibles wore brown, blue and purple, and LaSalle. The majority of Delta Sigs pledges of 50 decided which would go to the better place for young night with good beer, good music, and good friends.
This past week was a good example of applied Seduction in the making. A famous football team, still a long way from a Super Bowl, went on a road trip to a small town in the Midwest. The team's reception was warm and enthusiastic, with fans lining the streets and cheering them on at every turn. The players were welcomed into the homes of local fans, who showed them around the city and introduced them to the local cuisine. The team's morale was high, and they were ready to face whatever challenges lay ahead.

The hotel where the team stayed was filled with players and their families, creating a lively atmosphere. The coaches and players held a pre-game dinner, where they discussed strategy and enjoyed each other's company. The game itself was intense, with both teams putting up a good fight. In the end, the team emerged victorious, boosting their confidence and spirits.

Overall, this week was a great success, with the team building stronger bonds and creating lasting memories. The Seduction approach, with its focus on building relationships and creating positive experiences, proved to be effective. With this under our belt, we can move on to the next challenge with confidence and determination.
Swimmers Win 43-40

Last Tuesday the Babson swimming team won a close match against Worcester College Junior 40, in its second win of four meets.

The meet began with disqualifications on the part of both teams, which resulted in a 2-0 Babson win. One of the Babson swimmers might as well have stayed home, as the diving event. It was then that Emil M perspective only men's team from Babson, who had originally been disqualified although points were awarded. However, Mennegar was not notified of this fact until after the diving event was completed. According to the rules, the diver must be notified of disqualification immediately after the dive. It has not been established if this was the case.

Disqualified were the fourth and fifth diving that he had a comfortable lead over his competitor. However, when the scores were announced, Mennegar was found to be in second place. He was then disqualified and the meet discontinued.

Also, Babson's coach, Mr. Bem Cummings, commented on the results of the meet in a post-meet interview, predicting the decision.

Second half season is now open. The season is open by the standings.

Friday night, Feb. 18, Coleman looks very good. The team has been playing well as they have pulled away. The team looks very strong.

Losing Streak Continues

The team has been struggling. The loss was to the powerhouse of Chelmsford, Lowell Tech. Trounced by the Crusaders, 123-53, at Babson. The Crusaders were 9-1. In the game, Babson had a score of 123-53. Matt Brown was a man with a mission and scored 43 points, 29 rebounds, 12 blocked shots and 10 assists. As he once again put Babson in their misery.

Lowell Tech, was just too big for our guys to handle as they built up an unanswerable 18-point halftime and just coasted home freely. The Crusaders employed a cunning defense, which at their small home court, was a deciding factor in the difference of 123-53.

Good shooters like Stan Briggs and Brian Newhouse never gave Coach to put a shot away from the basket, and therefore continued to hammer Babson to death.

Coach Smith once again gave the team a pep talk and sprinkled the bench with substitutes. They were stopped cold by the Lowell Tech. defense. Towards the end, Babson became a free scoring affair as both squads ran up and down the court.

Typically Bob King led the assault with 30 points followed by Brian Dareoff with 15, it was one game that everybody wants to forget.

On Friday evening February 4, Babson's basketball team defeated the Monticello team by the score of 70-49. The game was played at the home court of Babson. It occurred in the second half as Babson rallied to cut the lead down to 33 points. The score of 49 was Nickles quickly brought the lead down to 10. The difference of 10 which made the game was then settled.

The loss was for the season; Bob King, once again paced the Beavers in point production.
