FME Businesses Make Spring Semester Return

CHARU SHARMA
Staff Writer

Have you looked around campus lately? It seems like every-where you look there is a poster, advertisement or marketing pitch for some FME business on campus. Along with the bitter cold and heavy snow of a Babson winter comes the fervent hustling of students and a new herd of FME freshmen businesses establishing themselves on campus.

In fact, it’s rare to see a freshman not talking about their business. Most conversations seem to begin with “So what business are you in?” or “Did you break even yet?”

After spending the first semester brainstorming, strategizing, organizing and planning, eager freshmen return after winter break itching to swing open the doors of their small business.

Although every business may all seem the same, thirty freshmen working diligently to pull together and run semester long mini businesses, the fourteen businesses are worlds apart, selling everything from scrub pants to care packages.

The products being sold range from those with the Babson logo that are practical and convenient, like fleece scarves from Beaver Tails and durable bottles from Beaver Bottles, to the creatively innovative, like clocks with customized faces from Party Time Clocks and disposable cameras and developing from Flashback Cameras.

To make things even more interesting, several businesses are selling items that are in stanch competition with each other, such as aprons from Rabe Baby, Seehaw Wear and Simply Scrubs and furniture from Babson’s Bob’s Air Chairs and Soft Sleepers.

Furthermore, some companies are even in competition with products at the Babson Bookstore, such as Beaver Tails, which sells fleece scarves. In general, most companies are targeting the Babson community, including students, faculty, and staff, and some, like Connections, which is a

Continued On Page 2

Babson to Hire Environmental Manager

VICKY TO
News Editor

Olin College has decided to hire an environmental health and safety manager that will be working full-time for the new engineering school and part-time for Babson College. The manager will develop programs and policies for the campus.

The new manager, who will be responsible for implementing new policies, will be working with the safety department and the Babson community.

Continued On Page 3

Entrepreneurs Chronicle Startup Problems

DJ SCHEPPER
Consulting Editor

Kyle Harrison and John Luk, co-founders of Platinum Concepts Inc., visited Babson on Tuesday to speak to the community about the ups and downs of their entrepreneurial experience at the Olin Auditorium. The pair recently co-authored a book titled “The Making of an Entrepreneur” about developing their product, the MouseDriver, and their company in order to share exactly how tough starting a business can be.

“Twas this trial by fire for both of us. We didn’t know what we were doing,” Luk said.

The product is relatively simple, but still created a number of headaches. They offer a computer mouse shaped like a golf club head.

The two commented about all the issues that they have had through the course of beginning their own business, beginning with the original concept. They

Continued On Page 2

Laundry Machines Installed Without a Glitch

CHIP KOTY
Staff Writer

During Winter break the college with the help of the contractor, Mac-Grey, replaced all of the old washer/dryer systems on campus. Some of the noticeable differences thus far to the students are the increase of $0.25 per load on both the washer as well as the dryer, bringing the total to $1.25 per usage of each machine.

The machines themselves are capable of handling a higher capacity of clothing, allowing you to wash more clothes at once, which in the long run should even out the $0.25 increase per load. How have the students reacted to the new washers and dryers? Craig Anderson ‘04 had this to say, “I’m getting to do my laundry at home, but overall the price increase has not had an adverse effect on my deciding to do my laundry here at school.”

The machines are more effective in their usage of water and detergent, this means they are better on water costs for Babson and more environmentally friendly.

The washer and dryer of the past have been replaced for a few reasons. There had been quite a few problems in the past with students getting cut off of having to pay for their laundry by touching two wires together on the card access machines. Thus far this has only been a problem in Van Winkle hall during the winter of 2002, since the implementation of the new washers and dryers.

BABA Chief Jack had this to say regarding students that attempt to get their laundry done for free. “If they [the people stealing] are caught doing this they can face some serious sanctions. Unfortunately, if these petty lar-cenies and damages continue there will be actions taken that will inconvenience students.” Regardless of these new safety measures and a pledge from Chief Jack, some machines have already been tampered with, specifically in Van Winkle hall. Chief Jack feels confi-

Continued On Page 2

The Babson Free Press removes all liability for or delivery in any major Olin class. Call (617) 288-5041 or fax (617) 288-0024 for subscription and advertising information.
Mac Gray Installs New Laundry Equipment

Continued From Page 1
don that the officers will be able to hail these practices by letting students know that the washers and dryers will be removed from these areas where they are permanently tampered with.
He also had to say about these illegal practices, "the actions of a few are going to affect many."

Although the prices are increased and they are far from tämp in price, the effect of these new washers and dryers should prove to be an invaluable time saver for students, eliminating the need to keep their laundry in the machines for a second and third drying cycle.

MouseDriver Success Chronicated at Babson

Continued From Page 1

FME Businesses Begin Annual Operations

FME Businesses started up in full swing last week as companies sell items such as these scrub outfits to students and staff.

One of the most important things we have learned involve communication and the need to have fun. We realize that communication is key to the success of any group project, especially our FME business. We also have learned that this project can be a lot of fun, if the extra effort is put in to keep it that way. Running a business does take its toll on students, especially those who have taken on higher responsibility in their organizations. Anh-Dan Nguyen, CEO of Postarama comments, "I have some Postarama members that some nights I lose sleep over it because I am constantly thinking of new ideas or things to do for the business." Despite the extra stress and hard work, getting an actual business and learning to work closely with others is a business, it all seems worth it in the end. "However, all of this hard work and energy put to-towards the business has certainly paid off because of the positive and enthusiastic response we received from the Babson community." In 1919, our founder Roger Ward Babson had a vision of a new model of education. His belief was that experience is the best teacher. And what better way to learn about business than to run your own.

SPRING BREAK

The Handsome Destination
Mexico, Jamaica, Barbados & More
Online Bookings with Great Deals

THE HOTTEST DESTINATION
Mexico, Jamaica, Barbados & More
Online Bookings with Great Deals

New Weekly Web Specials!

Call 800-813-7522
www.sunsplashlounges.com

At StudentCity.com

mail that it is much tougher than people think to begin a business.
Their initial projections, which they felt confident about, called for much higher numbers than they were ever able to achieve.

They moved on to discussing their early sales efforts. Their first major golfing trip show they attended was the PGA Show in 2000. This provided a number of contacts, which helped launch their product.

They also achieved their first big sale, selling to Brooklynite, to gain notoriety. It also taught them new lessons they did not realize before.

When we came out of Wharton, we believed we'd make a lot of money, everything we touched would turn gold. What we realized is building a company like MouseDriver is a lot of work," John eventually stated.

Kyle originally came up with the idea for MouseDriver while he was consulting for a computer company in Texas. He and a col-teleague sketched the idea on the back of a napkin while waiting for some clients to meet them at a bar. He stuck with it throughout college, eventually getting some money from a professor, despite offers from other places.

Two note that although they could have achieved faster money elsewhere, they felt they've achieved the most important experience. To them, the most important part was establishing their product and building their name.

Steve Ecklund '01, a student in Professor Zachar's 'entrepreneurship' course, claims "I think that's what it is all about, penetrating your market."

In the end, Lusk noted "It's a reasonable feeling when you finally get the money."

The business finally came to fruition in the end, but it was the experiences along the way that will always stick with them.

President Barefoot Challenges Students to Show School Pride

Continued From Page 1

ever, school spirit will improve when each individual takes the initiative because they want it to improve, not because I want it to." The games ended up having a significant turnout, though many more students could have been shown up. President Barefoot referred to it as a "self-initiative thing," when students complain about school spirit, but then refuse to attend sporting events.

The finding of the quality of life survey that was published in last week's issue of The Babson Free Press showed that there is a level of unsatisfaction among students.
When asked about the survey,
President Barefoot commented,
"What is bothersome is the very large percentage of students who ranked us as poor in the class and local life and school spirit."

He also commented, "Also disputing was the perception that would not recommend Babson to a prospective student and the number who would reconsider Babson if they were to choose it all over again." The President wants students to feel happy about their decision to come to Babson.

Being an alum of the college makes President Barefoot want students to have as much fun as he did here. He says, "When I was a student here I loved every (well almost every) minute of it and I'd like the present generation of students to have the same feelings."
Babson College News Briefs for February 7th

Class Deans Launches New Website

The Office of Class Deans has launched a new web site, www.babson.edu/classdeans. Led by Jim Berrigian with the help of TITS, especially Dennis Loigno and Martha Shepperson, the office has been working on this site since the beginning of the summer. While class deans are committed to continuing to provide personalized service in the Office of Class Deans, this site should be helpful to you 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

Class Deans will be continuing to develop this site and would very much value any feedback or input that you might offer. Please log on, check it out and let them know what you think!

Major enhancements include:

- A frequently asked questions site that can answer all of your quick questions including links to policy and to our e-mail; all of our paper work is now on line including exam exam requests, independent research proposals, course work taken elsewhere, variance forms, separation forms and more; a whole section of the site is devoted to academic advising including a downloadable form for you to keep track of your degree requirements, as well as advice tailored for each class. Comprehensive listings of our disability services including our exam accommodation forms and information about programs, dates and more.

We look forward to improving our service to you and hope that you will "sign up" on the site often! If you have any questions, feel free to contact Brent Damrow at damrow@babson.edu or at extension 4377.

Writing Center Opens for Spring Semester

Writing Center Hours
Spring 2002
Babson 204
(opened Monday, February 4)
Sunday: 5-5, 7-11 P.M.
Monday: 1:15-7, 7-11 P.M.
Tuesday: 10-11, 1:45-5, 7-11 P.M.
Wednesday: 12-5, 7-11 P.M.
Thursday: 10-11, 1:45-5, 7-9 P.M.

Sign up for half hour appointments with the Writing Center on sign up sheets on the center door. Cell ext. 4365 for appointment cancellations only. Keep your eyes open for future email concerning the addition of extra hours during midterms and finals, the launch of a Writing Center workshop series and the launch of a Writing Center website.

CDO to Offer Internship Workshops

This is a reminder that CDO is offering a terrific program - "Internships 101" on Wednesday, February 13, 2002 from 6:00-8:00 PM in Serber Hall. The CDO staff and Employers will share our expertise to help you secure a valuable Summer Internship.

This program consists of the following four workshops: Resume and Cover Letter Writing, Finding the Right Internship, Interviewing for Internships, and You're Hired, Tips for Internship Success.

You may sign up to three of these workshops. Registration is required for this event and the deadline is Friday, February 8th.

If you have not already registered, and are interested in attending, please let us know which workshops you want by Friday, by submitting the registration form you received in your mailbox to CDO or calling e4215.

Public Safety Log For Days January 28 - February 4

January 28, 2002

Babson Looks for Environmental Manager

Continued From Page 1

as of now, there are four candidates that are being reviewed for the position. All candidates have an extensive background in environmental health and safety. The job requirements are a master's degree in a science or health and safety field such as environmental health, industrial hygiene, environmental engineering, or safety engineering. Babson is also currently undergoing an environmental audit by an outside consulting group. They are concentrating on facilities and practices that affect the environment. Kaplan explains, "Even though the audit is not completed, there have already been results. There are numerous changes that will benefit the environment, the College, members of the College community and the community at large.”

Some of these examples, as explained by Kaplan, are increased emphasis upon the management of cleaning materials used by Facilities, Services, the removal from campus of obsolete transformers containing PCBs, and increased emphasis upon the management of waste materials, including cooking oils.

This environmental audit should make sure that Babson is not only up to code but also doing what it can to be environmentally sound.

Reported lockouts: 63
Reported Motorist assistance: 13

January 28, 2002
8:45 A.M. - Babson Telephone Office employee reports vandalism to the telephone office; Report filed.
9:52 A.M. - Crossroads employee reports damage to the grate at the crossroads cafe; Report filed.
7:59 P.M. - Report of a larceny from the bookstore; Report filed.

January 29, 2002
5:44 A.M. - Report of a broken window at Piets Hall; Facilities notified.
11:35 P.M. - Student reports receiving 2 phone calls from an unknown party; Calls forwarded to Public Safety, student did not want to file a report.

January 30, 2002

January 31, 2002
1:29 A.M. - Report of a noise complaint on the 3rd floor Coleman hall; RA contacted to check the area.
8:35 A.M. - Report of vandalism to the Babiel van; Report filed.
10:41 A.M. - Report of a broken pane of glass at the Reynolds Center; Facilities notified.
12:13 A.M. - Request for an ambulance at the Babson Ice Rink for an eye injury; Party refused transport by ambulance, transported by police vehicle to NWH.

February 1, 2002
12:00 P.M. - Report of underage drinking Rogers Pub; Report filed.
12:05 P.M. - Report of vandalism to a motor vehicle in Coleman lot; Report filed.
4:02 P.M. - Student called to report having problems with an ex-boyfriend, a non-Babson student; Trounces notice given to the individual to stay off the Babson campus.
11:06 P.M. - Student reports receiving harassing phone calls in Van Winkle Hall; Report filed.

February 2, 2002
8:58 A.M. - Report of a fire alarm in Van Winkle Hall; Reported to be a faulty smoke detector; Facilities notified.
11:40 P.M. - Report of an alcohol violation in Forst Hall; A group of underage students found consuming alcohol on 3rd floor; Report filed.
11:42 P.M. - Report of a fire alarm Piets Hall; Pull station activated 2nd floor; Alarm reset.

February 3, 2002
12:14 A.M. - Officer reports vandalism in Knight Aud. Bathrooms.
12:24 A.M. - Officer reports alcohol violation in Knight Aud. bar area; Report filed.
1:13 A.M. - Non-Student taken into protective custody from Knight Aud.; Transported to Wellesley Police Station for booking.
2:15 A.M. - Report of a noise complaint on the first floor of Piets Hall; Area checked and the officer asked the parties to decrease the volume.
3:20 A.M. - Report of vandalism Coleman Hall; Horn to outside door found broken; Facilities notified.
4:32 A.M. - A student reports her car being broken into at the site of the BASB game; Reports file.
5:19 A.M. - A student reports a larceny of a wallet from Coleman Hall; Report filed.

February 4, 2002
12:53 A.M. - Officer of a land stereo coming from outside the building at Coleman Hall; Officer unable to locate loud music.
Student Government Association Minutes for February 6th, 2002

Emmanuel Martinez, President

Nathan Knight, Executive Vice President

Jason Orosky, VP of Finance

Andrew Foley, VP of Commerce

Jeff Greenberg, VP of Campus Activities

Ci-j Danielle Robinson, VP of Communications

Executive Vice-President - Nathan Knight

Senate meeting at 5 P.M. today.

- Jay Strong named Vice President of the Senate.

- Committee sheet within member binders for those members interested in new committees.

- Will be available on blackboard for all students.

VP Finance - Jason Orosky

- Ways and Means meeting was last night.

- Ice Hockey team received $1300.

- Bascom Networking received $3350

- Organizations are doing a great job in fundraising and allocating funds efficiently.

VP Communications - Ci-j Danielle Robinson

- SGA working on restructuring the organization to increase student interest and involvement.

- Commerce being reformed to work independently as opposed to being revised every year with the change in re-board.

- Article III Section 6 of By-Lawson the Vice-President of Commerce.

- Repeal section 6A & 6B, eliminating 6C & 6D

- Article V Section 4 (all sub points) on the Commerce committee.

- Each member of the commerce committee will be a representative of each student business.

- Also working on giving student businesses server space.

- Social Activities - Jeffrey Greenberg

- Knight party was a success.

- Winter weekend in two weeks, look for promotions around campus.

- Feb. 22 - magic show with Jeff Greenberg and Jared McNabb

President - Manny Martinez

- Events for International Week may include:

- Live Mariachi Band

- Singled out night

- Rent out a club

- Paintball

- Working on getting the pub hours extended

- Need members for SGA game committee; those interested, contact sga@basho.com

 Scheduled Business

- Commerce changes to the constitution - PASTED

- Change the 'lignite' within the constitution.

- Commerce Machine in Publishers - talked to Fred Grant and did not get a direct response - still in the process.

New Business

- House member concerned with off-campus representatives not having card access.

No Wall Street Journals easily accessible.

- extend card access hours

- make Reynolds Campus Center more lively and colorful

- RA's to monitor the dorms; not Public Safety.

- Public Safety refuses to let down their guard; Public Safety committee looking into other schools to support their case.

- Traffic Committee to let the students know that they have the option to appeal them.

- Extra gym hours should be accessible to the entire student body.

Questions, Comments, Concerns

- Commerce committee noted for a job well done: CONGRATULATIONS on all your hard work.

- Political show was hosted by BCU; would be really interesting.

Announcements

- SGA Pub Night tomorrow night @ 9pm in Roger's Pub

- 2003 Steering Committee selling roses in Trim tomorrow night during dinner.

- AAP having overnight boat trip in Reynolds 241 tomorrow @ 6:30pm

- SMA announcing their offer to promote events for organizations, and student business on campus.

Thursday, February 7th

SGA Pub Night - 9 P.M. - 12 A.M.

No Cover Charge

Friday, February 8th

Ice Hockey vs. Skidmore

7:00 P.M.

SGA to Give Out Green and White Towels

Saturday, February 9th

Men's Swimming vs. Springfield

1:00 P.M.

WINTER 2001-2002 SNOW EMERGENCY PARKING PLAN

To ensure efficient snow removal operations and the safety of the campus community, Public Safety and Facilities Services ask for your cooperation during all winter storms. The declaration of a snow emergency will be made by the Facilities Services Department via the campus e-mail system.

When a snow emergency ends, the Facilities Services Department will send a cancellation e-mail message. After the cancellation, students and college employees may resume overnight parking in snow emergency parking lots.

SNOW EMERGENCY PARKING:

During a snow emergency, vehicles must be moved from parking lots marked as "No Parking During Snow Emergencies" during the hours of 10:00 PM through 7:00 AM. Suggested overnight parking locations for temporarily displaced vehicles are the Woodland Hills main lot, lower Bryant lot, Trim lot (except at aisle ends), Coleman lot, and Forest lot. The lower level of the parking deck is CEE parking only.

It is your responsibility to move your vehicle from the designated no parking areas once a snow emergency is declared. Vehicles in violation of the snow emergency parking policy will be ticketed by Public Safety and may be towed at the owner's expense.

Whenever possible, please park at the perimeter of parking lots, so we can clear the center and park close to other cars that may be in the lot. If you are parking in a lot that has already been plowed, please park in a spot that has been cleared. The Facilities Services staff can clear parking lots more effectively if vehicles are not scattered throughout the lot.

Periodically, Facilities Services will coordinate and request the assistance of the campus community in clearing the larger campus lots such as Coleman and Trim. It is the vehicle owner's responsibility to shovel snow from around his or her car. There are a limited supply of shovels that can be borrowed from Public Safety with a student ID.
Dear Editor,

After reading last week’s “Letter to the Editor” by Chip Kety basing his analysis of a group that he wishes to idealize. His comments represent a mind that is both shallow and extremely tunnel minded. Net all is gaining is the desire to lend a little like Viskesh nor do all of them characterize or believe any of his absurd statements in his article. It is a sad sad day when such garbage can be printed in the free press.

Regards,
Peter Coetzee

---

MARIE PROKOPETS
Editor-in-Chief

Before coming to Babson in 2000, all incoming freshman were offered the use of a free laptop. This year, Kornegold makes the decision to come on his campus, so I congratulate Babson on an excellent job of developing students. These “free” laptops have become not-so-free laptops at $1370 each.

Last year my “free” laptop had its share of problems: a broken keyboard, a broken drive and a broken mouse. This year the troubles have become worse, but Babson still actually pays for these laptops.

If sophomore were given new every-day-of-the-week, in addition after the first year, then Babson would be more justified in charging students. But we still have the same laptops from last year, and they still suck.

In the past, students have asked if they could buy another laptop, but you still have to pay extra money. Babson claims that the laptops come with our computers is a great idea, I would much rather have my own laptop and handle it myself. We should at least be given the right to choose what we buy and don’t buy, shouldn’t we?

During winter session, I was supposed to go to the laptop support office to want to register with a friend and discovered that freshman and sophomores pay more per credit hour than juniors and seniors. So because Babson makes me rent a laptop from them I have to pay more money for a winter course than juniors and seniors.

I didn’t come to Babson to pay thousands of dollars just to rent a computer from them. I could go out and buy a laptop for less than $2000. Here, I am forced to rent a junk laptop from Babson.

You would think that Babson would, in all its infinite generosity, just let us keep the laptops after paying an absurd amount of money to rent it for three years, but we have to give them back.

I understand that we are good at justifying our actions, but I hope that from now on Babson tells students its obligations before charging them this amount of money and also deals with more reputable suppliers.

---

Dear Editor,

In response to the outrageous article written by one of Babson’s individuals, Adam Kornegold, I would like to address a few of the key issues he pointed out in his tirade against the excellent ITSD department at Babson College.

As an employee of a local bicycle shop, I can personally relate to this, as we never allow a customer into the workplace because, aside from being unprofessional, it is a potential liability. The laptop support department, as a whole, Babson College, is not only professional, but providing what I feel is a very professional level of service is and should also be a follower of this adage.

Another issue that Mr. Kornegold brings up is the issue of reformatting computers and his reasons why they shouldn’t be reformatted. As far as I am concerned, his knowledge on the repair of computers is as good as my 3 year old sister’s.

It is not up to Mr. Kornegold, in his infinite stupidity, to downvalue an amnesty of illegal files and programs that went on to disrupt the inherent functional characteristics of an operating system, such as Microsoft’s Windows, which thus resulted in the necessity of computer repair. Babson is in order to restore the system of a student’s IBM laptop.

Poor Mr. Kornegold was most likely very upset at the loss of his precious illegal software and decided to lash out at a group of valuable service technicians who come in to work in a position to going to classes, and strive to provide the best possible service to their fellow students.

These students, under the guise of such talent led by Mr. Dan Toselli, Mr. Greg Zelenak and Mr. Steven McCormack, are a far cry from the label of “incompetent” placed on them by Adam Kornegold.

Rather, they are talented, dedicated and intelligent students, a group of students that I would hire to work in my shop. I also had a second thought. To claim that the laptop support program was too busy to work on a computer is an outrageous statement, one that could only come from someone brought up in a work ethic crazy enough to encourage such behavior.

Kornegold also insists on blaming the department for problems that, if he had any knowledge whatsover of what goes on in ITSD, are clearly not their fault. If he had done his homework, he would have found out that all hardware repairs on laptop computers are done by our supplier, Harvard, because Babson does not have the expertise to repair laptops.

In short, I would like to announce Mr. Kornegold as an individual who criticizes are not worthy o’veven consider. I would like to make a statement on behalf of ITSD that I think they are doing a terrific job at taking care of our wonderful, diverse student body. I would also like to state that I feel that the changes going on at ITSD are an improvement on something already inherently good, and that I look forward to working with this commendable department in my future years at Babson College.

Tom Lydon

---

The Babson Free Press

ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICERS

MARIE PROKOPETS, Editor-in-Chief

DICTIONARY OF THE WEEK

JOURNALS

The Babson Free Press (ISSN 0745-7807) is published weekly during the academic year by the Babson College, Babson Park, MA 02467. Subscription rates: $25.00 for 9 issues; $50.00 for a full academic year. Both rates are good for the period of fall, winter, spring, and summer issues. Annual subscription cost to non-students: $50.00. The Babson Free Press is also published as a book, "The Babson Free Press: A Student Newspaper for the Babson Community," available from the Babson College bookstore. SEMESTER PRICE: $25.00. The Babson Free Press is available online at www.babson.edu/freepress. Submissions should be sent to freepress@babson.edu. The Babson Free Press welcomes submissions from all students, faculty, and staff. Address all communications to The Babson Free Press, Babson College, Babson Park, MA 02467. Copyright © 2000 by The Babson Free Press, Babson College, Babson Park, MA 02467. All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced without the written permission of the Babson Free Press.

ABSTRACT: Robyn Dettmer's Letter to the Editor published on February 9, 2000. Copyright © 2000 by The Babson Free Press, Babson College, Babson Park, MA 02467. All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced without the written permission of the Babson Free Press.
Beer: It's Not Just for Breakfast Anymore

MARK WAITING
OPINIONS EDITOR

It's Sunday afternoon and you have just woken up. Your head is pounding and your body is-call paper is spinning and you think that you slept with that miscellaneous pink elephant again.

How do you know when you truly have become an alcoholic? Is it when you talk about bartenders by their first name and expect everyone to know who you're talking about?

Or is it when you are alcoholic when you wash out the dishes, but there are only glasses, and they all have little umbrellas?

Sometimes it's determining when to stop can be difficult for people. I wouldn't know of course because I am not old enough to drink.

Having studied the social climate by conducting in-depth research on the effects of alcohol on the psyche, it has become abundantly apparent to me that many students at this school are two steps away from becoming full-blown alcoholics.

The scene is something with knocking back some of grandpa's moonshine every once in awhile that provided that you're 21, but when you start losing arguments with inanimate objects I'd admit you have a problem.

Some claim that they drink because they are so high off George Bush's speeches, while others claim that they believe alcohol is the elixir of the fifth food group.

But when it comes down to it, the real reason that many students drink excessively is because there is nothing else worth doing. Comparing Bабон's social and for me that is a larger school like UMASH Amherst is like comparing a regular bus to the Waterber, we simply don't measure up.

Many students would rather read 'The Wall Street Journal' than participate in any kind of physical activity, which pretty much explains why the 'freshmen fifteen' is actually the freshman thrity. And since most students at large have decided to make majors on campus suffer with a 60/40 ratio of guys to girls, many turn to the bottle instead of trying their luck with the opposite sex.

So, when trying to figure whether or not you are an alcoholic, please don't ask yourself a few simple questions: Does your job interfere with your drinking? Do you blink at a hangover? Does the back of your head hurt: because it keeps getting hit with the toilet seat? If you answered 'yes' to any of these questions, it may be time to admit that you have a problem and that going to IMC hung over is not the answer.

Sure, stumbling into a party while wasted seems fun at first, but what happens tomorrow when you realize that you mistakenly told someone that you were going to marry her and that you would buy her some nice new chldhes for her new job as a teacher, because that is what you thought looked ugly?

Next time you begin to think Rosie O'Donnell is sexier than the purple dinosaur is 'cang funny,' remember to think before you drink and stay within your limits. As former mayor and talk show host Jerry Springer once said, 'coffee is for closers and drinks are for selves and each other.'

To Sharon and Arafat: This Isn't Kindergarten Anymore

GABRIEL SCHAFFEN
STAFF WRITER

As both a few and a liberal, it is hard for me to take sides when it comes to the Palestinian-Israeli conflict currently brewing in the Middle East.

On the other hand, the Palestinian Authority has a right to want a land for its people - a people who have been dispossessed against the Israeli government for almost 53 years. So when PA leader Yasser Arafat published an editorial in 'The New York Times' on Sunday condemning the terrorist attacks that have taken the lives of innocent Israelis, I was once again torn.

In 'The New York Times' Arafat states that, "no degree of oppression and no level of desperation can ever justify the killing of innocent civilians." While I agree with Arafat on this point. If we are to believe that a terrorist's existence is a product of peace being rendered under his administration, he would be more acceptable. Instead, Sharon stalls while the Americans make time to meet with him.

But in truth, neither side is doing its part to stop the violence. As I have stated over and over again, no one is winning the games. Arafat continues to ignore the fact that a ship with over 50 tons of ammunition was caught attempting to smuggle weapons into Israel from Jordan. As for PA's tanks, I don't think that peace is a viable option because terrorists are in known locations, ready to be taken into custody.

In kindergarten, when another student hit me, I hit him back. If this scenario, both parties were sent to the corner. Time was lost and the possibility of the situation changing, this pattern would continue until the two of us were old enough to understand the importance of discussion and negotiations.

Both the PA and Israel need to stop this mess by really trying and much harder to achieve peace. Until this happiness, they will just keep being asked to make peace, which is why they will lose much more than their chances.

Dear Editor,

Sir, I am an American. I had to take time off my job of shoveling manure and cleaning toilets to write this letter to the editor. I also apologize in advance for anything unintelligible I might say, for I am an American and don't have us sophisticated a brain as Mr. Arafat.

I am a minority on Babo's campus. I speak only partial American. So many times I have to rephrase what I am saying. I am nothing but confused and perplexed by the many complexities of these god-like international students that Mr. Arafat speaks of.

Let's take a look at Mr. Arafat's opinion, "People who tend to dress similarly have similar interests." I don't think, even if I needed to, that I would be able to comment on this, but before developing a such complex hypothesis for itself, maybe I could meet with Mr. Arafat someday on Newton Street and he can explain to me over a cup of coffee a better mind to me. I think, I am not but a dumb lowly American who pays not more than a buck for his coffee.

"Every person who drives a Porche or any other expensive car is known by everyone in school and the international community," I, myself, cannot name one person who drives such a car. But then again, I am but an unintelligent American minority.

I bet, although I am not a gambling man, that if I went to the junkyard and shaved out $100, a lifetime of savings for us Americans, and bought it a fancy-squeezed stilted everybody would know my name too.

"Similarly we see the international students tend to hang out in certain circles, " Mr. Arafat said. I wish Mr. Arafat had hit the nail on the head. I could never afford to buy the printer paper necessary to print out one of the numerous free admission coupons to those clubs that are littered in my inbox.

Maybe one day you could loan me a piece of paper, so that I could enter such a high-class facility. Most of my days, and many a night, I spend surfing the web and buying things on trims, so I can save money by not purchasing a meal plan.

They (international students) love flirting with girls." You are quite right, Mr. Arafat, I have studied that. But, Arafat hit the nail on the head for what such an execution. Every night I go home and dream about being an international student so that I would have the ability to flirt.

You were definitely right about one thing, "Babo nationals have a culture of their own." This is a culture I'm glad not part of. I have been all around the world and have just met a group of people who hold an arrogant view of superiority over others they find less fortunate. If you'd like the versioned email, e-mail me at byronshin@baboon.edu.

Brent Yorozinski

Chip Kety
Babson Intramural Program Misses Mark

DJ Schecke
CONSULTING EDITOR

I was gearing up for my annual intramural basketball tournament, which is a remarkable testament to the competitiveness of our students. But I found that on the 0-4 mark that my five on five basketball team was getting ready for each match, I didn’t know what to expect, just that we needed to work on our strategy. Too many people sign up. Too many people at Babson?

How could this be happening? Every year, I’ve played for the past two years we have assumed the position while the only team that we have been competing against up 100 points. But this year, the catchphrase is "being not good" than more times than Wally Suzuki whenguarding Vince Carter, as you thought that was possible.

So how does a program that is meant to include everyone, to have as much participation as possible, deny some people the right to compete. The league was only looking to include 12 teams at most and accepted 16, it was really why can’t it have number 17?

It’s set up with four weeks, four games each team. It’s certainly not a round robin schedule.

Some Babson students might find humor in beginning entrepreneurial ventures to take advantage of others.

Dear Editor,

I find it sad that students who are so unaware of what is going on at Babson yell and shout about opinions as facts prior to checking their story. Adam Kersholm was sentry mentioned at length in the article on ITSD and there are a few misconceptionsthat I feel must be cleared up for the Babson Community.

Before the continuation of this, I feel it is important to tell everyone about myself. I am a senior at Babson, have served on the SGA Executive Board, sat on the decision-making board and most recently I work as an employee at ITSD.

First of all, it is important to note that ITSD, as it is currently configured, is three distinct and separate entities. There is the desktop support, which aids mostly faculty, there is the help desk, which fields calls, and finally there is laptop support where I am currently employed.

Problems with Vista and Blackboard can be difficult to understand or comprehend, but it is important to note that these are cutting edge technologies.

It was not long ago that students used to line up for hours getting to class. The drawback of the current system is much less than the drawbacks of previous ones. One issue I believe Adam has is everything is perfect, and if there is one thing we know in this world it is that nothing is perfect, especially technology.

In my time at Babson, I have seen great strides from the days of Globenbot to the current, much more stable, system we have today. While you may want to knock the system, why not look back and see the improvements we have made and not only the negative aspects of new technology. I am sure in time that this issue will be solved and will operate smoothly.

Secondly, I would like to address the issue with lab computers. The biggest problem with lab computers is the users. I am not saying this to knock anyone, but many times they are mistreated, without any idea of how the computer works.

This happens on a minute-by-minute basis, which cannot be monitored continuously. If students are more willing to take better care of lab computers, I am fairly certain they would operate better. However, we see issues develop more and more I am sure a new monitoring system will be put in place to ensure computer integrity and usability.

Finally, I think it is important to look at the student laptop services. Adam says "The main concern of most students is that the laptop service department often replaces broken computers with broken computers." However, nowhere in his article does he enumerate these people to back up his out-

Anant Patel

Want to Help Express the

Views of the Babson

International Population?

Interested in Sharing Your Experiences with the Campus?

Call x4229 or 5542

Anant Patel

Wanted to Help Express the Views of the Babson International Population?

Interested in Sharing Your Experiences with the Campus?

Anant Patel

Wanted to Help Express the Views of the Babson International Population?

Interested in Sharing Your Experiences with the Campus?
Euro Finally Enters Paper Circulation

ASHAY MEHTA
STAFF WRITER

The euro is the single currency of the European Monetary Union, which was adopted by eleven member states on January 1st, 1999. The eleven member states are Belgium, Germany, Spain, France, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Austria, Portugal, and Finland. Greece became the twelfth member state to adopt the euro on January 1st, 2001.
The European Heads of State at the European Council meeting in Madrid on December 19-20, 1995 chose the name "euro". The new current currency, euro, was put into circulation on January 1st, 2002, with some 320 million people in the twelve nations prepared to say "Happy new euro" and rang out old currencies like the French franc, the German mark, Dutch guilder and Italian lira.
The euro has chosen to stay outside the Euro, along with Denmark and Sweden. Businessmen look to the future with Europe, which already has been doing business in euros, and various ships even accept the euro. By embracing the euro, they will share a single currency. While this may be difficult, there is easy to compare prices, eliminate the need for currency exchanges for travelers and serve as a symbol of political unity in Europe.
Economically, the euro is expected to bring a variety of benefits. Supporters argue that having all prices denominated in euros will bring down the cost of goods and services across the euro-zone, simply by eliminating the differences within the EU very transparently.

Some 14 billion brand new euro notes have been printed and over 50 billion coins minted.

Campaigns are underway to familiarize the man in the street with the euro equivalent of older currencies. The old notes are to be shredded first, most all states include coins in landfills. The old coins are sold as scrap metal.

The European Central Bank recently said that the massive task of replacing twelve European currencies with euro notes and coins is nearly complete, with about 95 percent of all cash transactions taking place in the new currency.
The euro was expected to challenge the mighty dollar for global supremacy. For the first time since the end of WWI, the US dollar will be a serious competitor. In what amounted to be the largest financial transaction in history, the currencies of twelve European nations were replaced by one. So far it hasn't replaced the dollar, and experts say it may be years before the transition takes a serious run at the world's premier currency.

Airliner Industry Goes Through Massive Reconstruction

JACK S. PHPELS
STAFF WRITER

The post September 11th airline industry is a troubled one, not just in the United States, but also around the globe. However, companies worldwide have managed sufficiently stable financial positions, with the help of government subsidies, to help stave off the industry as demand slowly rises back towards 1990s levels.

The aviation industry is by far the most competitive market has already remedied lost routes and bankrupt agencies without leaving prices too low for potential profitability.

With the shutdown of Swissair last fall, Crossair, a more distributed and strongly backed sister airline, is picking up the Swiss routes left behind. Crossair will be adding Swiss routes of twenty-six short-haul (and twenty-six long-haul flights starting in early March. This service is being rebranded by the Swiss government, currently dubbed the "Project Phoenix."

Other international airlines have formed routes and in some partnerships to increase efficiency in handling their limited number of passengers. Airlines like "Star", a joint operation of United Airlines and Lufthansa, and "SkyTeam," combining the efforts of Delta, Air France, and Aeromexico.

The advantages to operating under this combined idiom stem primarily from the regulation circuit curbing unnecessary service. Because many airlines are nationally operated, these partnerships will allow companies to gain additional routes and streamline travel, as well as offering customers broader frequent-flier programs and simplified ticketing.

One major concern involved with the formation of partnerships is that of security. "Simplified ticketing" is unacceptable to many regulators and consumers when it interferes with the important issues of airline safety and security.

Additionally, there were even talks of the US Department of Transportation regarding one of these partnerships the one formed between American Airlines and British Airways. In order to push a planned transatlantic partnership through, the two would have had to give up a total of up to 254 weekly takeoff and landing spaces in competition.

After the DOT decision was released, the airlines backed off from the alliance because of revenue concerns.

One airliner, however, is in no position to make employees recalls. United Airlines, whose planes were hijacked on September 11th, lost on the order of 800 million dollars in the first quarter of two billion for this fiscal year.

United is widely believed by analysts that the airline will be one of the major airlines, and their current cash position could end up pushing them towards bankruptcy protection. However, even in its case, they would almost definitely continue to operate under some construct, and maintain many of their present routes.

It is expected that more airlines and may be continues to be heavy, airlines are positioning themselves to ensure profitability as soon as possible, and may gain with bigger customers.

Microsoft Provides a Gem for the Future

JASON ORLOSKY
STAFF WRITER

The stock markets have been on a roller coaster ride for the past few months. This is primarily due to the the current economic conditions, which have made it difficult for companies to show consistent growth.

For instance, in its most recent quarter, Microsoft saw a 27 percent increase in revenue compared to the previous year. This growth in sales is significant, as it has helped the company continue its streak of successful years.

Microsoft's recent announcement of a new product has raised excitement among industry analysts. The X-Box, an add-on to the existing Xbox, is expected to offer even more entertainment options for Microsoft's loyal customers.

In a recent interview, Microsoft Executive Vice President for Entertainment and Devices, Alex Kipman, expressed enthusiasm about the new product. "The X-Box is more than just a game console," he said. "It's a platform for rich, immersive experiences that bring people together, no matter where they are."

The introduction of the X-Box is part of Microsoft's broader strategy to expand into new markets. With the rapid growth of the gaming industry, Microsoft sees an opportunity to tap into this market and increase its revenue streams.

In addition to the gaming market, Microsoft is also exploring opportunities in the virtual reality and mixed reality space. The company recently acquired a virtual reality headset maker, HoloLens, and has been working on developing its own virtual reality platform, called "Holoporta."

Microsoft's commitment to innovation and its focus on developing new technologies is evident in its recent acquisitions and partnerships. With the acquisition of HoloLens, Microsoft is looking to expand its presence in the virtual reality market and offer new ways for users to interact with technology. Similarly, the acquisition of Skype and LinkedIn have allowed Microsoft to strengthen its position in the communications and professional networking markets.

Microsoft's growth in these areas is expected to continue, driven by a strong focus on innovation and a commitment to providing high-quality products and services to customers. As the company continues to expand its portfolio of offerings, it will be important to watch how it integrates these new technologies with its existing platforms to create seamless experiences for users.
Winter Weekend's Existence Perplexing

BLAKE LEONG
Sports Editor

Welcome back everyone to beautiful Babson College. As a first-year student, I am not yet fully aware of all the traditions and customs of the Babson culture. For example, on one of my first nights here I went up to a friend's dorm room in Bryant and couldn't find my way back to Park Manor North. Yes, it was embarrassing, but at least it was due to my own stupidity. There are some things about this school that I don't think I will ever get.

There is one Babson observance in particular that I just cannot understand, and that is Winter Weekend. No, your eyes do not deceive you, those are capital letters on Winter Week- end. I place them there for this reason. That reason is this: Winter Weekend is obviously an important event on this campus. I mean...it's on the academic calendar after all.

My roommates and I were ca- sually perusing the academic calendar one day when we noticed "Winter Weekend" from February 14-18. Overjoyed, we started making plans. One of us planned to go to New York, another to go skiing. Me? I planned to go see a girl friend of mine in California.

Yet, a whole week turned into tears of sorrow and head- scratches of confusion. I looked up my FME syllabus on blackboard to check homework as- signments, and found that we have class scheduled on Febru- ary 15th! What is going on? Who dares to schedule a class in the middle of my holiday? So I decided to get to the bottom of this, so I e-mailed my FME professor to ask about the much-debated Winter Week- end. The reply came back and deflated all hopes of California for me. I also checked on my classes on the 14th of February. Result? Class! Unbelievable! So to the administration of Babson College, I pose the ques- tion: What is Winter Weekend? Does it serve a purpose? Obvi- ously it is something significant. It seems to be an event signifi- cant enough to reserve precious space on the academic calendar. Yet, it seems to serve the cam- pus no purpose at all.

If I'm in class, then that means that someone has to be there to teach. And if students and fac- ulty are both going to work, then I assume that the administration will be running as well? Well, this is the case, why isn't every weekend from December to Feb- ruary Winter Weekend? What about autumn weekend or Janu- ary weekend? What exactly sepa- rates February 14th-18th from the other fifty-one class-filled, homework-doing, paper-grading, sleep-depriving, activity-packed weekends? If you can manage to squeeze in a response, please send it to me before Winter Weekend...Thanks.

Winter Weekend's Existence Perplexing

ALAN BOYSEN Lifestyles Editor

Well, this week has been more exciting, but I gave up trying to keep up with the Valentine's Day holiday scenes. Instead I celebrated with ulti- mate RA, Bryce Thayer, and his Forest Hall crew. It was awesom- e to see a group of Babson students hanging out together and having a fun time on cam- pus, without the need for total, alcoholic oblivion. Now all we need is a weekly lifestyle party and the Babson community will be truly mad.

Super Bowl fun was not the only thing the Babson commu- nity has shared over the last couple weeks. Cold symptoms such as a cough, runny nose, and you, this one's for yoooooouuuuuuuuu!

But, I saw a Babo creeping around campus keeping every- thing to a dull roar and then I thought I'd better give it a try...

So the night ended and I came back to my room, as I was walking up the hill I saw and heard some wicked loud fire- works over by Reynolds; they were so loud and big that I could tell they were red, white, and blue, and right by the concourse.

Ten seconds later, I saw Babo lights flashing and they were on the scene. Sweet! Party killers. So I plan on being in attendance at the Patriots parade on Tues- day at 12 P.M. which means that I will have had three or four- couple of classes and that my profs- will not be too happy with me but hey, this is the first time in the first four years that the Patriots have won the Super Bowl in 42 years. It's better than the Red Sox this year. But I mean come on, it is defi- nitely worth missing some class for.

Anyways, not too much new on the FatKid front. Trim food has been acceptable lately and I still like the new Reynolds deal. I will keep you posted on developments there. I wanna give a shout to Babo and C and my actual group. I think it is the dumbest idea that has ever been to have gotten Bill Bellamy to come in Valentine's Day, and also charge hundreds to see him. It is a good thing they are not other schools, cause they may have killed people there.

I am kind of bull because I am going to be in Maine with my girl on Valentines day and I can't go and see Bellamy, he is the man and I think it is a joke. So, I just got him and all but having to pay for it and having it on Valentine's Day. I was mad about it, and against them, and the thing is that they are going to let Boston University in the Super Bowl. What the hell is this?

Anyways, have a great week and we'll have an update on Ramon on the grill pieces. To ri-oters in Boston, to the phantom legger in the U.K., to bloggers out there! You make my world a more interesting place.

Am I am the items from Su- per Bowl history.

Scooter to Make Advice Debut Next Week

ANDREW BOYSEN Lifestyles Editor

Well, this week has been more exciting, but I gave up trying to keep up with the Valentine's Day holiday scenes. Instead I celebrated with ulti- mate RA, Bryce Thayer, and his Forest Hall crew. It was awesom- e to see a group of Babson students hanging out together and having a fun time on cam- pus, without the need for total, alcoholic oblivion. Now all we need is a weekly lifestyle party and the Babson community will be truly mad.

Super Bowl fun was not the only thing the Babson commu- nity has shared over the last couple weeks. Cold symptoms such as a cough, runny nose, and you, this one's for yoooooouuuuuuuuu!

Wowooh! This is great. This week went out with a bang. The Patri- ots won, it was truly a sight, I actually forgot that I was at work for a minute there and I thought I was at a fun school! How psyched was I!

But then, I saw a Babo creeping around campus keeping every- thing to a dull roar and then I thought I'd better give it a try...

So the night ended and I came back to my room, as I was walking up the hill I saw and heard some wicked loud fire- works over by Reynolds; they were so loud and big that I could tell they were red, white, and blue, and right by the concourse.

Ten seconds later, I saw Babo lights flashing and they were on the scene. Sweet! Party killers. So I plan on being in attendance at the Patriots parade on Tues- day at 12 P.M. which means that I will have had three or four- couple of classes and that my profs- will not be too happy with me but hey, this is the first time in the first four years that the Patriots have won the Super Bowl in 42 years. It's better than the Red Sox this year. But I mean come on, it is defi- nitely worth missing some class for.

Anyways, not too much new on the FatKid front. Trim food has been acceptable lately and I still like the new Reynolds deal. I will keep you posted on developments there. I wanna give a shout to Babo and C and my actual group. I think it is the dumbest idea that has ever been to have gotten Bill Bellamy to come in Valentine's Day, and also charge hundreds to see him. It is a good thing they are not other schools, cause they may have killed people there.

I am kind of bull because I am going to be in Maine with my girl on Valentines day and I can't go and see Bellamy, he is the man and I think it is a joke. So, I just got him and all but having to pay for it and having it on Valentine's Day. I was mad about it, and against them, and the thing is that they are going to let Boston University in the Super Bowl. What the hell is this?

Anyways, have a great week and we'll have an update on Ramon on the grill pieces. To ri-oters in Boston, to the phantom legger in the U.K., to bloggers out there! You make my world a more interesting place.

Am I am the items from Su- per Bowl history.
CAB and SGA Present

For One Night Only

Star of HBO's "Def Comedy Jam" and the Movies "Any Given Sunday" and "How to be a Player"

BILL BELLAMY

At The

Knight Auditorium

February 14, 2002

9:00 PM

Tickets - $10, 2 for $20

Only 750 Tickets Available
EmotionEric.com Full Of Pictorial Happiness

CHIP KOTY
STAFF WRITER

Oh my goodness, I stumbled upon quite possibly one of the funniest websites I have ever seen the other night and I had to review it all so I could let everyone know about it. It is www.emotioneric.com and it is a truly original website.

On this site a 24-year-old web technician posts a plethora of pictures, which depict his various emotions. He has all the classes included, anger, happiness and sadness included. He has also taken an abundance of requests from his website’s visitors and has really obscure emotions on there as well. I will not ruin the surprise for you. This site is truly refreshing.

There are no advertisements to be found anywhere on it and all the content is rated PG. If you were to view this site at work, all you would be guilty of is wasting your company’s money and time, two things that employees do as well anyways.

Eric started this web site as a college student in Florida in 1998. He started it because he wanted to create a site that was a new concept and would make people happy. The site has been live ever since and has grown exponentially.

Eric has since graduated from college and works for a web company called Everdream in Silicon Valley. He still maintains the site and is constantly adding to it.

He takes requests for new emotions and tries to get most up reasonably fast. This site is one that you will want to book mark and keep going back to over and over, it will leave you in stitches and make you request emotions just so you can look at more pictures of this guy.

He has been noted on quite an extensive list of other web sites and has been mentioned in some very reputable publications, so he has definitely been noticed for his talent and foresight.

I give it a 4.5 out of 5.0 FatKid rating losing .5 pts because I wish there was more content. Other than that I really do not have any complaints about this site, I will keep going back to it as often as my work allows and I suggest you do the same. That is of course unless you are allergic to laughter. If you are, I truly do not recommend this site. That is all I am out.

"Max Payne"

CHIP KOTY
STAFF WRITER

Although I have yet to play the ever so popular "HALO," I loved "Max Payne" and, as promised here, is the X-Box’s game review.

I have heard from many avid gamers that "HALO" is the way to go.

It is more challenging than "Max Payne" and it lasts longer. I was able to beat "Max Payne" in probably about 20 hours of playing time, so it was not unbeatable, and it didn’t take too long in video game hours.

My complaint is this: the game was rather too easy in the easy mode that you play it on first, and then near impossible to play at the hardest level, so stick with easy and then try it in the medium mode and you should be all set.

The game takes you through a time in Max Payne’s tumultuous life. Max, an undercover cop, infiltrates New York’s largest mob family. The family discovers his identity and the police turn against him because they feel that he was a turncoat joining the mob family and living a life of crime.

His wife and child are murdered at the beginning of the game, and he vows to avenge their death by toppling the crime ring by any means possible. He has to do this with the police on his tail the whole time as well.

The crime family is involved with the Russian mob, politicians and dirty cops as well, so the story is pretty intricate but not too hard to follow.

The game is often interrupted by life-like flashbacks and plot lines. It is intriguing and I found it to be great, because I really felt involved with the story the whole time I was playing. I was just as interested to find out what was going to be said next as I was to get to the next fight scene in the game.

I will not give away the ending of the game, but I will simply say that it was not the most exciting end of a game I have ever found. It was by far not the most difficult, but it piqued my interest.

The plot was left open at the end for a Max Payne II, and I eagerly await its arrival. As a side note I would also like to say that the story line of the game was so interesting that my classmates were interested enough to watch me play even though they were not playing themselves.

I asked them why they did that, and they said just because the story was so gripping. It is usually pretty boring to watch someone else play video games, but in Max Payne’s case it is not boring in the least.

I would give this game a 4.2 out of 5 possible points, with points being deducted for the number of available cheats that were leaked to the internet, and because the music could have been better. The matrix like graphics were great, but the interaction between you and other characters was minimal in developing the story. "Max Payne" is a great game overall and it comes highly recommended to you.

online this week

Babson Free Press has a great offer for you.

Subscribe to the Online Edition and get...

- Campus headline news
- Sports updates
- Local weather forecast
- Campus events
- and much more

...delivered right to your inbox.

Subscribe today at: www.babsonfreepress.com
www.babsonfreepress.com
Men Sink Coast Guard in Conference Match

MINH BUI
STAFF WRITER

Once again the nation's leading defense helped pull in another Babson men's basketball victory. In a 58-44 losing effort, the United States Coast Guard Academy could not find any means to keep their hopes of an upset afloat. Babson played their game throughout and could not score to keep up. The first half was played at Babson's tempo, a low-scoring defensive struggle that ended with a 25-21 Babson lead. Both teams shot extremely poorly, unable to connect from the field. Babson shot a measly 27.3 percent, while Coast Guard shot a horrific 20.0 percent. However, this struggle was exactly what the Beavers wanted as they were playing their game and keeping the score low.

In the second half, Babson's defensive efforts and clutch three-point shooting helped them pull away for the victory. Under the stifling defensive pressure of co-captains Joe Colalli '03 and Chris Michalowski '03, the Coast Guard managed to only take 24 shots, connecting on only 5. Babson hit 6 of 7 bombs from behind the arc and 10 for 12 from the floor, which all but sealed the deal.

On the offensive end of the floor, Babson received contributions from Colalli and Jeff Hines '04 with 12 points, as well as 10 points from Mark Luster '03 and Jeff Nicholson '04. Michalowski gave the Beavers an all-around performance with 6 rebouds, 6 assists, and 3 steals. Also stepping in was Giles Westie '02 with 9 nine points and 9 boards. The most impressive stat, however, would be the fact that the Beavers went 20 for 25 at the free throw line.

The first half was played at Babson's tempo, a low-scoring defensive struggle that ended with a 25-21 Babson lead. This victory leaves Babson with a 17-3 record overall and a 7-1 record in the NEWMAC, second in the conference. Babson has now set up a rematch of enormous proportions with first-place Clark University.

Sports

Women's Basketball Pounds Smith Pioneers

BLAKE LEONG
SPORTS EDITOR

The Babson College women's basketball team remained undefeated in New England Women's and Men's Athletic Conference (NEWMAC) competition with a victory on Saturday morning at Stone Gymnasium.

The Beavers sent the Pioneers from Smith College back to the frontier on Saturday afternoon by destroying them 71-48. Babson, who forced the Pioneers to commit 20 turnovers, improved to 14-7 overall and 9-0 in NEWMAC competition. The Pioneers dropped to 8-12 overall and 4 in the NEWMAC.

It was only three minutes into the first half when Babson took control of the game. The Beavers built up an 18-7 lead after going on a 12-2 run. Ingrid Miller '03 put up 10 points in the first half and contributed heavily to the 22-13 lead that Babson held at the end of the first half.

The second half wasn't any better for Smith. The Pioneers were shut down early on as Babson scored the first five points of the half. From there on, Babson's lead never dropped below 20. Tricia Leathy '03 came up big in the second half and scored 11 points and recorded four steals on defense.

Co-captain Meredith Eddy '02 scored 14 points on 7-of-12 shooting to lead Babson. Miller finished with 13 points and six rebounds. Leathy put up 11 and Joanna Maher '03 put up 10 to round out the Beavers in double figures. Co-captain Kerri Lally '02 threw in four assists and four steals in the Babson victory.

The Pioneers' all-star players were Dassen Wozniak '04 who recorded as many points as digits with 20, and Amanda Wenczel added 10 points, six rebounds and three assists. Babson remains undefeated in NEWMAC play.