At a local press conference led by Babson officials President Bill Glavin was examined for acts of public indecency, adultery, and other behavior not suitable for a college president. The conference was resulting from numerous reports of sightings of Glavin and a beautiful brunette streaking across campus late last Saturday night.
Babo was alerted on the night of the incident but when they arrived on the scene they were quoted as not having the energy to bring the old fellow down. Glavin escaped to his home on Wellesley Avenue where he and his female friend stayed for the rest of the evening. Apparently Mrs. Glavin was out for the weekend as her car Continued on Page 3rd

Babson Senior Implicated in WTC Bombing
By Kappagi Sujakumar-Ganesh

FBI detectives and the local police department have been hot on the trail of an additional suspect in connection with the bombing of the World Trade Center. Five Right Wing Egyptian Muslims were already arrested in New York City during the last two weeks. When questioned, the men implicated a distant cousin on their mother’s twenty fifth husband’s side as the mastermind behind the massacre. Late Wednesday evening the Wellesley Police Department, along with the ever-energetic and punctual Babson Campus Police, took into custody Ahmad Aslam, a current senior at the college.
Ahmad resisted the arrest adamantly, splitting and shouting slurs at Babo Director, Jay Hackett. “Kamal Rami befhbybunday–Let the flees of a thousand camels infest your amplit,” said Mr. Aslam. Mr. Hackett, who always carries a tissue to wipe off his perspiration, quickly removed the saliva from his face. Mr. Aslam finally calmed down when several officers gave him a taste of his favorite Indian dish, Chicken Takamasala. After being handcuffed, Mr. Aslam went down to pray to Allah for guidance and a way to exterminate these ridiculous creatures.
During questioning, it was found that Mr. Aslam has a long list of criminal activities. He was found to be the ring leader in the recent planned assassination of Salman Rushdie, author of The Satanic Verses. Mr. Aslam believes he did what was deemed of him as a good Muslim follower. In his words, those who go against the teachings of the Koran should be eliminated immediately.
The Babson community responded in shock to the reported allegations. Many considered him a very friendly and personable individual, little did Continued on Page 2nd

Babson’s Campus Goes Dry

You may have noticed the new SGA Executive Board serving mocktails during dinner on Wednesday night. This was a subtle introduction to a policy which is to be passed in the Senate and House of Representatives and will soon be adopted campus wide soon. After much investigation and deliberation, it was decided by the newly elected Student Government Executive Board and the Alcohol Evaluation Committee that Babson College will become an alcohol free campus. Before taking the position of Student Government President, Ms. Carrie Basler directed CAB through numerous successful Continued on Page 2nd in motion the process of creating an alcohol-free campus. Before the decision was made for Babson to become a dry campus, surveys were circulated. The MCFE program studied the need for alcohol on Babson's campus, and one-on-one interviews were conducted between individual students and members of administration who were working towards no alcohol. The individual, anonymous surveys were distributed during Natural High Week to the organizers of the week. All of the surveys revealed that alcohol was not needed to have fun. The individuals who filled out the surveys believed that there are so many other ways to get a "natural high" that alcohol should not be permitted on the campus. They suggested that instead of having keg parties in the suites, people could simply buy cases of caffeine-free Coke and have stimulating conversations with friends.

The goals of the MCFE group were to determine the actual consumption levels of alcohol and the pleasure levels experienced during and after the use of alcohol by Babson students. As far as consumption levels go, it was determined that the average Babson student consumes two alcoholic beverages per week. Compared to the national average, this is a very low level of consumption and therefore, the need for alcohol on Babson's campus is minimal. The pleasure that is experienced by most students during the consumption of their two alcoholic beverages is also very low. Most state that drinking is a boring ritual which they go through. Many cited Knight Auditorium parties as an example of their boredom. One student said, "I go to Knight parties because my Student Activity fees are partially paying for that beer. I don't really want to drink it, but I am paying for it, so I figure I should get my money's worth." It was found that many other students also feel this way. Under a similar circumstance, one individual stated, "I like to go to the parties to dance, but the beer is there, and if the students don't drink it, it will be thrown away. That would be a waste of about $250 of student money each week. That would be an atrocity."

Although many thought the one-on-one interviews with administration would not be very accurate, the committee found the results to be very relevant. The students interviewed were hand picked by Mr. Basler as a part of her responsibility of appointing students to committees. It is customary for an SGA President to select individuals who hold similar opinions on the matter at hand as the President. The results of the interviews showed that students do not actually like alcohol. Many feel that drinking is just part of college experience. One student plaintively stated that she thought..."drinking alcohol was a mandatory part of college. You either drink, or you're not a real student."

The culmination of results are what led the executive board and the committee to make the campus free of alcohol. What this decision means is that there is no alcohol permitted on Babson's campus at any time. This restriction includes Knight Auditorium parties, Foe's parties, or any social events that are sponsored by the college and are for the entire community. Roger's will no longer be allowed to serve alcohol. The facility will still be open for social functions, but beverages will be limited to mocktails, fruit juices, and soft drinks. They will have Sharp's, O'Douls and Mousse on tap also. The restriction also applies to the possession of alcohol by students in any of the residence halls. Any students found with alcohol on campus will be brought before the Judicial Board. The standard punishment for a first offense will be removal from campus housing. A second offense will result in immediate expulsion from Babson College.

The policy will become official as soon as the Constitutional Amendment is passed by a 2/3 vote in both the Senate and the House of Representatives. Mr. Basler was quoted as saying, "I expect this amendment to pass unanimously in both the House and Senate now that 7,000 students should be on the lookout for anyone they feel may have assisted Mr. Aslam in his activities."

Merger Leads To Revolution in Condom Manufacturing

By Wmne The Poot
Staff Business Analyst

The Free Press is proud to announce the merger of two of Babson's most influential campus businesses, Just In Time Condoms and Up, Up and Away Balloons. The two businesses have created a new product which is sure to revolutionize the balloon industry, the condom/pump balloon. As a sign of their dedication and enthusiasm for the new venture the two businesses have decided to change their names to CondornPlus: Any Size, Any Time, Any Where.

Sales for the traditional heart shaped 'I Love You' balloons have been lagging for some time. With the passing of Valentine's Day, demand for Up, Up and Away's leading product line has plummeted. In a desperate attempt to revive sales and boost profits, Don Delarta and Ivy Eng, owners of the two campus businesses, decided to try this new radical idea. Their new product, the condom balloon, is intended to satisfy the ultimate needs of modern couples while allowing them to express their true intentions.

Jay Hackett posing to express his enthusiasm for the merger.

The condoms, available in a variety of colors, will be filled with helium and delivered to the designated individuals. Delivery is guaranteed at under 2 minutes in order to ensure the lasting romantic mood of the purchasers. Up, Up and Away and Just In Time Condoms wish to emphasize that the utmost secrecy will be used when delivering the merchandise. The delivery person is required to wear a headband and earplugs upon delivery as to not interrupt the individuals.

The condom balloons are made of the finest quality latex and can be ordered in a variety of sizes to suit individual needs. Once deflated the condoms can be used like normal condoms and provide the same protection against sexually transmitted diseases. Lubricants and several novelty items are also available for those wishing to add a special spice to their love life. Students who have already experimented with the new invention find that indulging the helium prior to any sexual activity enhances the overall experience.

Students of the nineties should find this newest innovation in delivery service entertaining. Simply send the lovet of your choice a condom balloon and wait for a response. This enables you to openly relay your intentions to your partner and signifies your interest in "Safe Sex." CondomPlus would like to warn students that they are not responsible for possible negative reactions from their product, such as slipped or punched face.

Giant Beerball Discovered in Globe

By Sun Swinshoer
Contributing Writer

As students of Babson College it is our responsibility to seek the truth about the history of our College, and its founder, Roger Babson. Upon arrival at Babson we were all told that Roger Babson ran for President on the prohibition ticket. However, the truth is that Roger was in fact a bootlegger, night-club owner and junkie. He was coerced into running for President on the prohibition ticket by his political narcotics advisors. These advisors in fact who favored the legalization of any mind altering drug. Roger's pub was actually the former headquarters of his illegal (but highly profitable) alcohol and drug distribution center.

During the renovation of the Globe it was discovered that the monument was never intended to be a Globe in the first place, but rather a giant beerball. During renovation workers discovered the remnants of a still inside of the Globe. After taking their fill of the contents B&G workers began seeing distorted figures and colors. Further research determined that the still dated back to the 1920's, and that it was owned and operated by Roger Babson. Lab analysis found traces of classic 'cokes' and fermented 'mushrooms' in the liquid.

Much to the delight of the present administration, especially public safety, the still was repairable. After months of labor it is now in working order. The administration had the workers connect the giant still to the tap at Roger's Pub to easily replenish alcohol stock after the traditional afternoon beer breaks by BABO.

The unveiling of this mighty beerball will be just in time for Parents weekend. Friday evening President Bill Glavin will slip the first suds from the Babson Distillery. The tentative time is 9:00 pm, and the admission is $2. With the price of admission you will receive a free Babson Distillery T-shirt and all the beer you can drink (no ID required). Prohibition, No! Giant Beerball, Yes! And may the true spirit of Roger Babson be recaptured and celebrated with pride!
Salvatori Puts on a Whole Pile of Weight Due to Lack of Work

By J.P. Freesty
Editor-in-Chair

Former SGA president Sal Salvatori and his newly wed wife, the former Amy Penniman have been seen enjoying their married life. Sources have speculated that the Salvatori's have been living "high on the hog." An investigative Free Press report confirmed this story.

Sal has been getting used to taking it easy running his father's business. "This family business thing is cake." replied Salvatori. "I don't have to take orders from a boss and I can go fishing and throw back some brewskies any time I feel like it." It seems that Sal has been putting back too many brewskies by the looks of that "PEARL" he has cultivated. It has been speculated that Sal has gained nearly 400 pounds since the loss of his job as SGA president. Salvatori refused to comment on the boozit issue however he did briefly say: "When you have an important tool, you need to build a fortified holster to protect it."

Mrs. Salvatori refused to let any reporters into their humble abode. These actions did not stop our Free Press photographer from using the FREEP Helicopter and 300mm zoom lens to catch the couple lounging on their back porch one afternoon. At the sight of the helicopter, Amy "the Animal" grabbed the shotgun from the closet and fired several rounds at our photographer. An ace sharpshooter while at Babson, Amy used to practice her shooting skills by picking off flying squirrels that ventured close to her dormitory. She had no problem crippling the pilot of our craft by lodging a bullet between the pilot's major deltid maximus and the shoulderblades, forcing an expedient getaway. The getaway was not too late as staff photographer Cam Ertzcliff snapped a couple of frames of the happy couple in their Shady Springs home.

Perhaps now more appropriately named Sal Salvastrophic, Sal and his tiny subservient wife Amy kick back at their Shady Springs home.

Top Ten Ways to Make an everlasting contribution to the Babson Community.

10. Get your stomach pumped on the way to Newton-Wellesley Hospital.
9. Steal Glavin's hubcaps and sell them in Roxbury so that you can contribute to the annual fund.
8. Climb on top of the Globe and sit there until Ahmed Adam I agrees to go back to Pakistan.
7. Write for the Free Press.
6. Dance with your shadow.
5. Run naked on the soccer fields in the middle of the night and make snow angels before you go home.
4. Dance naked on tables in the Pub.
3. Harass Glavin. He has nothing better to do.
2. Go to Course Registration wearing a sidearm and acting like John Wayne in the movie "True Grit" You will get results.
1. Leave intellectual graffiti on the Globe, or any other place where it will be noticed by the masses.
Groth Returns For Second Speech at Babson

By Bo Ring
Carusel Editor

On Monday, March 29th, journalist and Director of Deutschlandfunk radio station in Dresden returned to the Babson campus to give his second of a series of two speeches. His arrival was, to say the least, exciting as a capacity crowd packed the Park Manor Central Lounge to hear him speak. The crowd quickly dispersed however when it was announced that the promoting flyers were in fact misprints and Dr. Ruth would not be speaking.

As Groth entered the room the remaining crowd was quite shocked to see that Groth had grown approximately nine inches of hair since his last visit. The new funky fresh Afro look was quite flattering on the doctor and was an effective tool at grabbing the audience’s attention. Attention was the key to Well into his speech Groth really begins to dig into the podium and feel the words pulsating through his veins. making this speech effective as he never managed to get any in his last appearance.

Groth immediately got down to the point, this time leaving out all the usual German worker crap he usually deals with and spent the majority of the speech making soft buzzing noises. After about thirty minutes it became painfully clear that the good doctor had been using some fairly heavy drugs since his last visit.

Later on in the speech the doctor began to make a few noises that did indeed turn out to be words, just not English words. He concluded the speech by falling to ground and playing dead for a few minutes.

When no one came to his aid he stood up and walked out the door. Luckily we were able to catch up to him as he was getting in his car to leave and ask him a few questions, but he only managed to glance at us briefly, accuse us of selling Amway products, and tell us to fk off.

We took the time to ask a few of the bystanders in the exchange what they thought of Dr. Groth’s speech. One hearty fellow told us that he thought the presentation was incredible, “better than sucking the gas out of a whip cream can.” In contrast another noted that he was far to busy playing air hockey to listen to some “ugly-faced, Jerry curl-wearing, stall-lipped, no legged bastard.”

Dr. Groth will not be returning to the Babson campus in the near future but he is scheduled to open for the Monkeys next week in Boston Garden.

71 Die in Waco Massacre

Religious fanatic David Kareth and his members of the Branch Davidian Sect were obliterated in a violent showdown with Federal Officials yesterday night.

The assault on the religious compound began rather unexpectedly late Wednesday night when a disgruntled federal agent lost control and drove his armored personnel carrier into the religious compound. Forced with leaving a fellow officer exposed to harm, agents representing each state in the union backed their crumpled comrades in the heat of battle by calling in airpower to send him up the LZ. Immediately after the strike, soldiers donned night vision equipment and automatic weapons, besides a soldier who suffered from electric shock burns after urinating on what turned out to be an electric fence, there were no casualties to the Federal Forces.

Federal Officials were pleased that they wrecked havoc on the members of the sect. “It’s about time we did something besides stand outside this compound and play games,” stated TTP spokesman Trig Ehrapper. The assault marks the 3rd week that federal officials have stood guard outside the compound. The federal guards to protect the rights of the Branch Davidian Sect members cost the taxpayers nearly 50 million dollars to date in seasonally adjusted dollars.
Rooney Skins Babson Beaver For Fur Coat

By Pope La Pu

Animal rights activitists have been stationed outside Vice President of Student Affairs Paula Rooney's office for what is now 72 hours. "Why would anyone put themselves through such torture?" you might ask. Rumors leaked out last week that Miss Rooney has a certain dislike for our own Babson mascot, the Beaver. She took it upon herself to exterminate the little rascals and make good use out of them.

Rooney, who continuously alleges that she is overworked and underpaid, had complained to co-workers that she could not afford to buy herself the beautiful mink coat she had always dreamed of. So instead of spending millions, she decided to kill two birds with one stone:

• Rooney set out traps around campus to catch the sneaky creatures and brought them back to her house. Sources state that she then proceeded to skin the animal to make herself a warm fur coat. Gross!!!

A close acquaintance of Miss Rooney explained the reasoning behind her friend's behavior, saying that her entrepreneurial spirit was coming out. "She's thinking of starting her own business. Paula's BBQ Beaver Coat, as a means of increasing her take home pay."

Some students have started a Save The Beaver foundation in the hopes that they can raise enough money to put Rooney into retirement before she causes further damage. Many of you may have your own personal reason why you wish this to occur, so this may be your perfect opportunity.

It appears that lightning can strike twice in the same place. About this time last year, Amy "The Animal" Penniman was found dancing naked on a table at a dorm party. Undisclosed sources say that "The Animal" is back with a vengeance. It seems that on Friday evening, Ms. Penniman was seen dancing on a table. Witnesses then removed her from the table and called Public Safety. Upon their arrival, two hours later, the officers found Ms. Penniman to be embroidered and murmuring "5 for 5", obviously a baseball statistic of some kind.

Officers Andy "Where is my "Walker, "Wild" Paul, and "Little" Jimmy Dugan brought her to her fiancé's, Ex-Student Government President Sal Salvatori, room for her own protection.

Amy is reported to have a severe headache and bedpans. The part that Nurse "16 oz." Miller does not understand is that Amy only drank one sip of a Lle.

Cheryl “Librarian” Nesta was seen leaving the library late Saturday evening with a man.Unnamed sources say she was studying with him on the third floor for almost two hours. Cheryl has also been seen around campus wearing her hair down. This is a sure sign that she is letting go now that she is out of the limy-life that Student Government leads.

When asked to comment on this, her friend Sarah Donnelly said, “I did see Cheryl burp two weeks ago, but I just thought it was gas. You don’t think she could be becoming a...a college student, do you?”

Well this reporter didn’t think so, until I saw the pictures. Yes, it seems that Cheryl was photographed in some compromising positions with a couple members of the old executive board. Cheryl, inquiring minds want to know.

Substance Free Residents of Putney Throw Party of the Century

By Amanda Huggins
Staff Juggler

At the beginning of spring break, we were witness to the storm of the century. Last weekend, however, will forever be remembered as the “Party of the Century”. Fed up with all of the “goodie two-shoes” crap they’ve had to face all year, the boys, I mean men, of substance-free decided to take action. As soon as RA Anne-Marie Mortarelli went home early Thursday afternoon, plans for the mega-bash went into effect. One resident, who shall remain anonymous (Hugh Jass), commented “We wanted to show the Babson community that there is absolutely no difference between us and the drunken slobs on this campus.”

Any of you under the table without any problem whatsoever.”

This unprecedented 87 and a half keg event commenced after Cheers on Thursday night and didn’t begin to slow down until early Sunday morning. Attendance for the event was estimated to be 5,468, shatter- ing Putney’s old mark of 22. (Rumor has it that was just a BMA meeting.)

In addition to the kegs, the residents organized an “Around the World”, providing such drinks as rum and Coke, rum and Pepsi, rum and water, rum and Mr. Clean, and rum and... rum.

At any point during the weekend, it is estimated that over 500 people were passed out in the halls. Needless to say, this made the chore of doing laundry extremely difficult.

Noise was another problem during the weekend, as each resident insisted on blasting their favorite CD’s. Groups such as Abba, Menudo, Rush, and Buzz Kill could be heard throughout the dorm non-stop.

Another resident, Tyrone Shoelaces, summed up the weekend perfectly: “Our goal was to destroy the myth of sub- stance-free at Babson College. Just look at all the shots of vodka I’ve had, not to mention the joints. I mean, do I look like I’m substance-free? Well, do I? Look at me when I’m talk-

Wild Bill Glavin Powers The Beavers To The ECAC Championships

By Consula Taitic, John Schmeech (Allen Clark Grosjean)

Contributing Columnist

Before Spring (Winter) Break, the men’s B-Ball team powered it’s way to the ECAC championship with help from a man with many faces in many places, our Commander in Chief, Mr. Bill, Wild Bill, Fire Marshal Bill, President Bill...Glavin.

On March 7, 1993, the men’s basketball team received an after-born and homocourt advantage to the halloved tournament and hoop fans around the country refer to as the race for the albino beaver.

The first game was over in a puff, with the Beaver defense packing in against St. Mary Jane University of the South (Rhode Island). With the Beavers at full strength, Baboon provided the Mighty Bingers of St. Mary Jane with a “kind” beating, 104-35 (TVS...69).

In the semi-finals, the Golden-Beavers’ meant all business. The Cagers were due for a visit by the Wacky One-ees of Weeden College. The pre-game show consisted of a lesson from ole’ double smoke rings Robert Parish on how to take a hit off the peace-pipe. Following that smoke-in display, Parish gave a short lecture on how to discreetly package goods sent by mail. Not only did the crowd greet the Chief with a standing (double) 0, but he was carried off the court by eager and possibly over-zealous supporters belting out the song “Hail to the Chief.” Following Parish, the Multi-Cultural cheerleaders did a Lambada (The Forbidden Dance) with the SGA Executive board, that brought both Glavin and Jay Hackett to their feet. It was now tip-time at Stuaek. Weeden controlled play for the first fifteen minutes, tossing the steak at near life-threatening speeds. By the time Serge DeBarri and the starting five turned their heads to signal a time out, the Wacky One-ees were flying high and leading by an oddly even Rolling Rock “33.”

Things were looking hairy for the Beavers’ something had to be done. After the time out, Weeden continued to pound the Beavers, but wait!!! Erik DellaSant a passed from the game when both Zebra’s found out he was cuddling in a van with an unknown male (Scott Gentile). Who would replace this thousand point scorer? Serge was given only 30 seconds to replace the leader. The Crowd was silent, having no idea who could equal the task of the windjumper from Winchester. X couldn’t do it, he was carrying around the knee brace. Juice wasn’t equal to the task. Nick was just too short.

Still no answer as to who would fill the void in the Beaver lineup. Then, as if a fictional character had been transported onto the court, President Glavin appeared, wearing DellaSant’s #34 (Little did you know, the 7’7” Wild Bill started on his boy scout team (he wasn’t that height at the early age). Bill averaged 24 points, 12 rebs, and 4 like a game as a wobelo scout, and went on to make his high school hall of fame scoring just over 30 points a game with an average of 15 rebounds). Glavin entered the game much to the chagrin of the opposing team. An athletic supporter, Jock Strap from Weeden, was quoted as saying, “I thought that guy was an administrator and spectator, not the Great White (hair) Hope.” Spec announced Wild Bill, and the game resumed with three minutes left in the half. In just that three minute span, Bill, if I may, scored 15 points, blocked seven one-on-one shots, and tossed down a few himself. At Halftime Weeden held onto the lead by 13.

The half-time show consisted of the Multi-Cultural cheerleaders reciting the Jenny Craig Doctrine. Four times.

Glavin lead the Beavers onto the floor with the PA bussing the song “Smoke on the Water.” The crowd was up in arms over this messiah—not only could he shoot the 3 but he was innately photo-genic. By the halfway point in the second half, Glavin was smiling at the camera in mid-air, selling popcorn outside the pavilion, walking around Knight parking lot asking for a miracle, and signing autographs during timeouts. Let’s talk multi-faceted. Need I say that the Wacky One-ees had no chance against the “Wild one” and his supporting cast. Riding on the back of a 56 point Glavin performance, the Beavers proved to be truly golden, winning 119-96, and taking the next step toward the almighty alpine beaver.

The ECAC finals pit the Beavers against the Wild Hemp of Hemphstead College (Starks, Maine). Let me tell you that they really grow on you. With long hair and tied-dyed uniforms, these throwbacks were bitchin’. The Wild Hemp entered the gymnasium to some rockin’ tunes—“Suicide Blue Eyes” (CSNY), and “Dire Wolf” (Grateful Dead). With DellaSant in the stands because of the van incident, Glavin was left once again to take up the slack. How could he tame the Wild Hemp? The crowd could only wait for this clash of plant and animal to commence.

Wild Bill wore #31 in honor of the surely missed Eddie from Cheers (he didn’t wear that #, but keep it quiet). Glavin seemed to have jumped through the roof, winning the tip off from the 7’3” Long Bud. The tip went to Marty Miller who took two dribbles and tossed a sweet alley-oop to the great one himself—may I say that Glavin hung on the rim for a legal three count (can you imagine that?). Look out Wild Hemp, the ‘beavers’ are going to mow you down. Glavin had 18 points, Continued on Page 11.

One-on-One With Skip

By Phil Mcrarchen
Staff Writer

Xavier McDaniels, Adam Oates, Dee Brown. Yes, I've faced some of the best athletes in Boston. This week, though, I faced off with the man we all know and love as Skip.

Anyone who has ever walked into Tomasso Hall is assured to be greeted with a smile from Francis X. Connolly, better known to us as Skip. Enter his third floor office and you will be greeted by pictures of Kamala and The Iron Sheik ("Wrestling is the only real sport," says Skip), as well as a bottle inscribed, "I have no idea what it is." Skip told me, though, "The stuff really works! It's a great cleanser!" Skip has worked in Tomasso for nearly five years, having won a B&G Man of the Year Award. He says he loves his work, and loves joking with the people. One such experience was at an MBA reception, where Skip had the following conversation with a woman in attendance. Skip was helping himself to a cup of coffee set up for the MBA's.

"Sir, do you have an MBA?"
"No, but I have an MAB."
"What's that?"
"Mop and Bucket. Would you like to see?"

Prior to working here at Babson, Skip spent 19 years working between old-age homes and as a gravedigger. "After all that time, it's nice to finally work with people with a pulse." As a gravedigger, Skip had a dog, Seamus, who was his companion around the Norwood Cemetery. Seamus was a cross between an English Setter and Irish Setter, or as Skip says, "His head hated his butt." One recollection Skip has was when he was moving a long-deceased body from one site to another, and Seamus ran up and grabbed the corpse's leg and ran with it. This occurred on Memorial Day weekend, when the cemetery was very crowded.

Skip has his own philosophies on life. He enjoys living life to its fullest, because he knows we will all eventually just end up a name carved in stone. His daily routines include jogging and a couple of beers. Skip's favorite beer is Bud, "but the first time I saw Bass Ale in the Pub, I thought I was in heaven."

Skip has opinions on just about every topic. His favorite movie was The Exorcist (I would have sworn it would have been Night of the Living Dead or Friday the 13th). He also explained the science of how to get extended usage from urinal screens. Skip will also give you an update from the Weekly World News. The most recent story is that Elvis has re-married and is living in Florida with his grandchildren.

Skip is one of the most personable people you will meet at Babson. He is always just a call away. "You can reach me anytime in Tomasso at extension Y-E-L-L." Or just go up to the third floor. You can't miss his office. It's Babson's own Center for Junior- torial Studies.

First the Loss of Olin & Now Clemens?

A. J. Entinonni
Staff Moron

The baseball world was in an uproar with the death of Steve Olin last week in a boating accident. At three o'clock this afternoon, another baseball tragedy took place. Boston Red Sox ace Roger Clemens was hit by a line drive during batting practice.

His right hand was broken in the fourth and fifth metacarpals. The break is serious enough that early speculation points to massive neurological damage from the third metacarpal to the extensive tendon in the upper arm.

Dr. Arthur Pappas, during an emergency press conference at Florida State Hospital at Tampa, speculated that this is career threatening. Clemens will miss all of this season and will undergo surgery at 8:00pm this evening. Pappas informed the gathering that Clemens may look at his fourth and fifth metacarpals on his pitching hand. If this occurs, Clemens' career is over. Lou Gorman said that if his injury is career threatening, they will find a place in the organization for him.

The drive, which came off the bat of Mike Easler, hit Clemens when he was still in the release position. Mike Easler commented on the hit: "I have always had respect for Bob. He is one of the best relievers in baseball. Maybe now Lou will fire Butch and I'll be the manager." Thanks for the ideas Mike.

The incident could have been avoided if Clemens had followed team policy and used the pitching net. Clemens, however, avoided the warnings and did his own thing.

You may be asking yourself how this injury affects roots baseball? I don't know and quite frankly, I don't give a crap.

Wait 'Til Next Year!!!

by Barney Gumbie
Staff Drunk

It's April in New England and the snow is still falling. In just a few short days, however, our boys of summer, the Boston Red Sox, will journey north from their Florida home to begin the long-awaited 1993 season. Of course, this year marks the 75th consecutive attempt by the Boston Crim behvean the ever elusive World Series. Since 1918, the Sox have made it to the fall classic four times, and each time they have disappointed us.

Will this finally be the year? Lou Gorman has the Red Sox brass working diligently all winter on their annual propaganda campaign to convince us that they actually have a shot. Should we believe them? Do we really have a choice? As New Englanders, we all have the responsibility to remain optimistic about the Sox. Otherwise, the summer months will just be long and boring.

Therefore, in honor of the fact that they haven't won since 1918, here is list of the top 75 reasons why the Red Sox will finally win in 1993.

1. They don't want me to write the 76 reasons next year.
2. We signed Puckett. Oh no, it was a heart attack! (Thanks John Dennis!)
3. Don Zimmer is gone.
4. Plantier and Vaughn will each enjoy 30 home runs, 100 RBI seasons, as Lou Gorman predicts (oh, that was one of the top 74 reasons why they were going to win in 1992.)
5. It was all a bad dream: We didn't trade Eckerdick.
6. Finally, we have a hitting coach with the nickname "bitman".
7. If the ball didn't go through Bill Buckner's legs, I could have ended my list here.
8. Wasn't it Nostradamus who predicted, "The perennial loser from the east will emerge victorious during the tenth month of '93." (What was he smoking?) P.S. He also coined the phrase "Frank and Rog and head to the tower.
9. The Q-man will make everyone look silly for doubting his ability to return from a serious arm injury.
10. Sightings of Ivan Calderon have been reported all across the United States. Of these days, we may find him.
11. Parcells should turn this franchise around.
12. For once, we have a third baseman who won't purposely try to ruin Roger Clemens' ERA.
13. Mike Burkhart will stay injury-free and return to his 1987 form.
14. Pete Rose is betting on them.
15. Jeff Gray will make a successful and courageous comeback from his stroke of two years ago.
16. Introducing the Boston Red Sox cheerleaders.
17. John McNamara is still fired.
18. Team slogan: Our championships still occur often (thanks to Halladay's Comet.
19. This year, the team pledges to steal over half as many bases as Brady Anderson.
20. Scott Fletcher! Scott Fletcher! Scott Fletcher!
21. The Rocket.
22. Cam is playing really well.
23. Ellis Burkhart will enjoy another fine season with the Sox. Oops! Wrong Burkhart.
24. Bruce Hunt may just be the pitcher Lou Gorman finds to replace Bruce Hunt.
25. President Perez.
26. "Shane Rawley just might win 15 games this year." (That's my favorite Lou Gorman quote.)
27. "Matt Young is going to win 20 games this year!" (That's my favorite Buffalo Hobo quote.)
28. "It's a shame to see families torn apart as simple as wild dogs." (That's my favorite Jack Handley quote.)
29. Mo Vaughn will finally emerge as a premier power hitter.
30. "Cause Chris, uh C.J., uh Carl, uh Curly said so!"
31. Russell and Ryan and you won't be cryin'.
32. Maybe Billy Hatcher can steal home again.
33. Greg Harris, once released by the Phillies, has rejuvenated his career and is now one of the American League's top set-up men.
34. You try thinking of 75 reasons why a pathetic excuse for a baseball team is going to win the World Series. It ain't fun.
35. Any team that pays Joe Hesketh more than one million a season has to be good.
36. If Roger Clemens can show up to camp on time, anything can happen.
37. The Cleveland kids are already ready for the jump to double-A. Remember Lou, 1995 is coming.
38. It was all a bad dream: We didn't actually protect Bob Zupec instead of Eric Weisinger.
39. They can't get any worse.
40. Announcing the return of Picky Higgins and Don Buddin.
41. Fill in your own reason.
42. Jack Clark, along with his incredible knack for balancing a checkbook, is finally gone. (Bye bye Jack. We won't miss you.)
43. Parish is playing like a 20-year old.
44. Scott Cooper may just be able to double his stolen base total of last year. (He had one last year.)
45. Red Sox fans have the best damn beach balls.
46. Babe Ruth rises from the grave again and announces that the curse is now over. (And this time, he means it!)
47. This team is so good, "what would we ever do with Willie McGee?" (That's another great Gorman quote.)
48. Pete is 33. 49. Look for Jose Garcia, a utility infielder claimed from Minnesota last year, to be a valuable part of the team by July.
50. If the Braves and Twins can go from last to first...Nah!
51. "No defense" Phil Plantier is finally gone. You all of you ignorant baseball fans out there, the Plantier trade was one of Lou Gorman's best.
52. Bob Stanley isn't going to come out of retirement. (Thanks John.)
53. It was all a bad dream: Lou Gorman didn't actually protect Burks in the expansion draft so that he could be released a couple of months later.
54. Vice President Steele.
55. The "Hawk", Andre Dawson, will fly this team to new heights.
56. Once again, they have no defense and no team speed. (Oh, I'm sorry. That's one of the top 75 reasons why the Red Sox won't win.)
57. Jack McDowell should once again be a leading contender for Cy Young. (Oh, I'm sorry. That's one of the top 75 reasons why the White Sox are going to win.)
58. Ear nest Riles, Paul Quin trill and Luis Rivera. Nothing much to say about these guys. Just thought I'd mention them so they wouldn't feel left out.
59. Headline: "Red Sox Hire Someone with an Ounce of Intelligence to be New General Manager."
60. I asked the magic 8-ball if the Red Sox would win and it replied "Are you crazy?!" Of course, the magic 8-ball has been known to make mistakes from time to time.
61. Bob Melvin! Bob Melvin! Bob Melvin!
62. The Rocket. (He gets mentioned twice because he's that good.)
63. Because I said so.
64. Hey, that's eight squared.
65. Ignore number 64.
66. Did I say 75 reasons?
67. It was all a bad dream: We didn't sign Matt Young. (Editor's note: At least Gorman had the sense to release him.)
68. The people of New England have suffered long enough. We deserve a championship.
69. Not available due to writer's block.
70. If you actually need a reason to be optimistic for the Red Sox season, you're not a true fan!
71. The Farmer's Almanac predicted it.
72. Off the record, they haven't got a shot in hell.
73. See above.
74. If you're still reading this lamen te list, get a life.
75. What the hell! If we don't win, there's always next year.

Fantasy Baseball Strikes

From Holmes

Whether it discusses technique, stance, or position players, a true diehard is sure to lose control. You’ll want to wrap your hands firmly around a bat stick and give it a little poke, driving it with firmness into a hole. But, nothing will ever replace that desire to go all the way and stroke with such force and accuracy that you hit the long ball and get a home run.

After your first taste of this bathroom enjoyment, you’ll start keeping growth charts and compiling stats on power and production. You’ll find yourself buying more and more magazines and spending more and more time in the bathroom.

Soon you’ll start planning when your roommate is out of the room with regularity so you can lock your door and enjoy yourself on your bed, alone, in solitude.

You won’t be able to contain yourself until that time of the month. That time when you can go to the store and pick up this month’s installation. You’re monthly issue.

You’ll grab the sports page daily, delving into the boxes wishing for a little spark here and one drive in there. You’re hooked. You need it everyday now just to get through the day. You’ll wish you could wrap a glove on and play.

This is the simplest form of addiction to that wonderful activity of Fantasy Baseball.

Basel Exposed
In Gripping Campaign Photo

By Hugo C. Herrn
Staff Track Driver

A scandal has broken out in the Student Government Association. According to insiders, Carrie Basel’s presidency will be jeopardized because of improper campaign practices. The news broke late yesterday when Bryant resident Harold T. Baldwin III submitted the revealing campaign literature to former SGA president Salvatore Salvatore.

According to Mr. Baldwin III, who we reached via telephone at his third floor residence, the residents of Bryant woke happily one fine morning last week to find a long-legged, nicely stocked SGA presidential candidate affixed via duct tape to their doors. Mr. Baldwin III was quoted as saying “I think it is pretty safe to assume that Basel will get Bryant’s vote. The guys up here are so hard-up they’ll do anything for sex. We like knee-high black boots. These guys are amazing. I’m horny. Pass the Kleenex...”

Officially Salvatore Salvatore had no comment about the issue other than “I like the smiles.” Salvatore Salvatore went on to talk about his love life and vacation plans with his bride-to-be. They will be flying to Aruba this weekend for four fun-filled days in the sun and on the run.

Ms. Basel was unavailable for comment. A close aide to Ms. Basel, who wished to remain anonymous, said that the president will absolutely not tolerate any nonsense. “Carrie is a real cool cat under pressure, she will expose herself again if necessary. She is such a free spirit, no one will hold her back from doing what she wants, because she’s good enough, she’s smart enough, and gosh damn it people like her.”

An independent investigating committee is being formed by key Basel advisors to look into any wrong-doings that may have occurred.

This is the only Serious article this week!
Hello students of Babson College, this is Bill Glavin here. My good friend Mr. Bill and I were drinking some beer last night and he asked me if I’d be willing to fill in for him this week. I was of course flattered by his kindness but feared that I would not be able to fill the shoes of such a great man. None the less, after another twelve pack, I gave in.

Dear Mr. Bill,

I’m finishing my first year now and I’m scared out of my friggin skull because my grade point average will be under a 3.0 and I want to get out of here. When I decided to go here I chose this place over Georgetown and Penn. What a stupid decision. Now I’m condemned to stay at a school which tolerates Massachusetts trash and a wide array of spoiled international dandies. The education isn’t bad, God knows if I would have been able to endure a couple of classes with these—holes I would have some semblance of order and honor to leave here with. Now I’m condemned to either wait it out with a bunch of imbeciles or go to some mediocre school with a student body headed for a fast food future. What the hell should I do?

The Babson Basher

Yes son, choosing Babson over Georgetown and Penn was a stupid decision. Don’t get me wrong; I get paid quite a bit to believe that we’re the best in the country. It’s just that Mr. Bill told me that I should be honest for once and I’m working for him. The problem, however, is not hopeless. There is a little known clause in the contract which students have with Babson College which most students don’t know about. Since as students you do not have access to this, allow me to reprint the section I am speaking of:

“If at any point during a student’s first two years at Babson College a student cares to raise their grade point average for the purpose of transferring to a different learning institution it is possible to do so. The student may purchase up to one full point at a price of $500 per tenth, or the entire point may be purchased for $4,000. This money is to be brought quietly and in cash to the office of the President.”

See? No problem. I hope to hear from you soon. (I prefer small bills).

Dear Mr. Bill,

While going through the application process for Babson College, I feel that I was greatly misled about Babson’s high diversity population. The fact is, I see less diversity on the Babson campus than I do in a group of Ku Klux Klan members. The Harlem Globetrotters are more diverse than the Babson student population.

Dear sir, the term ‘diversity’ is nothing more than mere propaganda which we use to try and get your application money and hopefully your tuition. Don’t believe everything you read. As for the school’s policy on accepting foreign students, allow me to reprint a passage from the director’s admissions guide (this is a slightly different edition than the student’s version). As students you do not have access to this copy):

“When admissions concern minorities, one percent of all applicants are to be accepted. The remainder of the acceptances are to be distributed amongst the remaining two parties. All South American applicants who come from drug related families are to be accepted. And 66% of snobby, rich white kid applicants who have become accustomed to having everything they want handed to them on a silver platter are to be accepted.”

Honest, that’s policy.

Dear Mr. Bill,

First of all I think that you are one of the greatest guys on campus and a true voice of all men at Babson. I just have one question. I know it is difficult to have a female that is both nice looking and smart. Why does the college let in girls that are both ugly and stupid? If they are going to be ugly, at least let them have the brains to earn enough money for a deserving man so we can spend it on someone nice looking.

A true fan of Yours

I’m sure that Mr. Bill will appreciate your praise and I’ll make sure he gets your letter. Now as far as your question goes, perhaps as President I can shed some light on the subject. I too have wondered why there are stupid ugly girls here. After meeting with my admissions staff at Mustard Hall it seems I have found out why. There is a clause (written in fine print) on the very bottom of the Affirmative action plan which we follow. Since students do not have access to this document, allow me to reprint this clause:

“One fourth of all female students accepted to Babson College must be butt ugly. One third of all female students accepted to Babson College must posses the intelligence of a brick. The remaining percentage of accepted female applicants must be both butt ugly and posses the intelligence of a brick.”

I hope that this explains our policy

In closing, I would like to thank Mr. Bill for this opportunity to guest host this column. I hope that I have come close to his magnificent level of knowledge and expertise in the field of life. Anyway, Mr. Bill will be back next week and I’ve got to get back to being President. If you have any letters you’d like him to answer send them to Box #2355. I’m sure he’d love to hear from you. This is Bill Glavin saying ‘Till next time jerkles...."
FOREST
Nothing much happened here this week. We are just a bunch of boring stiffs anyways. The Barracks once ruled when last year’s occupants were here. But alas, they are gone and so is the coolness.

SOUTH
Well, we would like to welcome the late arrival of Harriet "Hobba Heine" Hillman. She will be a welcome addition to the second floor, if she can fit up the stairs. We would also like to say a big South thanks to everyone on campus for making this such a special year. We love you.

GREEN GABLES...ER MAPLE MANOR
Screw the whole campus! We are so damn sick and tired of being called Green gables, maple manors, the dana hall girls, etc. that we are declaring our independence from Babson. From now on, look to see our Across the Campus in the Dana Hall Milk and Cookies Forum. We would like to say thanks to Bethany for the snack hour we have every Sunday. Way to bond girls!
