Coleman Residents Rebel Against Attached Furniture

AMBER HESCOCK

Among the myriad of construction efforts that have been undertaken as part of the makeover of the Babson campus is the complete renovation of Coleman Hall. Though a few unfinished details remain, such as the installation of air conditioning in some rooms, the overall move into Coleman last week to find a totally redesigned interior within one of the oldest existing structures on campus.

As Director of Campus Life Tim Mann explained in a welcome letter to the dormitory's residents, a major part of Coleman's transformation was the addition of "a new clothing area," a feature that is called Coleman Central, and accommodates 64 students.

Improvements to Coleman include access to five laundry rooms, nine study/group lounges, eight social lounges, four fully equipped kitchens and two multi-function recreation areas in the basement. Data jacks have also been integrated throughout the building in social lounges, study spaces, and one of the multi-function rooms.

Another change that awaited Coleman residents this year was furniture that had been attached to the walls. This modification was not viewed positively by many students.

Resident Matt Rubin disagrees because of his belief that "it's part of the collegiate experience to set your room the way you want it." Rubin was one of several students who were written up as a consequence of their decision to remove furniture from the walls of their rooms. He added that "he understands the need to maintain the building, but bolting the furniture is a little crazy."

Several reasons have been given as to why the furniture had been bolted into place. Shortly after the move-in period, a notice from Campus Life was distributed to residents stating: "Furniture that is attached to the walls should not be removed. The pieces have been attached to maximize space and comply with fire safety codes. Any resident detaching furniture will be charged a fee for damage to the walls, furniture and room."

Tim Mann explained further that, "In addition to these reasons, at

Health Center: In The Heart Of The Campus

AMBER HESCOCK

Health Services has moved from Babson's postgraduate (Westgate) to the heart of campus, a new location on the ground floor of the newly renovated Hollister Hall building. The result of this important change is a host of advantages aimed at benefitting the entire Babson community.

The central location has already helped not only to increase the department's physical presence, but has also fostered increased interaction between the Health Services staff and the rest of Babson. Ian Watson, director of Health Services, added that "People have stopped by to say "Hi" which was a rarity in the

Sorenson Reopened With An Electrifying Afro-Caribbean and Jazz Performance

LINDSAY A. HORNOR

The Afro-Caribbean and Jazz ensemble Cabildo gave an upbeat and rhythmic performance on Friday night, serving as a fresh new start to the Sorenson Center's fall reopening. While there may have been a small student response to this concert, those who did attend were entertained by a mixture of sound, music and artistic coordination.

Through blending different styles of music and encouraging the audience to participate in the performance, Cabildo provided an uplifting experience of something a bit alternative and indicative of what level of talent we are to expect from our Sorenson Theater in the future.

Cabildo consists of eight diverse individuals who specialize in a wide array of instruments and an ability to produce several different flavors of musical genre. The band was formed within the Greater Boston area through a growing association between the members that has been building for five years. They have performed in notable venues such as the Newport Jazz Festival and the University of New Hampshire with Maya Angelou.

The members of Cabildo emit a certain style of music that has "permeated their souls," as bass player and vocalist Michael explained to the Sorenson audience. Cabildo demonstrated a unique style of music through a synthesis of African, Caribbean, and Latin influences. Their music intrigued the audience and moved them to get up and dance to this unique beat.

Cabildo began its performance by playing an African song, complete with authentic instruments and attire. What followed was a mixture of tribal music and contemporary jazz blended by the use of such instruments as Congo drums, the saxophone, bass guitar, piano and maracas.

Highlights of the evening included an instrumental song about an African Ocean God and a smooth rendition of "Just the Two of Us." The first song was played by the main members of the band, who used the Congo and Djembe drums, maracas, and a flute to form a fulling sensation of waves and the ocean.

"Just the Two of Us" included all members, with the performers adding in the jazz portion of the song while the others provided a different flair of rhythm with various drums and bells. Most impressive was the tenor saxophone by saxophonist Herman Johnse,

Binge Drinking Increasing On Many Campuses

New findings from the nation's predominant survey and analysis of college-level drinking were released at a press conference today at 12:00 noon in Boston. The report, to be published in the next issue of the Journal of American College Health, is a follow-up to the landmark study of 1983, which raised public awareness about the problem of binge drinking on American college campuses.

As the new college year begins against the backdrop of recent student disturbances around drinking and tragic deaths related to heavy

SA TURDAY 9/5 12:05 A.M. - Fire alarm reported in Keith Hall. Cause was found to be a smoke detector. 12:14 A.M. - Report of a disturbance in the area of Coleman Hall. Officer found many students outside building and told them to keep the noise down. Officers left area without incident. 1:32 A.M. - Fire alarm reported in Reynolds Center. False alarm blamed. Physical plant was notified.

Tuesday 9/1 12:12 A.M. - Fire alarm reported in Keith Hall. Cause was found to be a broken pipe.

The third problem came in the form of three "broadcast storms" during Monday and Tuesday. A broadcast storm occurs when one device on a network sends out a data signal that obligates every other machine on the network to respond. However, at the same time to Babson machine recognized the receipt of any data and they continued to send data, effectively paralyzing the entire system.

At this point, the Babson community could not access the Internet, Babson intranet, BeyondMail, COMnet or even log into their personal computers.

McComb said that by yesterday, "we [ITS&D] had hunted [the machine causing the problem] down and began to look for the problem." As to why it happened, McComb said that although it is fairly unusual, especially three times over the course of two days, such problems do happen. She added, "my goal is stability of the network. Why it happened is important, but I am not going to compromise the stability of the network to find out."

Health Services In Heart Of The Campus

past when "you had to strategically plan out your day around an appointment."

Ian Wong expressed his hope that people will now change their attitude about Health Services, and see it as a resource, to "a wealth of knowledge that can be tapped. "We're more than bandages and aspirin," he said. "We're not just a place to go when you're sick."

A focus will now be catching illnesses sooner and preventing them before they become a problem, rather than waiting until treatment is needed. The hope is that people won't wait as long to be seen. Wong referred to the Health Services' new slogan: "Now that we're in Hollister, You No Longer Have a Reason Not to Stop By."

Wong noted that the new location "helps the security of students and everyone on campus." Public Safety officers will no longer be required to drive students needing assistance all the way over to Westgate and will be able to remain available for other emergencies.

The expected increase in the number of visitors is a risk that the new, more efficient Health Center is equipped to handle. A student, Marygrace Barber has been with Health Services for ten years and has noticed that unlike Westgate, the spacious new facility "is designed for its purposes."

The old location had only three exam rooms, one of which was a converted kitchen. In Hollister, there are five large, fully-stocked examination rooms with privacy curtains (previously absent).

In addition, the community now has access to a health education resource library located in room C10 of the Health Services at Westgate. These materials were simply piled up in a closet due to a lack of space.

Wong also mentioned that "health insurance issues," a major "part of doing business," is an area of which the Health Center staff has much knowledge. For example, Associate Director of Health Services, Romantico Pena, worked for Arthur D. Little and thus has an understanding of how the realities of business and medicine intersect.

The services offered by the Health Center (761-239-4257) also include routine gynecological exams, flu shots in the fall, and confidential counseling about contraception, sex, alcohol, drug use, eating disorders, sexual assault or other risky behaviors. Hours are from 8 A.M. to 8 P.M., Monday through Friday.

Bungie DrinkingIncreasing

quaint bingos. In comparison with other students, members of fraternal and sorority organizations were four times more likely to drink bingos. Binge drinking is now widely recognized as the most serious public health problem confronting American college students.

MIT freshman Scott Krueger died on September 27, 1997 due to alcohol poisoning incurred while partying with fellow fraternity pledges. Just before his death, Krueger, 18, of Orchard Park, N.Y., told his twin sister something that worried her. According to the June 15 edition of Newsweek, he said he could feel his heart and worried that he probably wouldn't be coherent. A pledge class has to drink a collective amount, he told her. Tragedies such as this have led many to encourage rejection of the widespread attitude that excessive drinking is a relatively harmless "fix."
Can Babson be Avante-Garde and Ahead of the Game?
SHIV BIR SINGH

The truth is everybody knows how to spell entrepreneurship. And nobody talks about entrepreneurship. Even women who are successful in their careers, and when hearing that Babson College is one of the top one hundred business schools in the world, do not say, "I go to Babson College, I am an entrepreneur." That is the way it is. It is not known. It is not talked about.

I do not think that we can do anything to make sure that everybody knows about Babson. We need to create a new kind of entrepreneurship that is not just about making money but about making a difference. And we need to foster an environment where entrepreneurship is celebrated.

We need to be at the cutting edge of the entrepreneurial wave that has flooded America from Silicon Valley to Route 128.

slowly too. I have heard of IMC (. I and II) and I have seen the new buildings sprouting up like mushrooms. I have heard about the reputation of Babson, and the fact that Babson is ahead of the game.

And we are not doing anything like that at the moment. I am familiar with jcampus, Baymax, and Mail, Globetrot Online and Windows crashes, and I like them all. But did you know that I am not part of the Babson College community? I am not ranked as one of the top one hundred business schools in the world. My brother's art school was in the list. I was disappointed. What do they mean by entrepreneurship? What is the definition of entrepreneurship? I have been into business for more than ten years. I have made a mountain out of a mole hole. Or worse still maybe I am an imposter. I am not sure.

What do you call the internet that's affecting the way we live, function and exist as human beings we need to figure out what business strategy is going to be for the new economy.

We need to be on the forefront of understanding and teaching the business models of the future. We need to be leading the business world into the digital age. We must lead, whether it's entrepreneurial and, yes, creative uses of the newly realized technologies. We need to be at the cutting edge of the entrepreneurial wave that has flooded America from Silicon Valley to Route 128.

And we need to be here fast. If you talk to a school student who is looking for something remotely with business, that is what he/she wants.

We cannot afford to think that something is going to come to him unawares. Babson needs to be there.

What does it take? Let's set up a dedicated internet laboratory to work on how to improve the experience of e-commerce. I believe, e-commerce is going to be big in the future whether you come in finance, marketing, or entrepreneurship. Every Babson student must be an entrepreneur and have enough understanding of what is going on in the e-commerce world.

Weekly Stock Dowonies

CHARLES LAWRENCE

The world's stock markets unraveled this week, after a crescendo of frenetic buying in the productive financial markets around the globe. The Dow Jones Industrial Average was down 411 points, or 5.11%, the worst one-day point drop in its 114-year history. The Nikkei fell 8.7%, but this was one of few exceptions to the rule, as virtually all major markets were down.

The key is for Hong Kong to solve their financial crisis without too much government restriction, which would stifle growth in both Hong Kong and would undoubtedly lead to the devaluation of the Chinese Remnimbi.

other major international indices were down as well.

What caused this weakness across the board? On one course, many factors. However, there is one factor that had the most profound effect this week, and that is the global economy.

Fundamentally, in terms of impact, the US economy, and in particular the housing market, is the most important development of the Japenese banking crisis, the ruling party in Japan. While the yen has recovered slightly in the past few weeks, Japan's banks are still far from solvent. The failure of just one bank could put all of Japan's banks on the line, and that is a significant event.

Japanese Finance Minister Misyawada has pledged to provide credits to the banks that will take over any troubled banks. However, it will take time for all of the banks to be taken over.

The Japanese government has promised to provide credits to the banks that will take over any troubled banks. However, it will take time for all of the banks to be taken over.

Erich Barstow, the editor of The Economist, pointed out that Japan has been at the forefront of the global financial crisis.

"Gran Turismo:" A Must Have For Video Game Enthusiasts

ERIK DAY MURRAY

What if you could design a videogame? Let's say a racing game. You could create a world with your own unique terrain, and controls. You would want it to be easy for the non-car enthusiast to understand, but still realistic enough for the automotive enthusiast to love. You would also want to make it chal- lenging for those who want to test their skills.

Welcome to "Gran Turismo" for the Sony PlayStation. Gran Turismo is a highly sophisticated racing simulator to date.

This game provides the racing enthusiast with infinite levels of involvement, adjustment, and competition.

Developed by Sony Computer Entertainment, this game provides the racing enthusiast with infinite levels of involvement, adjustment, and competition. At no level does this game fail to deliver. There are two modes in which to play: arcade and simulation. The arcade mode is for those who simply want to drive around the world, and the simulation mode is for those who want to compete against each other in races.

You have the freedom to choose a vehicle you may either modify your car for better performance or buy a faster one. Eventually you can turn your car into a full-blown racecar.

Simulation mode is where things become interesting for those who buy the more advanced version.

Once you have mastered the basic racing techniques you can try for A-class and interna- tional A-class racing licenses. There are eight separate tests for each license and the tests become more difficult and challenging as you move up the racing ladder.

Vehicles featured range from your basic economy car to an av- erage sports sedan and all the way up to the ultimate sports car. Vehicles are from various manu- facturers, including Nissan, Toyota, Ferrari, Lotus, Mercedes-Benz, Maserati, BMW, Lamborghini, Ford, and Dodge.

It's not the kind of thing that can be done with a test drive. The car you buy should be one that you like and that you can actually drive.

In the end, this game proves that playing car racing can be as much fun as a real race. You can easily find yourself playing into the wee hours of the morning and thinking about how to take the car to the next level.
From Bug To The Beetle: It's Still Cute

ERIK DAY MURRAY

Question: Can a performance oriented "four-door" car like the Beetle get "more power" befall it fairly in car lot or not, a lot more important, yes! After driving the New Beetle in a Volkswagen, I have been convinced of the vehicle's attributes and of its charismatic personality. It is the only car that I have ever been able to point at the horse around, and whose presence in the same room seems enough for me to recall its appearance at the last car show.

The other only powertrain option is a $1,279 dollar, 1,9 liter, 4-cylinder diesel engine putting out 90 hp and 149 lb-ft of torque. This power is available through a front-wheel drive with a 5-speed manual gearbox or optional automatic 4-speed. The gear box and brake dia, 15-inch wheels with a full-size spare, and power steering come standard, while ABS is a $393 option. Driver and passenger front airbags, as well as rear shoulder belts, are also standard. Fortunately, air conditioning is not available as an option. Overall, the New Beetle didn't even come standard with a CD player.

The interior is plenty of room, even for this 6'4" test driver, and the seats are comfortable, with a comfortable position via manual levers. The rear seat is not only fold-down and up, but also telescopes to accommodate long objects as well. I wonder what percentage of people actually use this feature.

The rear seat back also folds down in order to accommodate boxes, the family pet or a 36" TV. The stereo and climate controls are intuitive and easy to read. The console has a unit that is pre-wired for a six-disc changer to go into the trunk area.

The instruments are housed in a center stack with a small speedometer that shares the space, and a temp gauge and tachometer in the bottom corners. Lights and windshield wipers are conveniently located and the rear window can be rolled down conveniently and located. The interior is a large room, comfortable, convenient, and functional; as expected form solid Ger- man craftsmanship. The only thing that stood out was the little detachee from the interior, and the fact that the seat was a little too stiff. Otherwise, the driver feels as if they are just kind of floating around in the cabin. Cloth is the only option for now and is available in cream, grey, or black. The only option for the top of the dash board near the passengers is a rubberized coating to prevent items placed on it from sliding off.

Enough details, how does it drive? Great! The four cylinder engine is an adequate engine to get the bug into traffic and can maintain a normal speed on the highway. The only gripe would be that the 5-speed seems a bit vaque at first. Handling is that due to the bug being stiffer than most people expect. I am not a big fan of the car and would not choose it for comfort but it is by no means a gutless performance car.

In driving the car one is amazed at the excitement with which other drivers and pedestrians, both young and old, greet the vehicle. It seems as if everyone has been re-discovered. One of the things that seem to have been added convenience, comfort, and a little luxury to create the New Beetle. Its styling seems like a natural progression from the original Beetle, and not so outlandish that it won't remain its freshness for years to come.

I highly recommend a test drive of the car for you to assess the charisma and performance of this vehicle for yourself. I would like to thank Bernardi VW in Natick for allowing test drives and recommend the dealership to all of your friends for further information please call (781) 237-0490.

It seems that VW has recapitulated all of the endearing qualities of the original Bug and added convenience, comfort, and a little luxury to create the New Beetle.

Konzel Konzus: The Vacation Of a Lifetime

ADAM KONCUS

Last May while the average student was graduation and enjoying graduation speeches and ceremonies, some of our nation's recent high school graduate was enjoying a vacation of a lifetime. While the average student was making his way to his dorm rooms, he was busy hitting tennis balls, removing rats from the ceiling, and helping a friend with "real life on-the-job experience" on a group of 150 students were booked on a cruise to the Mexican riviera.

According to an Associated Press article by Hans Griesel, these students were treated a week of "fake halls of residence," where the students enjoyed an on-board buffet, cruising, and the avoidance of course work. As reported by the Associated Press, was the wet-rotor engine which sends the plane to the flight to Mexico. Now, I haven't flown much in my life, but I'm sure your wet-rotor parts are not as commonly seen in my experience. The next day, after breakfast, we started on the passengers. I wouldn't spoil the conclusion of a shot glaze on these people, much less drench their upper lockers in water for my "enjoyment." No, I'm happy that I was old and disgusting please go to great lengths to keep your clothes dry! However, these were young and pre- sumably attractive students. As a result, the students were asked to maintain the line on the plane wanted to see the controls of the plane.

Another problem was that the controls were paraded through the cockpit, and the students were given the job of judging. The FAA, apparently well aware of this kind of foolishness, is going to launch a chunk of silly regulations against people like me. In spite of this, I can think of a great number of issues the FAA could deal with instead of these minor infractions.

For example, parents travelling with young children should be provided with muzzles, because I can still hear the "barking" of the hallways. Or better yet, let the complimentary pillowcases over their heads. Second, similarly cap- sules should be distributed to all the passengers before showing a movie, which probably wouldn't even be noticed. Or other of Mr. Costine's "hits." These are all valid problems (aside from the national airlines, not Kevin), but I don't want to stay too far from the original topic. It seems like these kids had an im- cradible flight to Mexico. I have to admit that the trip was a little bit of a let down. The most fun I've ever had on a plane was the plane that could not take off, and gave me some little plastic pins in the shape of wings. Well, to tell you the truth, after she asked I took them out of her bag and slipped them into my pocket. I'm pretty sure she never noticed. My point is that these students must love that airline.

However, everyone had a good time in this somewhat of a service. According to Crenier's article, Ms. Walker one of the onboard of a student on this trip said, "If we have a plane full of tre- mendous, unprofessional piloting crew, and students, who the hell's fly- ing this plane?"

I personally think she was upset be- cause her daughter finished the trip in the west-tent-clearant instead of her parents complaining, do you? Of course not. Why? They don't complain because their daughter wailed all the way back with the weary and admiration of both her peers and the flight crew of a fabulous airline. Not to mention the winner also walked away with the girl of their dreams. Ms. Walker was clearly a such a lose one. Ms. Walker, I think you need to take a vacation. I might suggest Marahatt. That is all.

The Rollers Coaster Ride of Relationships

ME HELP ME! HARLAN

Dear Harlan,

I'm very confused about men, especially relationships.

I've never had a relationship and I'm 22 years old. Guys just used me over and over again. Nobody ever wanted to be my "boyfriend," they just got what they want (money and sex) and if I had any feelings involved, I'm super nice to everybody. Personally, I can't live my life with my eyes, I've had some guys even all the way out of an apartment and I don't feel like going to look, but do looks really matter?

Also, why do guys use women? Why do they get married, or start relationships that will play their games with them, when there are many other people who know they will get attached and hurt?

- Harting again

Dear Harting,

Guys use women because some girls want to be in a relationship, and who wouldn't want to be in one? All men want is sex and money, he'll be forced to go to an ATM and rent a dirty movie.

As for looks, they only matter un- till you get to know someone. There are a lot of beautiful people with ugly personalities. An ugly personality is in a pretty dress is still pretty ugly.

- Harlan

Dear Harlan,

I'm totally in love with my best friend. We've been friends for just over a year and I can't think of any- one else. Why is this relationship not going any- where?

The beginning of our friendship, she was getting out of an abusive rela- tionship and I was ending a bad one. We both needed a friend, or other and had no problems kissing and talking to each other. But we did, people in- dicate other people and isn't comfort- ing being so close and intimate. She says she doesn't want to ruin the friendship.

The problem is that my baby is not my best friend, she is still in the past here. She plans to move away to a larger urban area very soon and I feel so bad.

I'm not only losing my best friend, but my only real friend who I have ever loved. It's really going to hurt know- ing I'll be with someone else. I've tried the old "she's gone out of my life" methodology, but I'm los- ing my relationship.

How do I cope with this situation?

- Lost & Loveless

Dear Loveless,

You know you've got it bad when you use the word "loveless." You can either be flattered that she was so honest or respectful and hurt that she doesn't have the same feeling. It's natural to be sad. You'll probably even feel a little bit worse, but the more you think about it, the less you will care, and the more you're going to hurt.

Stay busy and try your best to put away all of the thoughts of her when you start thinking about her being with someone else. After all, start to think about her, think about me. You want her to be happy and the only thing that is going to make her happy is you. One day she may come back to you, but until that day, respect her, trust her, and appreciate her space.

"Wild Video Dance Party" Sponsored by CAB Kicks Off the Knight Party Season

JENNIFER YEO

The Campus Activities Board (CAB) jumpedstart the Babson sponsored events this year with the first Knight Party of the semester, the infamous "Wild Video Dance Party." Two weeks prior, students were invited to come to Knight and kick off the Fall Semester last Saturday night. This event was a huge celebration for the entire campus that ran from 10:00 PM to 1:00 AM, and it was a great way for students to meet each other, hang out with their friends, dance, and eat pies. With an impressive turnout and a hyped up atmosphere, this Knight Party was a big success and good indicator of what is yet to come from CAB.

Babson Arts Activities: Get Involved On Campus!

Read up on some of the most exciting activities on campus and participate in the fun!

Babson C-Notes

Did you sing in high school? Did you want to but never got the chance? Well, now you have the opportunity to continue your musical exploits or explore your musical talents. The Babson C-Notes is Babson's a cappella singing group for both men and women. The club performs for the Babson community several times a year. No prior singing experience or musical knowledge is necessary, as the group is open to faculty and students of all abilities with a desire to explore music. For more information call Nikki Phinyawatana at x5282.

The Babson Dance Ensemble

The Babson Dance Ensemble is one of the largest and most recognized organizations on campus. Each semester the Dance Ensemble presents a performance entailing diverse dance ranging in style from lyrical and hip-hop to jazz and character. The Dance Ensemble is currently looking for new members and tryouts will be room on campus that members have been awaiting for years. This room will provide a place for student sculptors, painters, and other artists to create new pieces and store their work. This year BRAS will sponsor The Other Side Art Show during Family Weekend. The show offers opportunities for students, faculty, and staff to exhibit their talents for family and friends. In the spring the Unplugged Coffeehouse features various musical acts. So come join us and take part in the Arts this year! Contact Suzy Pyle at x4397 or Sylvia Limm at x6067 for more information.

The Babson Photography Club

The Babson Photography Club is a place for students to meet new people who share common interests. The club offers new members an opportunity to meet new people, even if you have never taken a picture before, now is the perfect time to start! The BPC has a darkroom on campus for you to learn how to develop your own pictures. The club takes trips to various scenic areas in New England to take pictures. We are anticipating having our own photo exhibit in the Campus Center at the end of the semester. If you're looking for a great chance to explore or if you just simply want to explore an exciting hobby, the Babson Photography Club is the club for you! For more information you may contact Lacey Clarke at x6067.

First Pub Night Draws a Crowd

The first pub night, sponsored by the thoughtful Ladies Basketball Team, was a popular and crowded event last Thursday night. The group met first at the CAF to get out and celebrate the long weekend, and many Babson students enjoyed the pub night. It was a great event that raised money for the team.

Babson Players

The Babson Players stage one show each semester. For fall, the group typically performs a play, and in the spring performs a musical. Acting on stage is not the only way to participate in the Players at Babson. Behind the scenes work is very important, and just as fun! Anyone interested in working on or learning about the development of a production, whether on stage or off stage is welcome to join. Auditions are usually held the second week of each semester, but involvement is encouraged at any time. For more information, please contact Lisa Tuttle at x4750.

CAB Activities Board (CAB)

CAB strives to create a strong social atmosphere within the Babson community through cultural, social, political, and educational events. You too can make Babson a great place to be while improving the social life on campus. Come get involved! CAB does everything from booking and producing concerts, films, entertaining speakers, comedians, novelty acts, theme dinners, special campus weekends, and so much more! For more information, please contact the CAB offices at x5292.

Welcome back… NOW GO AWAY!

CAB Activities Board (CAB) is holding an information session on Monday, September 14th for all students who are interested in joining the club. As one of the most respected and talented groups at Babson, the BDE will surely stir the campus once again this year with their annual fall performances. If you think this would be a part of the BDE, all you need to do is attend the information session, and then take part in auditions. Auditions will be held in the Chandler Dance Studio in the Newton Center on Tuesday, September 15th, and Wednesday, September 16th, from 7:00 PM to 10:00 PM. For all those who love dance and are interested in participating, choreographing, and joining a powerful organization on campus, don't miss out on this opportunity!
Electrifying Performance: Jazzes Up Sorenson

whose raw talent and enthusiasm elevated the performance to a level of awe.

What was very appealing about the performance as a whole was the light-hearted manner in which these men could perform by laughing and joking, and insisting that the audience participate in the fun. During their Doo-wop song, the audience clap to begin the rhythm of the song, and the willingness to get us involved moved some people to start dancing in the theater to a joyful beat.

In their final Samba, Cabildo

Cabildo was a great choice for the fall opening of the Sorenson Center because of the individuality they possessed on stage. Invited everyone on stage to feel the music and dance together as they played. The experience of dancing while watching them play was exhilarating. Although it was unfortunate that there was a small turnout at the concert, in some sense it made the experience all the more unique because of the connection that was made between the performers and the audience.

Cabildo was a great choice for the Sorenson Center grand opening because of the individuality they possessed on stage. Through starting with this kind of talent and expertise in music, one can only imagine what more can be brought to our school and what exciting things await us this year. For all who enjoy music and want to be entertained, a special performance was largely missed out on Friday night. Babson students should look forward to what can be offered from the Sorenson Center in the future.

The next major performance at Sorenson will be the Ester Or- chestra, a 12-man jazz and alternative band of large popularity and fame. Please feel free to come participate in the Arts and Music at Babson on September 19th at the Sorenson Center.

FYI: Boston Happenings

The Sultry "Fosse" Comes to Town

For all of you theater lovers out there, a new production is coming to Boston before it hits Broadway next month.

Sponsored companies such as American Express and AT&T, this show has received rave reviews during its tour around the states. Critics have had some exceptional things to say about "Fosse.

Karen Taylor of the Globe said, "Fosse Razzle Dazzles!" An impressive parade of slick and stilt- dancing numbers, revealing the powerful originality of Fosse's choreography."

According to Michael Crab of CBS Radio, "Fosse cracks with sex, sentiment, and sensuality." Fosse performances run on Tuesday through Saturday at 8:00 P.M., on Saturdays and Sundays at 2:00 P.M., and on Sunday at 7:30 P.M. Prices range from $49.50 to $69.00. The Boston Film Festival Rolls This Week

The Boston Film Festival, in all its glamour and excitement, is beginning on September 10th and will run until September 26th.

With promises of famous faces and knockout films, this event will light up Boston and expose 46 feature films and 27 short films to the public eye. A big bash is sure to be made on the opening night of the festival with the national premiere screening of Matt Damon's new film "Sounders."

Word is that he won't be making it to the premiere, but that actor Familie Jansson will be there for the film's grand opening.

Other exciting films to be released during the festival include "The Cook, the Thief, His Wife and Her Lover," a story about their life together. In addition to the film "Clay Pigeons," a comedic thriller starring Joaquin Phe- nix and Janeane Garofalo will also premiere.

Admission will be $8 per film, but special discount books of tickets are available for $70. Please call (617) 266 - 2533 for further information.

The Creative Side Of Babson

Thought of the week: Encour- age diversity in oneself by taking risks and leading one- self down a pathway new and different.

The Road Not Taken

Two roads diverged in a yellow wood,
And sorry I could not travel both,
And be one traveler, long I stood,
And looked down one as far as I could,
To where it bent in the undergrowth.

Then took the other, as just as fair,
And having perhaps the better claim,
Because it was grassy and wanted wear,
Though as for that the passing there
Had worn them really about the same,

And both that morning equally lay
In leaves no step had trodden black,
Oh, I kept to the first for another:
Yet knowing how way leads on to way,
I doubted if I should ever come back.

I shall be telling this with a sigh
Somewhere ages and ages hence:
Two roads diverged in a wood and I—
I took the one less traveled by,
And that has made all the difference.

—Robert Frost

Women’s Soccer defeats Wellesley in first game

From the first whistle, the veteran players took control of the game guiding the six freshmen and one new sophomore

PAM KIERNAN

It is time for Babson students to take a break from their studies, head up to the athletic fields, and show their support for the Women’s Soccer team. While the rest of us were enjoying the last week of our summer vacation, these dedicated soccer players took part in dreaded double practice sessions. Having made it through this difficult week, the Women’s Soccer team is ready to take on their opponents.

The first challenge for this team came last Saturday when they sailed to victory over Wellesley College in a scrimmage. Despite being plagued by injuries early in the season and having lost four key players to graduation, the team was able to pull together and overcome its rivals.

The absence of several key players provided a shaky start with Wellesley gaining some key opportunities to score. But soon after, Babson settled down and played a controlled passing game with few lapses, leading to a kick-and-run style.

Babson and Wellesley played twenty-three minute halves, substituting at 20 minute intervals. The one team that did not score was Babson. Coach Judy Blinnstrub used this as an opportunity to see how everyone on the team played, and to test different players in various positions. The first half was the first game the veteran players took control of the game guiding the six freshmen and one new sophomore as the game continued.

The team battled Wellesley for control of the ball, each failing to capitalize on routine plays. Ten minutes into the second half things changed when co-captain Christian Pianetti ’90 scored off of a corner by newcomer Cara Caldwell ’01. This marks the team’s first goal of the season. Despite confusion in the penalty box, Pianetti’s sure-footed shot was too much for Wellesley’s goalie as Babson went up 1-0. The second goal came behind them, Babson set out to score another one. Kara Pagliaro ’00, Nicole Barbuto ’00, and Lesley Deblasio ’99 worked the Wellesley defense but still couldn’t put one in the net. Then after receiving some input from Blinnstrub, Karen Barbuto ’99 decided to take a try at it. With 15-1-0 in the win.

The absence of several key players provided a shaky start with Wellesley gaining some key opportunities to score.

Men’s Soccer ties PSC: adds assistant coaches

MICHAEL JACOBS

Michael Stevanin ‘99 scored Babson’s lone goal as the Men’s Soccer team played Plymouth State College to a 1-1 draw last Saturday in Plymouth, New Hampshire.

Babson held control of the game for a majority of the 90 regulation minutes and 30 overtime minutes, but the team could not score the clincher after PSC’s Adam Jordan beat Babson goalie Nick Todd ’92 at 79:15.

The game came to a close after Stevanin beat the PSC goalkeeper on a redirected kick off a pass from teammate Alfredo Montes ’01. Todd played exceptionally well in net for Babson as he made three saves in his debut. The young Babson squad made an impressive appearance in front of a PSC team that qualified for the NCAA tournament last season.

In other team news, head coach Jon Anderson completed his coaching staff last week with the addition of Paul Ostberg and Gino Palozzi. Both men join Anderson’s staff as assistant coaches.

Ostberg, a 1989 graduate of Babson, was a highly decorated back and midfielder during his playing days. Palozzi, an MBA student at Babson, was the captain and coach of the club team at Syracuse University earlier this decade.

Blanchard Falls to Simmons, 3-1, in his Women’s Volleyball coaching debut

Excellent serving could not hold off Simmons, Babson will try again with Regis tonight

MICHAEL JACOBS

Scott Blanchard made his head-coaching debut at Babson last Tuesday night, and the Babson Women’s Volleyball team fell to Simmons 15-11, 9-15, 15-13.

Babson scored the next four points, but Simmons stopped the rally and won the next point to win the game 15-13 and take a 2-1 lead heading into the fourth game.

The closest of the four games played, the fourth game saw both teams tiring with the lead.

Babson could not hold on as Simmons scored the next three points and went on to win the first game, 15-11.

A tough loss in the first game didn’t phase Babson. The team began the second game with overwhelming play. Babson scored the first six points, but then let up nine of the next eleven points. Excellent serving by Abigail Fabiashi and Michelle Malose combined with all-around teamwork and savvy serving made allowing for Babson to pull ahead and win the second game 15-9.

The third game was a near opposite of the second game as Simmons got off to a 6-0 start. Both teams traded points after that until Blanchard called a time out with his team trailing 14-9.
