President Barefoot Welcomes Students To Campus

BRIAN M. BAREFOOT
PRESIDENT OF BABSON COLLEGE

Welcome to Babson! You are entering the #1 small business school in the world. You came here for a first-class education— and I am certain that we will meet and even exceed your expectations. You will find that you are now at a place where students come first and where opportunities await you on many fronts.

What does that mean? From your very first day, you will acquire and use skills that will prepare you to enter the business world—and to succeed in whatever you set out to do. These skills will be learned in business courses, but you will also find that your liberal arts courses will be valuable in both your professional and personal lives. We hope you will take advantage of the range of opportunities offered while you are on campus.

Of course, don’t assume that your college experience is just limited to the classroom. We offer more—much more—and we hope you will take advantage of it. There are over 60 different student clubs and organizations on campus, and the Babson Student Organization Carnival on Friday, Sunday, is a wonderful place to get involved. Every club and organization will be there, and we’ll be recruiting new members.

And don’t forget athletics. Babson has 23 varsity athletic teams that play more than 150 home games a year. Also, check out our club and intramural sports, and visit the Webster Center where you will find open gym hours and excellent facilities.

You will want to participate in a lot of activities, because the world of business is about people—and campus clubs and organizations as well as athletics are where you will get to meet and know many of your classmates from different backgrounds. In fact, you can learn as much from each other as you did from the varied experiences that you bring to Babson as from your classes. I think you will find that this is time well spent: you will make lifelong friends while gaining experiences that will be a real advantage when you graduate.

My final thought to you is this: start today to familiarize yourself with everything Babson has to offer. Don’t wait: explore the opportunities offered on our campus, take advantage of all that is available to you. Get to know those around you, and be resourceful for you if you need advice or support. Seek them out—they are here to help.

So, you are here to learn and you are here to enjoy the Babson experience. I hope that you will enjoy meeting you and your classmates on campus this fall. For you, this is an opportunity for both fun and growth, and I hope that you are ready for another year of challenges, accomplishment—and fun. I wish all of you much success in the coming year.

Public Safety Making Changes for the New Year

LOUIS BELOTT
NEWS EDITOR

Over the relatively quiet summer months, some departments on campus see their workload reduced and are somewhat relieved from dealing with the demands of students every day. Out of all the departments on campus, the one that may miss the students the most is Public Safety.

Probably contrary to what most students believe, “We’re happy to see the students back,” says Babson Police Chief John Jackson. “A major part of our jobs is interacting with the students and we miss a lot of that when most of the students are away.”

During the summer months however, a few changes took place within the department. Officer Luis Arevalo, who had spent two years at Babson, left the school in July to enter the Waltham Police Academy and will be graduating later this year. Officer Arevalo was very popular among the student body and many were disappointed to hear the news. “Luis was the best—we would lock ourselves out of our rooms on purpose and request him to come let us in,” said Crystal Cohen ’03.

Also leaving over the summer was Sergeant Tony Deldon, who regularly oversaw the midnight shift. A search for his replacements is ongoing.

In addition, there has been an effort by Campus Life to make students more aware of the college’s alcohol policy and to strengthen enforcement. Many students will have already noticed the changes. According to Chief Jackson, in the state of Massachusetts, there are few forms of identification that can reasonably be relied on: a Massachusetts driver’s license, passport, military ID or a state issued liquor license.

As a result, the department is testing a new license reader in order to aid officers at campuses...
Dr. Tofias Encourages A Healthy Return To Campus

BRUCE TOFIAS M.D.
COLLEGE PHYSICIAN

Welcome back! I feel like the eternal misbehaved student. I was up on campus last week for some beginning of the year "stuff." It was great... a divisional meeting with energy, excitement and lots of good old friends and new yet to be friends. I was pumped. Right then and there I committed to writing my one year dormfree Press article. The embryonic inklings of the first article were fertilized.

Well here I am, missing the first deadline for copy, having pulled a near all-nighter doing non-school related activities. Apparently even if many gray hairs lay claim to your scalp, proscription can always rear below the surface.

Welcome anew and welcome back. I look forward to seeing many of you. I am the College Physician and I love my job! You are the reason for that joy. As students you bring a melange of spirit, enthusiasm, excitement and naiveté. You have varied backgrounds of culture and experience that bring pleasure and challenge to medical interactions.

The Health Center is here to serve you. We hope that each and every interaction will make you feel that way. Our goal simply stated is to "cure often, comfort always." If we are not meeting this goal, please let us know. Your diversity ratesee challenges because we may not know your expectations, background and previous experiences. We hope with meaningful sharing that we will learn and thus be a more effective part of your health care team.

Humans are complex and through the interaction of the psyche and soma, mind and body, one's health can take many turns. We hope to provide opportunities for you to gain better understanding of yourself by being caring and expert, gaining insight and wellness.

ITSD Brings Wireless Internet To Dorms

plus available, even in the event of an unforeseen outage on one line. Under nominal conditions, the network will also be much faster, and will slow down less during peak usage hours.

Wireless Dorms

Perhaps the most exciting new development in the IT department is the installation of 250 wireless access points which are designated to blanket each and every one of the dorms on campus. The program, which was initiated at the beginning of this summer, was designed both to increase the quality of life for students living in the residential dorms, and to facilitate group work in the dorms. The 250 new wireless access points are designated so that there are no more than 20 students connecting to each one.

This ensures that every student will have the best possible speed and bandwidth at all times. The access points are made by Synco and are designated for corporations or schools such as Babson.

After installing the access points, the ITSD department spent a lot of time monitoring the system to ensure that everyone is getting coverage. The network administrators have already determined that two more access points are needed in Park Manor North, but otherwise their initial estimates were spot-on.

Further on down the line, ITSD plans to use these same access points to upgrade the systems in Reynolds, Horn Library, and Olin Graduate School. For now, the managers and staff of the ITSD department hope that all of these new changes will allow them to better serve the Babson community with faster, more reliable, and more flexible IT systems.

Babson-Olin offers a wide array of opportunities for self exploration. Laurie Mageon, the health educator, offers many programs and is willing to try new ones. Her energy and enthusiasm are contagious.

The Health Center is on the ground floor of Hollister. We are easily reached in many ways. Telephone access for questions and appointments is 181-239-4257. Appointments are available weekdays hours 8AM - 5:30PM with nurse practitioners and I do a physician clinic every Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

You will usually be greeted by our congenial administrative assistant, receptionist, Jame Keane. Appointments are available with any of the nurse practitioners: Cheryl Solomon, Margie Sullivan, Diane Mitchell, Rita Sheppard, Thelma Lakes (our Director) and our newYet familiar Sue Adamson (who has completed her nurse practitioner requirements and now practices in this new role). Each nurse practitioner is well versed in various medical issues and may have specific areas that she has a particular interest. Physician back up is available at all times.

In the hours that the clinic is not open and you have an urgent problem, a physician is available for telephone consultation and can reach by calling my private office line, 617-964-1640. Campus security, 761-228-5005, is ready for emergencies and can facilitate additional emergency responders quickly. We have an excellent relationship with Newton-Wellesley Hospital a member of the Partners Health Care Network, which includes Massachusetts General Hospital and the Brigham and Women's Hospital. The Newton-Wellesley Hospital Emergency Room is within 3 miles of campus.

In the future this column will deal with medical issues of your or my choosing. If you have an idea or question email me at tofias@babson.edu.

sponsored events such as Knight Parties and Pub nights.

While there have not been any excessive problems with phony licenses at Babson, should a student be caught and charged, the offense is a felony violation punishable by up to 5 years in prison. Furthermore, students subject to bonding upon employment, a common occurrence in the financial service industry, may be denied the opportunity to work with a felony on record.

According to Babson's student handbook, "Babson College is committed to encouraging and facilitating responsible student decision making." To what extent the college will be able to have the intended positive effect remains to be seen.

News Briefs for the Week of September 6

SGA Elections

The first meeting for this year's student government was held yesterday, which included the swearing-in of the new executive board.

Nomination forms for students interested in running for the House of Representatives are due by this Monday at 6 pm. Elections will take place the following Thursday and Friday. For more details see the SGA section on Blackboard.

Bloomberg Certification

This program, offered each semester by the library, allows students to become certified in using the Bloomberg system. Interested students should attend one of the Infosystem sessions being held twice daily throughout the week of September 13th. The class is free to juniors and seniors and meets every Tuesday night for six weeks, concluding on November 20th.

Women in Business Travel to Babson

Babson College will sponsor the 2004 Women's Leadership Conference, "You Are Here: Scoping out the Present, Mapping out the Future" on Friday, October 15th. The Center for Women's Leadership (CWL) at Babson is organizing the all-day, 7th annual event. For more information visit http://www.babson.edu/cwl/conference.

Babson Unites With Jed Foundation to Aid Students

THELMA LAKE
DIRECTOR OF HEALTH SERVICES

Last spring Babson entered into a partnership with the Jed Foundation to deliver an important and valuable on-line mental health support resource for the Babson student community. This resource leverages the anonymity of the Internet and its popularity among college students. Ulifeline is intended to serve as another resource to help students cope with the everyday stresses they may experience in their lives.

The Jed Foundation was founded in 2002 by Phillip and Donna Satow in memory of their son Jed, who committed suicide. I have personally met and talked with the Satows, and have found their dedication and commitment to disseminating information about suicide risk factors refreshing and heart warming.

We hope Ulifeline.com, at Babson will serve as a valuable web-based resource, one which not only gives students a direct link to Babson's health center and counseling program but also provides quick access to important mental health information.

This resource can be accessed via a link from www.babson.edu/health or directly at www.ulifeline.com.

Students are able to download information about various mental and physical health concerns, ask questions, and seek help anonymously via the Internet.

The Ulifeline web site serves as a great resource for enhancing the existing mental health services to the student population in a new but familiar medium, and complements the existing mental health information that students now receive.

In addition to the information on mental health issues which Ulifeline provides, it also gives linkages to other wellness sites. We strongly encourage members of our community to take advantage of this great resource.

Please take a moment to peruse the site, and, should you have any questions, please don't hesitate to contact me at 781-239-4257.
Vietnam! Enough Already!

Why are we focusing so much about who did what during a war over 30 years ago? Aren’t we in a war right now? Aren’t there more pressing issues today?

After weeks of Swift Boat Veterans for Truth ads blasting presidential hopeful Senator John Kerry for all sorts of treachery and mendacity, the media have again shifted the focus to President George W. Bush’s Air National Guard service after dozens of new records have been released by the Department of Defense under the Freedom of Information Act. The Boston Globe reported today that President Bush held short of meeting his Texas Air National Guard duty during the Vietnam War. "We know that John Kerry was in Vietnam," said Democratic Party Chair Terry McAuliffe this week. "The question, Mr. President, is where were you, Sir?"

Who cares?
The President has countered by asking, "Senator Kerry, I served my country honorably in the Air National Guard during the Vietnam War. I could have been called up for combat missions over Vietnam, although I was not, but it seems like you believe that only those people who were combat veterans in Vietnam are suitable to be president. Does this mean that you do not believe that a woman is qualified to be president today? Do you believe that Condoleezza Rice is unqualified, because she was not a combat veteran, in the National Security Adviser?"

Did John Kerry volunteer to serve or did he try to avoid serving at first? I don’t care. Did a young George W. Bush get into the National Guard with the help of his powerful father to avoid serving in Vietnam? I don’t care. Is Kerry a war hero who earned his medal or was he an opportunist who applied for his own awards, even when one was self-inflicted? I don’t care. Was Bush absent from some of his National Guard duties? I don’t care. Did Kerry give his own medals onto the White House lawn or someone else’s? I don’t care, I don’t care!

Each side hopes that the Vietnam issue will benefit their campaign. The Democrats think Kerry’s service in Vietnam makes him look tough on defense which is why Kerry has made his Vietnam service the center of his campaign. Meanwhile, the Republican strategy is to turn Kerry’s strength into a weakness and they believe that the Swift Boat ads make Kerry look more like a flip-flopper and an ambitious and disingenuous political hack. Both are using the Vietnam "issue" to cover up real issues: the War on Terror (including Operation Iraqi Freedom and the reconstruction), the economy, and the Culture War.

Senator Kerry was right in 1992 when he said that service in Vietnam doesn’t matter in defense of presidential hopeful Bill Clinton, a Vietnam draft-dodger. "I’ve been personally to express my anger, as a veteran," Kerry told National Public Radio just before the 1992 election, "that a president who would stand before this nation in his inaugural address and promise to put Vietnam behind us is now breaking yet another promise and trying to use Vietnam and service in order to get himself re-elected." Would that both sides would follow his advice today.

TRIM: More Than Just a Dining Hall

SAM SHAPPY
STAFF WRITER

Over the summer, I missed a lot of things - friends, my home, and, well - I missed Trim. I’ll admit it. About six weeks into my summer, I was wishing there was a "Trim" close by. Until Trim Dining Hall had come into my life, I had never realized how much time and effort I put into preparing my food and well, the art of eating.

Imagine a life without Trim: It is cold, grey, and lonely. When you are hungry, you must carefully think about what you want to eat, and then you pray that it is readily available. If it’s not in your kitchen (which, as I found, it usually isn’t) you have three choices: you can order in, you can starve, or you must endeavor to drive, sometimes miles upon miles, to a location that sells the food of your heart content. Maybe it’s pretzels, maybe it’s not. And if it’s not ready to eat - there goes a few more hours of your evening. You must now prepare to invest in a microwave, a stove, oven, cooking oil, pans, dishes, and you may even have to invest in soap.

A life without Trim is a life of mystery and wonder. How does Joeefina magically arrange the turkey and honey mustard inside the thin and fragile whole wheat wrap so the wrap doesn’t fall apart? How is it that Maria knows which sauce I like on my stir fry - even when I can’t remember its name? How is it that there is always milk in those huge silver containers? Where do the desserts on the dessert tray come from? Did the chicken come before the egg?

Not only is Trim a place of amazing food, but social events. For instance, September 12th is Grandparents Day. I’m not sure what that means, but it is an excellent opportunity. September 16th is Trim’s "Rock the Block" dinner. Once again, I’m not sure what it entails, but I’ll be there.

Without Trim there would be no Trim sits. What would we do to avoid homework and pressing social engagements without Trim? As I’ve outlined above, Trim is an exceptional college dining hall, and an exceptional place to hang out. Many, however, do not appreciate Trim in all its glory. Consequently, Trim, and the Trim employees, do not always get the respect they deserve. As a Trim Patron, I’ve outlined a few suggestions so everyone can enjoy the Gordon Trim Dining Hall Experience.

First: Clean up after yourself. Trim, although amazing, is not L’Esperance. When you are finished with your food, don’t leave it on the table for someone else to pick up. Take it over to the Tray Conveyor belt.

The Tray Conveyor Belt is not a belt to precariously place your glass of milk or your bowl of cereal. It is a TRAY (emphasis on tray) conveyor belt, therefore, place your food on a tray.

Push your chair in.

When having conversations in Trim, have them sitting down, rather than standing in front of the salad bar.

If there are no glasses in the large red crate next to the designated beverage area, yet the crates underneath it are full, take the empty top crate off and put it on the floor and proceed to get a glass.

Say "Please" and "Thank you".

And finally, don’t mix the peanut butter with the jelly. If they were supposed to be mixed they would be in one container, rather than separate containers. That’s basic Trim etiquette, everyone should know.
China Rises As Global Power in the World

VIRAL KAPADIA
INTERNATIONAL EDITOR

As China embarks on a new era with its recently reformed government, it is also seeing a growing sense of power and dominance in the East Asian region, and even other parts of the world. China is now a major player in global trade, political, cultural, and financial capital of Asia.

With the end of the 2004 Olympic Games, investments in structural growth and development for the country have strongly increased since the world will now be looking to see how the Chinese will put their up show at the Olympics in Beijing.

For those of you interested in investments in this sector, Schuster and COLUTE's Class A Fund is one that has the highest potential for growth as recommended by an expert at Scudder Investments.

The current fund is at a low point and it was two years ago, but it is expected that perhaps with the growth of investments in this sector, the fund will shoot up.

The fund consists of Japanese construction and structural development companies, its symbol is FJEX. China is entering new roads that can wrap multiple times around the world, and these Japanese companies are part of the group striving to make it possible.

China is also gaining an upper hand in international trade and foreign policy issues which is signaling to major world powers such as the United States and Japan of the hostagetakers and frightened everyone, including the terrorists.

Shortly after, the leader blew up two tunnels too late because they were taken by surprise and shooting had already begun.

With hundreds of innocent lives and children are grieving at the siege ended with a standoff between troops and the terrorists.

Tuesday, tens of thousands of stunned, angry, and sad Russians mourned the massacre of over 335 people.

With 10 of the terrorists from Arab countries, the Russian government believes that Chechen rebels were involved but many of the terrorists were also part of an international group.

Russia's FSB intelligence agency said it was a $10 million dollar reward for information that may lead them to the capture of two Chechen leader's death.

While this terrible terrorist act is being heavily investigated, many parents are worried if this great loss of hostages could have somehow been avoided.

UBS Emerges As Leader In International Banks

VIRAL KAPADIA
INTERNATIONAL EDITOR

UBS, formerly known as the Union Bank of Switzerland, has a long history of success, and mergers and acquisitions in the last five years, AG is not only a leader in its industry in terms of its services, but among employees compensation as well. Despite the fact that operating costs fell, the company still raised its employment compensation for specific areas.

UBS is a Swiss Bank with international offices, and a global perspective which established its current name in 1912. UBS now consists of fourteen other firms that have emerged into what the company is today.

UBS consists of three divisions that currently exist, and there will soon be a fourth division that will be added to the company with its recent acquisition of Charles Schwab Capital Markets for $225 million.

The company consists of UBS AG, which is the Global Asset Management, UBS Investment Bank, which was formerly UBS Warburg, and UBS Financial Services, which was formerly Croesus.

Among its European counterpart such as Deutsche Bank, Credit Suisse, and HSBC, UBS is a leader in terms of compensation/revenue ratio. The firm has 65,000 employees all over the world with 29,000 in Switzerland, 10,000 in the rest of Europe, 25,000 in the United States, and 4,000 in Asia. UBS has built a very strong base in areas such as equities trading and high yield bonds. The company is also increasing its share of the Mergers & Acquisitions sector, and was recently a part of Google's acquisition of YouTube.

In addition UBS has the most global assets under management with $7.84 trillion. It competes with Deutsche Bank with $1.18 billion, Fidelity Investments with $1.05 billion, Credit Suisse with $791 billion, and Citigroup with $491 billion.

UBS was reported in Forbes as being one of the most successful in the American dominated investment banking business. UBS's last twelve years of successful mergers and rise in desire for profits is what brought the company to enter into the top elite list. (Sources: Financial Times, Credit Citigroup (Smith Barney), Merrill Lynch, Goldman Sachs, and Morgan Stanley).

UBS's chief executive who is running the firm from its headquarters in Zurich, Switzerland.

The company's next goal on expansion is in China, with the recent opening of the firm's first branch in China, which is located in Beijing.

The firm's global expansion theory is now concentrated on developing its operations in China. This move will provide customers with a wide variety of services while expanding its services to potential Chinese clientele.

UBS has also launched an aggressive marketing campaign to attract Chinese clients, with its new "You and US" slogan. UBS strives to portray the company with a personalized touch, and continues to grow in the United States. The company has also launched a similar campaign in Europe.

I can express with my personal experience and my internship with UBS this summer that the company is a global firm that has reached great heights in the United States and the world, and is on its way to being even better, and putting up a very strong rivalry among its competitors.

UBS has recently hired several top-notch talents that reach far beyond the basic needs. When a client opens an account and begins a relationship with UBS, the client has their financial plans, and future plans beyond them.

UBS is currently an international financial firm that has brought itself up through many decades, and with the collaborative work of the firms it entered with, it will grow to be even better and bigger in the future.
Find Happiness in the Hatred of Others

KENNETH TO

The 2004 Super Bowl had to be one of the worse experiences in sports for me. To see the Patriots win made my stomach hurt as cheers rang through the Babson campus. Even worse was seeing that punk-kid Tom Brady receiving the Superbowl MVP. Especially considering Brady was average at best.

If you’re a New Englander, you should be happy that some of our students at Babson are heavily rooting for Patriots to fall this upcoming football season. The fact that the Patriots are good enough to garner so much hate of so many people is a sign that the Patriots are still relevant. The Chicago Bulls and Boston Celtics are great examples of teams I would love to hate, if they weren’t so damn bad. After Jordan’s 2nd retirement, the Chicago Bulls have been so bad I can’t even get a decent playoff series to root for them to fail, because they can’t make the playoffs period. The Celtics likewise keep making insane trades for horrible players. After Vin Baker ruined the Celtics salary cap situation, I was very happy. Then the Celtics had to go after Ricky Davis, at which point I knew they weren’t going anywhere for awhile. The irrelevancy of some of these great teams truly disappoints me. Hopefully the Patriots will still be good, but barely miss the playoffs. If not, there’s always enough hate for the Yankees. Kevin Brown breaking his hand gave me brief moment to rejoice.

On a separate note, I’m just happy to be living the world’s most hated country, gold ole’ US of A. It’s a sign that Bush is doing his job for the US, like Steinbrenner for the Yankees or Real Madrid’s management buying all the top players in the soccer world. Political analysts keep mentioning that everyone hates America recently, but personally, the moment I stop seeing US flags burning in foreign countries is the moment I get the hell out of the US equities market. My advice, take it as you will.

The Beavers began the year with a 9-0 win over Salve Regina University, but then dropped their second match to Brandeis 4-1. In the first match Co-Captain Tori Pansuto '08 started her senior campaign by eliminating the game with two goals and an assist. In the 29th minute she intercepted an errant pass from the opposing team's defense and buried the ball into the back of the net.

Then, with ten minutes remaining in the match, Pansuto took a pass from Nikki Stier '08 and shot it past a sprawling Alison Smith '07 for her second goal of the match. Five minutes later, Nichole Sorenson '08 closed the door on the match by scoring her first collegiate goal on a cross from Pansuto.

In the second match of the year, Brandeis got off to a quick start with a goal in the 13th minute. The Judges missed a tap-in but the ball went off a Babson defender for a goal on their own net. The second goal against the Beavers was more traditional than the first, when in the 49th minute Tess Castel '08 shot the ball over Babson goalkeeper Mari McCormack's '06 head from 20 feet away.

The Beavers drew to within one goal when in the 71st minute Callie Pilling '08 batted a shot off the post past Brandeis goalie Natasha Fiechik '06. However, even when Babson applied late offensive pressure, they were unable to stop the Judge's counterattack and let up two late goals to ice the match. The Beavers were out shot 21-10 in the contest.

The Beavers finished off last year with a 7-11-2 record and were 6th in their conference. Women's soccer only lost three seniors to graduation in the off season. The club is looking forward to improving this season and having a banner year as many of their key players are seniors.

The team's top player is Pansuto who is a two time All-New England and All-Conference player. She has led the team in scoring the last three years and has 72 career points. She is an excellent play maker and the catalyst of the offense. She is joined up front by second leading scorer Lauren Angelos '05 and leading freshman scorer Caitlin Cronin '07.

The Beavers defense is solidified by senior backline of Tina Stuttle '06 and Caroline Harvey '06. They are also breaking in a new goalie in McCormack who has started off the year strong in her first two appearances.

The key areas of improvement for this team will be trying to generate more scoring. Last year the team was shut out in eleven matches. The team's defense was able to keep them in many of those matches but the offense needs to come alive for the Beavers to be competitive for the NEWMAC crown.
