Accreditation Acclaim Babson Fares Well With NEASC

By Amy Toll Staff Writer

Babson is near the end of the process of reviewing its accreditation with the New England Association of Schools and Colleges. This is a private, not for profit regional accrediting body. This accreditation is renewed every ten years. The commission will meet on March 6th to complete their analysis of Babson.

The renewal began early last spring. A committee comprised of administration, faculty, trustees and students prepared a document with three main concentrations, which are: description, self-appraisal, and future projections. The NEASC looks at areas such as the faculty, programs, activities, learning resources, and finance. This document was submitted last July.

The next step consisted of a visiting team, comprised of eight academy, who are appointed by the NEASC to visit Babson. Prior to their visit, the team analyzed the copy of the study by the Babson committee. At the end of last October, this visiting team came to Babson and interviewed students, faculty, and every key administrator. Following their visit, the team submitted a report to the NEASC.

On March 6th, the visiting team will meet at Babson, spending an hour discussing the college. Discussions will include both reports, Allan Cohen, VP of Academic Affairs, and Hank Depaull Assistant Vice-President, have been primarily involved in this process.

Rape Investigation at Wellesley

Effects of Sexual Assault Felt at Babson

By Robert Conrad

New Editor

Although Wellesley College seems vastly different from Babson, who are appointed by the NEASC to visit Babson. Prior to their visit, the team analyzed the copy of the study by the Babson committee. At the end of last October, this visiting team came to Babson and interviewed students, faculty, and every key administrator. Following their visit, the team submitted a report to the NEASC. On March 6th, the visiting team will meet at Babson, spending an hour discussing the college. Discussions will include both reports, Allan Cohen, VP of Academic Affairs, and Hank DePaull Assistant Vice-President, have been primarily involved in this process.

A number of incidents, including sexual assault, and breaking and entering have occurred at Wellesley which have made Officers at Babson Public Safety wary. According to Town of Wellesley Police Chief, Thomas O'Laughlin, two sexual assaults occurred, one on February 12th, and the second on February 17th.

Both incidents were reported on February 18th. Chief O'Laughlin could not comment on the exact details of the case because it is under investigation, but he did state that the victim is 10 years old and has experienced a series of attacks. The victim also reported that she was assaulted and battered on Feb. 3rd at 7:30 pm while walking near the parammecum pond. An additional report of breaking and entering was reported by the victim on the 11th.

The Wellesley Police have assigned three detectives to the case who are working closely with Wellesley College authorities. Wellesley College Police have stationed officers in all the dormitories.

O'Laughlin stated that "Our belief is that the suspect knows the victim, but the victim doesn't know the suspect." Chief O'Laughlin also commented that the victim was "unable to unwillingly identify the suspect." Police do have a sketch of the suspect who allegedly assaulted the victim on February 3rd. A Wellesley Police bulletin describes the suspect as a "white male, 21-22 years of age, 6'3" to 6'4" tall, brown hair, medium build, 190 lbs. The suspect was wearing a jeans, and a dark color "Crew" type jacket 3/4".

The suspect allegedly obtained access to the victim's room by an "unlocked door." Consequently, Babson residence hall doors will be locked during all hours, and Residents are encouraged to remember their keys, and not to prop doors. Guests are advised to use the yellow callboxes near entrances and contact their friends by dialing their phone extension. Public Safety can also be contacted via a direct line using the callboxes or from various emergency phones around campus. There are 54 emergency callbox phones located around campus.

Chief Jay Hackett advised students to report any suspicious individuals to Public Safety. Additionally, Hackett advised that students shouldn’t leave their rooms unlocked for long periods of time. Anyone with information about the alleged crime can contact Public Safety at X5955 or the Wellesley Police department directly at 235-1212.

Ronkin’s New LSAT Premium Program:

The Best Way To Prepare For The LSAT

If you’re one of the nation’s 95,000 applicants determined to get into an accredited law school, you know the competition is tough. Since there are only 44,000 openings, a high score on the LSAT is crucial.

That’s why Ronkin created the LSAT Premium Program which offers a choice of three varied levels of assistance.

- LSAT Preparation Course
  Using the most recently updated curriculum, our 40-hour course stresses critical thinking, argument analysis, and logical reasoning. Besides classroom time, our comprehensive LSAT course provides live tutorials, three diagnostic exams, three practice exams, a computer-based tutorial program, homework materials that include released LSATs, and a toll-free Dial-A-Teacher line. Two-day clinics, which are included in Ronkin’s LSAT Gold and Platinum Packages, are also available for an additional fee.

- LSAT Gold Package
  In addition to the 40-hour LSAT course, Ronkin’s LSAT Gold Package includes our two-day LSAT Intensive-Study Clinics offered immediately prior to LSAT examination dates. These clinics concentrate on Logical Reasoning and Logic Games. The Gold Package also includes our Law School Success Program which covers law school exam preparation, legal writing, legal research, and career planning.

- LSAT Platinum Package
  This plan provides everything you’ll need to get into law school and to be a success. Enroll and you’ll receive our LSAT Preparation Course, LSAT Intensive-Study Clinics, Law School Success Program, plus our Law School Selection and Application Assistance Programs.

So if you’re looking for the best in LSAT and law school preparation programs, call The Ronkin Educational Group.

The Industrial Policy Myth

By James R. Augir
Editor-in-Chief

There has been a great deal of talk lately about the alleged failure of the so-called "Industrial Policy" of the Democratic front-runner Paul Tsongas. Since America is in more danger than usual of having its electorate propel a Democrat into the White House, it is important that we analyze his stance in greater detail.

It is true that Tsongas endorses such common sense policies as reduced taxes on corporate income and capital gains (even these measures would be targeted only to "appropriate" securities and industries). These initiatives would become meaningless, though, if the rest of Tsongas' proposals were to become reality.

Indeed, Tsongas appears to be a liberal in conservative's clothing. Not only do he endorse the radical nuclear freeze groups during the early eighties, but he also has sided with the "no growth" factions on economic issues. Tsongas proposed a building moratorium on Cape Cod, which would have effectively unemploy countless construction workers, electricians, real estate salesmen, and the like. No wonder the U.S. Chamber of Commerce has given him consistently poor ratings on business issues.

The front runner is also proposing a return to near Soviet-style central planning. While Tsongas avoids using the term "industrial policy," the majority of his proposals would amount to just that. Specifically, an industrial policy entails government intervention in specific sectors of the economy, with the goal of curbing the economy in the directions believed by policy makers to be good for the nation.

Specifically, Tsongas says he would create federal agencies to undertake research projects. disseminate technology, and offer tax breaks and subsidies to industries he believes to be "critical for America." Aside from the fact that it may not even work, questions as to the potential side-effects of industrial policy must be addressed.

For instance, wouldn't industrial policy degenerate into another political feeding frenzy, with lobbyists and PAC's lining up at the trough for special subsidies and pork-barrel handouts, with inefficient industries being protected? The supposed "gains" stemming from industrial policy would be the sacrifices of income and liberty endured by individuals.

The political temptations that would confront industrial policymakers are obvious. Such a conflict already exists in Congressional treatment of the tobacco industry. Despite the fact that the decision to smoke is an individual reponsibility, tobacco makers are being bailed out of their problems and shielded from draconian regulations prohibiting the use of television advertising and other activities. At the same time, the industry is being heavily subsidized with taxpayers' money. A national industrial policy would be no different, except that it would involve more subsidies, more special interests and more political patronage.

Proponents of industrial policy like to point to Japan as a nation that has successfully incorporated such central planning into their economic way of life. They suggest that such agencies as the Ministry of International Trade and Industry (MITI) have been responsible for the successes of the automotive and electronics industries in Japan. A closer look into these industries suggests otherwise.

After all, MITI did not want Mitsubishi and Honda to build cars, and did not want Sony to purchase U.S. transmission technology. Despite this lack of support, the companies went ahead with their plans, paving the way to their well-known successes (C. Brandon Crocker, "The Myth of Japanese Industrial Policy," The Freeman, April 1988).

Additionally, even since the government lost its monopoly control of credit in the seventies, MITI has had to limit its activities to that of making suggestions. In short, the power of industrial planning agencies has been vastly overrated in Japan, and the most successful industries have been able to convince the government that it was not always wise to intervene in industry.

In addition to shunning the advantages of government planners, Japanese businesses have benefited from the strong yen, which has resulted from low tax rates and the lack of a social security system. Customer responsiveness, cost control, a strong work ethic and, until recently, an abundant supply of cheap labor, have also contributed to Japan's industrial well-being.

Industrial policy, therefore, cannot be credited with success in the Japanese case (and we can certainly see the effects of central planning in the Soviet Union). Why would it be any different in the U.S.? Industrial planning, then, can be rejected on the grounds of unworkability, in addition to the previously discussed problem of potential multicultrual community. Next are both the "Wellness Community" and the "Honor's Community." The former would "support substance free living," a favorite of the Ministry of Residential Life. The latter would focus on academic programs, for those who wish "to better bridge the academic and residential experience." That phrase means absolutely nothing to me, but I decided to include it as an example of the Ministry's expert use of ambiguous language.

The list of the four politically correct housing units is dubbed "Women at Babson." Funny how this is the only one not followed by the word "community." I guess that's because any socially planned, exceptional living development which discriminates on the basis of sex can, by definition, not be a "community."

I'm starting to get used to this kind of PC jargon from the Office of Intraracial on Students Affairs, which would, of course, oversee the Ministry of Residential Life. Besides, it's just too damn funny to get really mad about. It only gets a four on the Meter. Better luck next time guys.

The views expressed in these columns are those of the author and not necessarily those of the Babson Free Press as a whole.
By Mark W. Underwood
Staff Writer

I have always been a firm believer that one should be compensated according to the quality of one's performance. If you do "A" quality work, you deserve to get an "A". Likewise, if you build a company from scratch and make it extremely profitable, you deserve to be dirt rich. Isn't that what Bill Gates did with Microsoft? Isn't that what capitalism is all about?

Unfortunately, things don't work like this all of the time. Is it possible to do "D" quality work and still get an "A". Of course it is, but only through the use of a curve. Similarly, if you are CEO of a company it is possible to drive your company into the red and still be dirt rich? Of course it is—just look at Lee Iacocca, the CEO of Chrysler. Chrysler, which hasn't been in the black for as long as I can recall, pays its chairman an annual salary of $4.26 million. There is definitely something amuck here.

What are the reasons why Iacocca and other CEOs are earning exorbitant amounts of money, while their companies aren't?

There are several reasons determined by consultants hired by the board of directors can relate to the profitability of the company. The only thing that consultants are able to determine are the salary levels that will lure and keep CEOs. Because of this, no real market exists, and there is no accountability to the stockholders.

Iacocca has expanded on this idea in his book The Essence of Ownership from Control. He claimed that since corporations are run by paid managers, they have no incentive to maximize profits. He also stated that maximizing size and gaining power are more important than maximizing profits. Thus, CEOs could have little incentives to make their companies profitable. Yet, they still walk away with loads of money.

As always, where there's a problem there is an infinite amount of regulations. One solution that has been proposed by some of the "crin-cin" politicians on Capitol Hill is that executive pay should be a multiple of the average worker's pay. Or, it has been proposed that a cap should be applied to the tax deductions that companies take for executive pay. These proposals are not only economically unsound, but also solutions that have nothing to do with the problem. It is just not rational thought. You don't put a cast on the left leg when the right leg is broken.

It is like the Keynesians trying to solve a problem with supply by changing the factors that affect demand. It is just not rational thought: you don't put a cast on the left leg when the right leg is broken. Is this a problem that requires more regulation from our already too regulatory government? I think not! If the government wants to help, though, it should move to deregulate rather than regulate. Many proposals that are being talked about involve the idea of holding the CEOs more accountable to the stockholders by having the SEC loosen proxy rules; so that stockholders can have more say in what the CEOs make. The underlying goal of all of this is to reward for good performance and punish for failure. Just ask John Ahearn, CEO of IBM, whose base pay for 1991 will be reduced 40% from the previous year. The sole reason: IBM had its first annual loss in 1991. The man still walks home with $1.6 million, though.

The market for CEO salaries obviously has some weakness. These weaknesses, however, would be better resolved through actions taken in the marketplace, rather than the introduction of further government regulation. Once again the free market prevails... sort of.
Fellow students, my name is Jon Michelson, better known as "Tex," and I am running for the position of your S.G.A. President of your school. As President, John F. Kennedy said: "Ask not what your country can do for you. But what you can do for your country." I would like to extend the same thoughts to you for your school. I decided, plan on accomplishing as much as possible for Babson College and its student body.

However, I will need your help. A vote for "Tex" is good for you.

Erect me into office and I will strongly express your opinions to the administration and faculty. I will not sit back and take "no" for an answer. I will take issues as far as needed, until action is taken.

Speaking of issues, there are two that I would like to address:

1) The monopoly of the social life; sure, we will continue to sponsor events every weekend, but let's do something other than go to Knight Auditorium. We need more campus-wide and outdoor events.

2) The smoking policy; if you have not already heard, smoking is not going to be allowed anywhere on the entire campus next year, except in your rooms. I'm a non-smoker, but this is a little ridiculous.

I take a great deal of pride in who I am, how I conduct myself, and how people perceive me. Elect me as President and I will act on your words, the word of the student body. We are the reason this school is here and our voice should be heard loud and clear. Elect Jon "Tex" Michelson as President and you will define the Student Government and your voice will be heard.

Gerald "Sal" Salvatori
President

A Student Government President is your liaison to faculty and administration. It follows that having established working relationships with key members of faculty and administration would be very beneficial to the SGA President and therefore the student body as a whole. After serving as an SGA representative and now as your VP Social, I have developed these relationships in addition to a strong working knowledge of how student Government functions and to cut through the political "red tape" here at Babson.

Serving as VP Social I have worked to improve the social life here at Babson. In retrospect, every weekend had two events planned (except Columbus Day which had one event planned). Agreed the social life here at Babson isn't the exciting and thrilling experience that it is at other schools. But, I have worked hard and taken it as far as it could go, and then some, with the existing policies. They are very restrictive and as President I would work with the VP Social in changing or softening these policies.

I am up for any challenge. I am not afraid to oppose any policy or administrator if the cause is in the students' best interest, and I have done so in the past. One example from when I first took office. I was told that I would never program events in Peposo and never with alcohol. Well, with the help of Joe Ford, Frank Millet, Steve Stirling, and many others, this year's Spring Weekend Beach party will be held in Peposo with alcohol! Granted this was not earth shattering, but as President I will have more influence with administrators to make important social and academic changes for the students.

When you vote, please vote for the experienced candidate with first hand knowledge of how SGA works. Please vote for me, Gerald "Sal" Salvatori for your President.

The four years that you spend at Babson College should be educational, exciting and most importantly, maintain the quality of life at Babson, it is important that you have an effective, experienced leader on your Executive Board. Once again, the students deserve the person who is willing to make a solid commitment to the Student Government Association and its responsibilities.

My name is Marc Baer. I am currently your SGA VP of Communications. If elected as Executive Vice-President, I will continue to work very closely on community issues ranging from the quality of education to public safety to the social life. This includes continuing my role as chair of the President of the Library Advisory Board and assuming the position of Chair of the Public Safety Advisory Board.

In addition to my roles on the various committees, it is one of my goals to establish a monthly Student Government Newsletter. This newsletter will be distributed to students in the decision-making process, whether they are club members, athletes, international students, Greeks or somebody with a special cause. This goal can be obtained by an individual who has the proven leadership experience.

When placing the check by the name on the ballot, be sure you are voting for someone with school pride, proven SGA leadership experience and dedication. Thank you and remember to support Marc Baer for your SGA Executive Vice President.

As Executive Vice President, I will press for student involvement in every aspect of campus life. We should be actively involved in school-wide decisions and in the campus' events. We need to look around and realize the quantity of resources surrounding us. I intend to enhance the life on Babson's campus, and I want every one of us to take part in this initiative.

I would like to see the administration working more closely with the students in decision making. If the administration is considering implementing a policy that in any way affects the students, such as class registration or lotteries, then the students should be notified. The school is a business surviving on us, so it should be conducted to benefit us.

We can also benefit by taking advantage of the over fifty organizations on campus and the resources they provide. Student Government needs to fuel the campus by promoting the programs that are offered by these groups.

The motivation ignited by this spark will spur more involvement in campus events and athletics. It would be extremely worthwhile to utilize groups that have formed solely for the benefit of the student body. We can no longer sit idle. Finally, we should seize the opportunity to involve our faculty as well as organizations in campus life; they are a great asset whose resources should be valued.

This school can get better, and I will be the catalyst for that change. We need to

Marci Baer
Executive VP

Michael Berry
Executive VP
STUDENT GOVERNMENT CANDIDATES

Contenders for Vice President Finance:

My name is Cheryl Nesta and I am a candidate for V.P. Finance. I am an accounting major and presently serve as a member of the Ways and Means Committee, which is the V.P. Finance chair. My interest in the V.P. Finance position stems from my positive experience as a contributing member of the team. As a committee member, I have assisted in the current V.P. Finance, Amy Carroll, in completing the budgeting process, allocating organizational funds and reviewing funding proposals.

In addition to serving on the committee, I have experience as a Student Government representative at Babson, bringing the concerns of my residence hall before the Executive Board. I realize that as your V.P. Finance, I will be doing a similar task in that I will be responsible for listening to and addressing student questions and concerns at each weekly meeting. I will convey your thoughts to the administration, keeping this objective in mind, whether it is to initiate change or push it to limit.

I believe that the campus organizations are the customers of the V.P. Finance. With the aid of a cohesive Ways and Means Committee, I will solicit your thoughts and suggestions and implement them to further strengthen your confidence in my abilities and my commitment to you. In conclusion, I look forward to accepting the challenge and putting forth the dedication required to live up to the Babson tradition of being the best and setting new standards of excellence.

Cheryl Nesta
V.P. Finance

Who do students think of when they want social events to occur on campus? It's usually the V.P. Social, right? Well, it shouldn't be that way. The students should think of the V.P. Finance. There has to be a strong financial backing for these events to take place. I feel I am the person to do that teaching.

I am Amy Penniman and I want to be your next V.P. Finance. I am currently in my third year at Babson and have seen some great things happen during that time. Our present executive board has done a great job, and I am interested in ensuring that same level of performance for the next term of office. I have spoken with Amy Carroll and have become familiar with the responsibilities of the position. With my abilities and dedication, I know I can do a good job.

I want the students to feel sure in knowing that the funds that are set aside for student government are used to their fullest potential for the benefit of the student body. I feel that funds should be allocated to organizations on the basis of the organizations past usage. The organizers which did not sponsor campus activities should not be allocated the same amount of funds as those who organize campus activities on a regular basis.

In becoming VP Finance, I am willing to take on the challenge and commitment that is needed in this position. I will learn the procedures that have been followed in the past, and change those which the students feel can be improved upon. I am elicting you, Amy Penniman, as your next VP Finance, you can be sure that I will be acting in the best interest of you, the students. Vote Amy Penniman for VP Finance!!!

Amy Penniman
V.P. Finance

For those of you who do not know me, my name is Nick Walzer and I am a junior accounting/economics major. I have been an active member of the Babson community and feel these activities have prepared me for the position of V.P. Finance. I am currently a Student Government representative and have gained an understanding about how Student Government operates. As a member of the Student Undergraduate Residential Forum, I have worked with my constituents to discover what they have wanted as Babson students. I have also been on the Orientation leader, a member of the Ultimate Frisbee team, played in intramural sports, and an active member in a variety of volunteer activities.

I have tried to make a difference at Babson and I believe I have. I am running for V.P. Finance and I am asking for your support. I have experience in the Babson community and close friendships with several members of the Babson faculty. I know what it takes to be a leader and how to get things done.

In addition to these activities, I am also co-founder of Tuxedo Times, a student business on campus. As co-founder, I learned about success and hard work and gained experience in the financial side of running a business. I have also worked as an auditor for a hotel and understand the business of finance. Put this experience to work.

As V.P. Finance, I will work for you and the Babson campus. That's what S.G.O. is all about. My door has and always will be open to any one. My main goal if elected will be to make sure that the Babson community is represented and that the funds are allocated to events which you want. S.G.O. is for you and I will make sure they are.

I am asking for your support and your vote. Vote for Nick Walzer for V.P. Finance!!! Thank you.

Nick Walzer
V.P. Finance

Primary elections will be held Wednesday March 4 and Thursday March 5.

The general election will take place on Wed. March 11 and Thurs. March 12.

Your vote makes a difference, so get off your duff and cast a ballot!
THE STUDENT GOVERNMENT CANDIDATES

Contenders for VP Licensing, VP Communications:

I am a junior here at Babson and I have had experience in Student Government here as well as holding a presidential position in the past. I have been a member of the Social Committee for the past two years and currently am a member of its executive board. As Thomas Lapointe said in the last Free Press, the Social Committee has made a vast improvement in the number of people at events as well as increasing the overall feeling of community and pride in Babson. With a position on our Student Government, I hope to work with the other members as well as the community in continuing to make Babson even better.

I also run Aquarius Plus, an on-campus business, and would like to facilitate the licensing process in order to encourage more students to take advantage of the opportunity of having their own business. I would like to have more events where on-campus businesses can display their merchandise or services.

Such events include business fairs, flea markets, a section in the Free Press for businesses. As Vice President of Licensing, I will combine my pride for Babson and my interest in business to continue the involvement of our community in my final year at the number one business school in the U.S.

I envision a college that is self-sufficient and will offer all students the opportunity to purchase goods and services from other students in the so that no outside sources would need to be sought. Please consider voting for me on March 10-11.

My name is John Kiladis and I am running for the office of V.P. Licensing. Having served on the licensing committee this past year, I know what is required to ensure that Babson will continue to issue licenses to student businesses that have merit.

John Kiladis
VP Licensing

Hello, my name is Liam Brenner and I am running for Vice President of Communications for Student Government. I am the best candidate for the position for several reasons. First, I am an extremely motivated individual and one committed to a project will succeed. I believe in S.G.A. and its importance to the student body. In the last year I have gained much experience through involvement on several committees representing the students to the administration. This valuable experience and interaction have taught me the importance of involvement.

Another characteristic that makes me the best candidate for the position is my ethic of hard work. Every successful candidate, business person, and human being possesses a strong work ethic, and I in turn will bring this ethic to the S.G.A. every day.

I am not only a motivated, hard worker, but I am also at the required meetings, but also whenever needed by a member of the student body.

No vote cast for Liam Brenner will be unreported. When elected with your vote of confidence not only will I succeed, but we shall succeed. Thank you.

My name is Michael Kanarrellis and I am running for V.P. Communications. If elected, I will engineer and act upon a broad based communications platform, which will directly concentrate on issues that profoundly influence all of us. I truly believe that the office of V.P. Communications should encompass more of a substantial role in our Student Government than simply taking minutes at meetings.

If elected, I plan to finally make ground on the issue of cable at Babson. Indeed, I do not intend to intimidate that by year's end every student at Babson will have cable. My plan entails pooling our collective resources and working with Continental Cable to devise a feasible plan of implementation.

Also, I plan to focus much of my attention on creating greater awareness of social and athletic events. This can be done by simply increasing the advertising effort, which supports the various events. I've been very discouraged by the lack of utilization of Trim as a viable forum of communication.

One of my ultimate goals in office will be to increase awareness of Babson in the business community. I believe it is our right to be included in the process of how Babson is in essence, selling itself to prospective employers. I intend to seek the cooperation of OCS and relevant members of the administration so we may discuss prospective avenues, which may be taken to increase awareness of Babson, both locally and abroad.

In conclusion, I would like to stress that I am confident that I hold the qualifications and confidence which bely my inexperience. I believe, if elected, I will be a vital component of S.G.A. My vote will not only be head on communication issues, but on all issues which affect our community. Show your support by voting Michael Kanarrellis for V.P. Communications.
THE STUDENT GOVERNMENT CANDIDATES

Contenders for Vice President Social:

How many of you tend to pack up your suitcases on Friday afternoon and go home for the weekend? When I think back to my freshman year, I can remember tons of people leaving the campus to find entertainment elsewhere. But this past year has been different. Due to the great number of activities planned, they have the option to stay. My name is Andrea Dobias, and I’m running for VP Social because I want even more people to stay on campus. I want to plan a wide range of events to satisfy the diverse tastes of Babson students. Basically, I want more people to become involved in the social life here. I plan to achieve this by genuinely listening to what people have to say. Currently I am on the All College Council to bring student issues to the administration. I want to the same with social issues. I plan to work with individuals as well as organizations to program what you want to see. I want to hear complaints right along with suggestions. As VP Social, I will take these complaints and turn them around by sponsoring better events.

Once the events are planned I will make sure they are advertised. How can people attend an event if they didn’t know it was going to occur? I plan to work closely with the VP Communications in order to make sure the campus knows what’s going on.

I have the experience required to get this job done right. Currently, I am on the Executive Board of the Social Committee and have worked closely with Sal, the current VP Social. I have been involved in the planning of many of the SCSo-sponsored events. I have also been entrusted with carrying out these events when the Sal was away.

The most important job of VP Social is to work for the students. This is exactly what I want to do. College is supposed to be the best years of our lives. A vote for me, Andrea Dobias for VP Social, will make sure that it is.

I would like to congratulate Sal on a job well done. He has left me a hard act to follow, but I know I am up for the challenge.

The office of Vice President Social is one of the most demanding and time-consuming positions a student can hold. Therefore I would like you to consider my political past. In 1990, with Proposition 2 1/2 threatening to destroy the schools of Massachusetts, I founded a PACT student for Quality Education. We raised $10,000 and successfully ran a campaign to override this menacing proposition, winning by only 10 votes.

The real question is what can I do for YOU? I will take this task with the utmost seriousness and work extremely hard to make social life at Babson the best it can possibly be. I will start a social network with the Boston area colleges so that when we have a weekend that is relatively light in campus parties you will be aware of events happening at Boston College, Boston University, Wellesley, Regis, MIT, Pine Manor, etc. Every Thursday I would like to advertise the Party of the Week, which could be at any campus in the Boston area, along with directions or transportation.

In warmer weather I would like to bring the Knight parties outdoors. The feasibility of this was confirmed by Matt Bancroft, currently Executive Vice President. The only thing needed is permission from the administration.

Every position should have an ultimate goal. Mine will be to get a big name performer to come in the spring for an outdoor concert on the upper athletic field. With all the promotion Babson would get I think the administration would be willing to pay for a portion of the cost for such an entertainer. My first choice would be Jimmy Buffet.

First off, I would like to say that whoever is elected VP Social has large shoes to fill. What we need in the new VP Social is someone who is capable of building on the foundation that "Sal" has laid.

I feel there is room for social improvement. The campus is still a little segregated. Each fraternity, sorority along with the rest of the organizations stay with their own crowd. Imagine the Babson community as a jigsaw puzzle with each organization representing a piece. If organizations choose to isolate themselves, the puzzle can not be completed and Babson as a whole suffers. If we all come together and commit to making Babson a better place, we all benefit. If elected I will work with SSCO and the Presidents of organizations to make sure there is never a dull weekend on campus. I'll recommend that organizations pool their resources to allow for more events.

For a division III school, Babson has compiled very good seasons. Our basketball teams and hockey team are nationally ranked, yet our cheerleaders are seldom full. We should be showing a lot more fan support for our home teams. By throwing pre or post-game parties we can help boost Beaver Fever.

After the Presidential Ball, several faculty members and students commenteded on the opportunity of socializing together. Because of cost constraints, we can't afford formal dances. This does not mean we can't have a faculty/staff weekend including barbecue, band, beer and softball games.

Currently, there are a few events planned with other school. What I hope to do is plan events at Babson with other schools, even Bentley. With Bentley we can have a battle of the DJ's, and a Babson vs. Bentley weekend including a party at each campus and intramural competition.

These are just some ideas I can offer. Also, if elected I would be requesting feedback from your Student Government Representatives because this can only work with your support. Thank you for taking time to listen to my ideas and remember don't forget to vote!

VOTE! VOTE! VOTE! VOTE! VOTE! VOTE!
In Our View...

Yes, it's that time of year again—the political season—when the SAO elections are now underway. We commend those who have thrown their hat in the ring and put in the long hours of arduous campaigning. We also recognize that our Executive Board will have large shoes to fill. Therefore, it is important that students take their vote seriously, and it is incumbent upon the editors of this journal to address some of the concerns that have arisen in this year's campaign. In that aim, I offer here my two cents worth.

Cable Television: One of the primary campaign planks of candidates present and past has been the desire to bring cable TV to dormitories. While this would be a nice luxury, it is just that. In light of the many other upgrades that need to be made to our facilities, I must opine that cable TV is just one of the lesser items on our priority list. This is especially true when we take cost into consideration: between fees and installation costs, the total bill would be in the range of $5 million, or the cost of a new dormitory. I can't speak for the "cable bugs," but $22,000 per annum is a big enough chunk for us.

To those who complain that the political season, SAO elections, plus the Fox network, i.e., the Simpsons, Martored with Children are not enough, then I challenge you to imagine what the capabilities of this network would do. Surely, a larger number of opportunities for new experiences and personal growth; certainly not a time to be watching Green Acres reruns on Nickelodeon.

The VP Licensing Position: I'm not a year to year on SAO's licensing deals and prepare a business plan or two. This is not intended to be a reflection on the performance of VPs of Licensing past or present, albeit some have been better than others: the problem that needs to be resolved here is a systemic one. In short, this position of needless red tape should be phased out and the duties incorporated into those of the EVP.

Multi-College Social Events: The idea of having students from other colleges attend our social events is a quaint one. Just be advised that these guests had better be allowed to access our refreshments, and be cause physical damage to our campus.

Through our student activities fees, we have already paid for these pizza, beer, etc., that go along with our parties, and we all are familiar with the problem that occurs when 300 people descend upon our respective student bodies. Then, for one, feel uneasy at the prospect of streams of alcohol from neighboring colleges, who have the benefit of an inebriate status, descending upon our campus.

Babson's USA Today-ism: I can't walk by the rubber stamp base at the Press Box have received complaints about the alleged lack of First Amendment rights. Dear Editor:

I write this letter with a great deal of concern and a little frustration. It is something bad happening lately at Babson, and it is destroying our community. This evil of which I speak is the failure to take responsibility for their actions. Too many students have been acting lately without any regard for the consequences of their actions. Let me offer you a few examples to clarify my point.

The first example is all the vandalism which has been occurring, especially in the parking lots. Many vehicles have had radio antennas bent in half, and others have had telephone antennas completely ripped off their car's roof. The replacement costs are not so much at issue as the question of what idiots think they have the right to destroy another person's property? I'll give you the answer, and that is no one! Do people get some sort of deranged satisfaction out of vandalism? Do you think that you are teaching someone a lesson when you destroy someone's radio or phone antenna? Do you think it's being cool and acting like a role model for the future? I hope not, because if yes, may I suggest professional help for your inability to accept responsibility for your actions and to cope with a low self-esteem.

The second example is dorm damage, which, while decreasing over previous years, is still an expensive and proliferate problem. The next time you feel like punching a window, punch out the screen on your TV or computer, then try explaining the damage to your parents when you want a replacement. The Residential Life staff are not your parents, but they sure as hell expect you to be responsible for what you damage, just as Mum and Dad would.

The last example is sort of a catch-all section. Less than one week after the new student lounge opened in Central, some bright person stole the pool table balls! Some other real cool people decided some of the international flags in Staake Gymnasium would make a nice decorative addition to their rooms. Most recently, some very talented individuals performing in the Air Band contest at Knight decided to punticate their act with a spray of gingerale on an unsuspecting crowd, with no thought of the expensive leather and wool coats that would require costly dry cleaning after that action. If you just snickered at what I wrote, then you should read carefully what follows.

Yes, boys and girls, I use those gender identifications with all the disrespect they imply for a college student. It is time to grow up and be fast. If you are learning that behavior such as this will continue to be tolerated, either here at Babson or in the real world, you are in for a shock. You, unfortunately, are the minority and there are many of us who will not tolerate your irresponsible behavior anymore. We are tired of footing the bills for your drinking binge related damages and are willing to hold you accountable for what you do, once you seem to be incapable of acting responsibly on your own. You may hitch and moan, and you will curse the person who challenges your level of responsibility, but it is high time you learn to be a productive and responsible member of society. As for those of you who witness the malicious act of the stupid, get a life and report it. The people who commit the inexcusable acts of theft and vandalism will never learn right from wrong until those of us who hold them accountable for their actions.

Sincerely,
Fred E. Gantzler, III (Trey)

It's Time to Mature

Show Up or Shut Up

Dear Editor:

It is Monday night at 8:30 p.m., about two hours after the candidates finished up their speeches for the SGA elections.

We all heard the profound words and encompassing ideas from our potential leaders and, with delight, and with overwhelming enthusiasm. Each candidate gracefully came up with some way of improving the social life here at Babson. As we're all aware, the majority of the general population seems to complain about the social life. We adored and envied the enthusiasm of going to Knight every Saturday. We seem to enjoy complaining more than we do anything else. Today I seem to hear someone put down the social life and other problems that exist here at Babson. I complain just as much (if not more) about the dilemmas that affect us on a daily basis. But on the night when the candidates make their addresses to the voices, only about 80 out of 1700 students attend. That means that 3 percent of our entire school attended this meeting.

If we complain so much here at Babson then why don't we voice our anger to the future SGA officers. It's their responsibility to ensure that our needs and desires are met. Naturally, on the night of the year when we can really make a difference as a school, only 3 percent of the student body attends. I ask myself, along with a variety of other students, why? Here are some of the responses I'm getting. Don't have time. Excuses. Believe me, we are all in the same situation. Each of us has other commitments with academics, work, and so forth. We are all extremely busy and don't have enough time to complete everything. However, I think that one and a half hours a year, to listen to our future leaders, is not asking too much. One of the more justifiable excuses I hear is, "I have to watch TV." Ironically, this response comes from a person whom I respect and actually consider very intelligent. These same people will sit around this Friday night moaning and groaning, while our contemporaries at B.U. and B.C. are having the best four years of their lives. Doesn't this seem ridiculous? If this is our attitude, then we don't deserve anything more. We have to be more aggressive in what we want here at Babson and in life. We can't passively sit around and begin. If we truly want more at Babson, then we should voice our opinions freely and openly at events like this.

I would implore you to listen to what our friends have to say. The candidates really have some great ideas. Certainly, in our esteemed student body, we can make their thoughts even better. Until we begin doing this and become more community-oriented, we don't deserve better parties or events.

Sincerely,
C. Roger Rendrick

This Week's Question: What do you think of all the signs in Trim?

Terri Diminico
"You can't see people coming down the ramp."

Chris Adair
"I wouldn't know, I don't eat in Trim."

Brett Burton
"I think they are lovely."

Todd Johnson and Rob Tobin
"There are too many."

Gretchen Parker
"I think it shows the enthusiasm of the candidates."
Lifesavers Needed

By Eric Moffat

By now, many of you are aware that it is that time of the semester again for the Red Cross Blood Drive. This time last year, our nation's troops were at war and there was a growing concern that there was not enough blood for them in the event of an all out prolonged ground war. This brought out many people to the donor centers and blood drives and even exceeded the storage facilities for the Red Cross in some areas. Luckily, we did not need all of the blood because of the quick end to the war. However, once again the Red Cross needs your help here on the home front to save lives by giving blood.

On Monday, March 2nd and Tuesday March 3rd, Theta Chi Fraternity and Sigma Kappa Sorority will be sponsoring a blood drive in 710 from 1pm-7. This does not mean only undergraduates either MBA's, Faculty, Staff and Administration are encouraged to attend. We need everyone's help to make this yet another successful blood drive for Babson College. You can either call for an appointment or walk in on Monday or Tuesday. For more information or an appointment, call Eric Moffat at x-4736.

AIDS - Seek Their Courage

By Laura J. Mirahito
Contributing Writer

Don't say that you will never be touched by AIDS, because the disease now strikes so randomly that you can never be certain. I am a junior at Babson, and last year, in Park Manor Central, I lived next to Fabianne Curtis. She died of AIDS this winter. We came close friends in the few months she was here, but not close enough. Fabianne was a beautiful person with a sickness that haunted her life. I learned more about courage in that short time than I have or ever will in my life.

Fabianne never told me or my roommates that she had AIDS. I can recall the times I was sitting alone, talking with her, and she would give obvious hints that she was infected with the disease. I knew what I knew in my heart she wanted. I never asked her if she was going to die of AIDS, and I never once let her know that I knew. The guilt and anger I feel towards myself for not reaching out to her are with me everyday. I wish that I had the opportunity to love those months over, educated and uninfected.

I am writing this article so that I can attempt to live them over, through you. If and when you come into contact with someone who has AIDS, be educated. Then you can offer the support that I was afraid to give.

The General's Corner

By Bill Chisholm

Stud Writer

Well, this week started out great. Just when I thought I was over my winter cold it came back, new and improved. I've been looking up about a pound of lung butter every couple of hours; which the nurses at the Health Center have told me to spit out no matter what. It makes for some great situations in the classroom, though. "Well, I think the sales manager should...poofoo," right in the trash barrel. It's a great way to make new friends. Yes, there is a touch of class in my article each and every week.

I don't know what it was last weekend, but I have never had so many beers knocked out of my hand in a night as I did Friday and Saturday. What really killed me is that they were almost full every time, so after the fifth or sixth time I became a bit agitated. Again, it's just another example of alcohol abuse that we have to deal with. It paints me deeply to see beer spilled like that. The way I look at it, knocking a beer out of my hand is like knocking the Bible out of a priest's hands; it just shouldn't happen. Hopefully this weekend will be better. Hopefully I will be able to go five minutes without coughing like I'm choking to death.

One bright spot from last weekend was the band that played at Knight on Saturday. World Premiere put on a great show, and whoever brought them to Babson deserves a pat on the back. I hope we can get them back here before the year ends. If you didn't make it, you missed a great live show. They were the kind of band that even if you didn't like the style of music they played, you had to respect their antics and energy on the stage. Of course, my respect for them went through the roof when they began to play a song by Faith No More. There aren't too many bands who play top-40 music that could pull that one off, but World Premiere did with ease. Come back soon.

What happened to the pub last Thursday, where was everybody? I couldn't believe the place was so empty on a Thursday night, with less than three months to graduation, you have to wonder what people are thinking when they waste a pub night studying. In spite of that, most of the pub teams managed to make their appointments as required by the contest rules. So far there are eleven teams that still have perfect records. That will change, though. Don't worry AI, 2A, and B1, the Metallacs concert will be over in just enough time for me to make it back for last call on Saturday. So much for your chance at victory.

For those of you who just did a double take; yes, I am seriously going to see Metallica in Providence this Saturday night. Can't you see me just blending in with the crowd down there, banging my head and screaming? If you've seen me at a Babson basketball game, you know it isn't much of a stretch. Look for a review in next week's Freep: I know you'll all be counting the days for it (sure, and Paul Tsongas is pro-business).

On a closing note, it's funny how humorless people equate their own lack of humor as a sense of maturity? If you think the inability to laugh at yourself is a sign of maturity, then you are going to live a very difficult and lonely life. Have a most bodacious day!

Globalization and Babson

By Kimberlee Gardaer
Graduate Editor

"Globalization!" You hear the term constantly mentioned both in and outside of class. We use the term, but do we really understand the dimensions and opportunities attached to it? Do we fully comprehend its potential manifestations and consequences? "Globalization" as defined by this article means to cut across all markets, without recognizing borders among the many different cultures. Globalization would treat the world as one market. The term "global" is broken up into different components and areas. For example, global finance would be to finance the company from all over the world; global production would be viewed as one logistic system worldwide.

In today's business environment, do managers need to understand the implications of being global or can they just survive on the domestic knowledge of their own country? I feel that to cope in today's global and multinational environment, one would need to have some type of knowledge of the world. It does not necessarily mean that the person should visit several countries, but he should at least have some type of communication system with several countries. The goal is to somehow absorb the various cultures and develop a good understanding of how to successfully conduct business in those countries. With companies becoming extremely competitive within their own borders as well as internationally, it is imperative for the future managers to understand how to operate successfully in that environment. Babson tries to provide the world with future managers and executives who can effectively compete in a global as well as domestic future. Babson fulfills the requirement by offering several courses that attach the word "global" to it. How do these global courses or the regular courses help the students for their upcoming international future? Babson cannot provide the substitute of international work experience but it can give the student the analytical tools necessary to deal with the global world. Babson teaches the student as to what companies are active around the world as well as what those companies are doing to survive. Babson also can help the student as becoming better decision makers but it ignores the knowledge base necessary for the various cultures. However, Babson does offer its students a close substitute to foreign experience, its IMPE. The IMPE offers students the chance to go abroad and gain some international experience. Students who can take advantage of this program are urged to do so, for it is an excellent opportunity.

In talking about globalization, one must also understand the diverse cultures of each country and the value system that go with them. One example of this would be how education is viewed. In the United States people tend to revere and reward victories related to sports activities more than achievements in education or mental activities (for example, chess). But in a lot of European countries education or mental activities are valued and praised much more than physical sports. This is not to say whether one system is right or wrong, but rather to take into account the fact that there are differences and to learn how to take advantage of them. Since not all of the values are in bold print for everyone to see, do not assume that the value system that you uphold applies to other countries.

With firms becoming more global by the minute, it is in the best interest of the student to become aware of those future challenges. Babson is a good place to start. While the student takes courses that have global implications or talks to their professors or takes an IMPE, Babson excels in comparison to other business schools in its global education. Remember, though, without some way to escape the growing omnipresence of multicultural diversity.

Business Ethics

Lawrence S. Moss
Professor of Economics and International Business

Advocates of strict laws and massive administrative solutions have to explain why a civil servant will be more successful at protecting careless consumers than a modern business owner who has invested tens of thousands of dollars in a small business venture and wants to reap a profit on this investment. I have not found these explanations all that convincing. The study of business ethics is too subtle a subject to be left to those who are without training in economics and simply cannot think things through.

The thing I like about Babson's graduate programs is the emphasis on economic reasoning. It was the philosopher and economist, Bernard Mandeville, who at the beginning of the eighteenth century, in his notorious Fable of the Bees, argued that private vices were valuable to the macroeconomy because they spurred business activity and produced lots of jobs. Before the eighteenth century ran out, philosophers such as James Madison and David Hume realized that cooperation between political parties was not something to be feared but rather acted as a check on corruption and power. In the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, modern economic policy analysts also recognized the positive role competition can have on expanding consumer welfare.

These ideas and their implications are the staple of most highly ranked M.B.A. programs today.

In recent years, economists have started collecting evidence about how the competition between social values and customs can in many cases (certainly not all cases) produce rules and behaviors that promote broader ethical and moral values. The study of economics helps us to enjoy the humor of the graduate speakers but also to use those stories as the basis for a more realistic and more favorable appreciation of the market process.
Fantastic Finish
For Squash Team At Nationals!

By Michael R. Gagnon
Contributing Writer

After losing its numbers 1, 3, and 7 players to graduation, in 1992, the Babson Squash team knew that 1992 was going to be a building season. A building season! That phrase brings chills to players and coaches alike. Usually that means getting your butt kicked on the road and at home. It can also mean "shakedown," as those players whose faith drop out of the top 20. It's very easy to love the sport and "but into" the next concept when you win. It takes chutzpah, heart, and mental endurance to stay with the ship when it's under fire. For those who sacrificed a little price in the short-run and stay with the ship, the long-run rewards are many. This transcends athletics and extends into life. The most successful people in this world are those who never give up, those who can see the light at the end of the tunnel -- no matter how dim, those who give 100%. These special people are life's greatest achievers.

This season, the Babson squash team, which last year finished 26th in the nation, finished with a very tough schedule. In all, 20 matches were played. Twelve of those matches came against nationally ranked teams nationally ranked in the top twenty. Focusing on the National Tournament at Yale, and following the great leadership of senior co-captain Suvir Varma (number 4 national and junior co-captain Stephen Young (number 1 national), the young Babson men developed into a tight-knit team. We peaked this weekend at the National Tournament in the Conway Division. Babson swept the United States Air Force Academy in the first round. Undaunted, the Babson team annihilated Air Force 9-0. Strong performances were turned in by all, especially the bottom of the lineup. Freshman standout Anuj "Bloody superb" Anand (number 9) crushed his opponent 15-2, 15-2, and 15-3. Not to be outdone, freshman Ravishing Ravi Hemmati quickly disposed of his opponent holding him to 5 points in 3 games. With a game characterized by three-wall boasts and hard hitting, Arvo "I can't swing any harder!" Ladha finished off his man. At number one, Stephen "Fingers" Young blew away his opponent on Yale's stadium court in three decisive games.

In the second round we would face Wesleyan College, the first seed and winner of last year's tournament. Strong performances were turned in again by Steve Young and sophomore sensation Andres "I just rolled out of bed" Cole (number 9 national) as they both extended their opponents to a fifth game. The greatest match was had by newcomer Ricardo "the win machine" Maduro who averaged an earlier loss to Wesleyan with a four game victory.

In the first round of the consolation tournament, Babson faced Harvard College - who finished three spots ahead of us in the regular season rankings. Out to prove themselves, the Babson squash team played their strongest match of the season and with an orchestral effort came away with a 6-3 upset victory. Once again Young and Cole went to five games battling their opponents. Impressive wins were turned in by Varun "Too Sexy for this Court" Saps (number 3 national), Suvir "Better Under Pressure" Varma, Maduro, Hemmati, Anand, and the 'very single' Sebastian Micocci (number 7 national). Micocci and Hemmati played their best matches of the year, drilling forehand's and backhands en route to 3 game blowouts.

In the finals of the consolation, Babson faced a hungry Skidmore College. In a grueling match, the more experienced Skidmore came away with a 6-3 victory. Wins were turned in by Saps and Maduro who went undefeated for the tournament. Courageous efforts were turned in by Cole, who again pushed a very strong senior to five games, and the ever-celebrated Murat "the man in the hat" Luukmane who battled it out at number 10 position. Playing in his final collegiate squash match, co-captain Suvir Varma went out like a true champion. He has helped Young to lead this team by example with his great determination and intelligence on the court. After dropping the first game, Varma rallied to win three in a row to close out his usual win. He is a player who has earned the respect of his players and coaches.

Inside the NHL: Kings deal for Oiler reunion

By Chris Bignell
Contributing Writer

Another big trade occurred in the NHL last week between the LA Kings, the Pittsburgh Penguins, and the Philadelphia Flyers. The Pens traded All-Star defensemen Paul Coffey to LA and Mark Recchi to the Flyers. In return, the Pens acquired Rich Tochett, Kelly Samuelson, Jeff Chychrun, Ken Wreggett, and a draft pick. The Flyers also got Brian Benning and the Kings' 1987 first-round draft pick. Coffey is reunited with four former teammates from the Edmonton Oilers days: Wayne Gretzky, Jari Kurri, Marty McSorley, and Charlie Huddy. The Kings are looking at the short-term hoping that the aging, hurting Coffey will perform the same type of magic he did when he played in Edmonton and help them win their first Stanley Cup. The Flyers, on the other hand, are looking into the future. They have a very young team right now, and with Recchi's ability to put the puck in the net, they should do much better in due time. The Pens have one of the most potent offenses in the league and they can afford to give up Recchi. However, they only have one experienced defensemen now in Larry Murphy who will have to pick up the loss of Coffey.

The flight for the final playoff spot in the Smythe Division is starting to heat up. Only four points separate the second place Kings and the fifth place Calgary Flames. The Vancouver Canucks are on top of the division with 75 points - a 12 point lead over the Kings - and are pretty well guaranteed a playoff spot. The San Jose Sharks are no where near making the playoffs, which was expected. The Flames have been playing better of late and are undefeated in their last three games. The Kings did win their game the other night with Coffey in the lineup. Wayne Gretzky is on fire. He has 12 points in the last 4 games and he has stung the front of the individual scoring race with 94 points. The final berth on this division will be decided right at the end of the regular season.

The New Jersey Devils have only one win in their last four games after winning five in a row and have fallen five points behind the second place Washington Capitals. The Devils made a run at the Caps and were within two points a week ago, but their poor play coupled with the Caps' three game winning streak has forced them to play catch-up once again. Both New Jersey goalies, Craig Billington and Chris Terreri, have been playing exceedingly well lately, which has helped out for their lack of offense. They now have an interesting dilemma; Steve Burke, who led Team Canada to the Gold Medal game at the Olympics last weekend, is also the prop- erty of the Devils. Look for the Devils trading one of them before deadline on March 10. The New York Rangers are still on top of the Patrick Division leading the Caps by five points. The New York Islanders are playing much better as of late and are within three points of Pittsburgh. For the last couple years, there hasn't really been a fight for the final playoff spot in the Patrick. The Pens are going to have to get things together if they want to defend the Cup. The Detroit Red Wings now have seven points and are tied with the Montreal Canadiens for second in the league. They have a comfortable 14 point lead over the St. Louis Blues and the Chicago Black Hawks in the Norris Division. The Wings have won six in a row led by All-Stars Steve Yzerman and Sergei Fedorov. The Toronto Maple Leafs are another team that was on a winning streak for the last few weeks. Now they are in the middle of a three game losing streak. They were within seven points of the Minnesota North Stars and the final playoff berth in the Norris, but they are now 10 points out. Goaltie Grant Fuhr is back in action and Continued on page 18 recently acquired Doug Gilmour is leading the team offensively. He has 70 points in 32 games with the Blues. The Hartford Whalers are playing very poor hockey as of late, but because the Quebec Nordiques are playing even worse, they will make the playoffs again.

In other news, there are rumors that the Quebec Nordiques will be trading Eric Lindros to the Toronto Maple Leafs. He was interviewed last week at the Olympics and he said that he was more than 50 percent sure that the rumors are true. If this happens, the leads four Olympic players will be joining them in the next few weeks: two from Canada, one from the USA, and one from the United States (Russo). This will greatly improve their chances of getting the first playoff berth in the Norris.

The 1992 season will officially end this Thursday when we celebrate with a banquet. We will announce our MVP and captains for next year. The fact that we maintained our ranking from last year, after losing three starters, will make the food taste that much better.

Sometimes to do your best work, all you need is a change of scenery.

The new Apple Macintosh "PowerBook" computers give you the freedom to work anywhere you want, any time you want.

They are small enough to fit in a book bag. Portable enough for your toughest class assignments. And they’re affordable too.

They run virtually all Macintosh software. And can allowing you to exchange information easily with almost any other kind of computer. Add MacWrite, and you can create MacWrite documents, too.

With both Apple’s "BookReader" software and a modem, you can use a PowerBook to retrieve files from your personal computer, without leaving the library. Or log on to the library computer and pull down other resources.

There are three models from which to choose: PowerBook 100 for the most affordabled, PowerBook 200 for the next highest performance, and PowerBook 300 for the highest performance. The PowerBook 300 is the highest performance PowerBook. All three offer bright, affordable backlit screens and a comprehensive library of Apple’s latest software innovations—stored on floppy disks. And each computer comes with a built-in Apple software package—so many where you can use them when you need them.
