Kopp KO's Big Bird

By Cookie Monster
Staff Writer

In a surprising and shocking incident yesterday at the Children's Television Workshop, Professor Robert Kopp punched out children's sled, Big Bird. Kopp, a marketing professor at Babson College, was on the Sesame Street set doing a segment called, Color Along With Big Bird. The producers of the show figured Kopp would be a natural with all of this expertise in marketing.

The friction started between the two when Big Bird apparently criticized Kopp for not staying in the lines while coloring. Kopp seemed to have taken the criticism in stride when he suggested that they 'build bridges' and share ideas to better the community. (Yeah, Yeah) At this suggestion, the tall, yellow, television star went into his toy box and brought out his personal collection of Lego building blocks. The two began to build a replica of the Golden Gate Bridge; everything seemed to be going well until Big Bird tripped and knocked over the bridge. At that moment, Kopp rose to his feet and popped the bird right in the beak. The first blow seemed to stun the giant bird, but it was the fellow up left cross that knocked him off his feet. Further damage was prevented as Harry the Monster, Grover, and Kermit the Frog ran onto the set to save their friend.

"The big, clumsy, yellow, jerk had it coming to him. I have never met a bigger clunker in my life, well not since President Clinton anyway," said Kopp moments after the incident occurred. When asked why he flattened the popular star, Kopp continued on page two.

Salvatori Scandal Shocks Some

By Vinnie Ginesis
Contributing Writer

In recent times, Student Government President Gerald "Sal" Salvatori has already encountered the first major scandal of his administration. The previous record was held by Ted Putney who attempted to blow up the school with Davis Devices. There has been an overwhelming amount of proof (actually, it's 90% gossip, but that's close enough for us) indicating that the election was rigged. There is a somewhat incriminating photo of former Student Government President, Thomas 'Cecil' LaPointe, placing ballots into the Student Government election box. When questioned, LaPointe said that he was just checking to see how many ballots the box could hold, and it was just a coincidence that all of these ballots had Sal's name on them.

In a prepared statement, Salvatori said, "You sum of a beech, cornucopia, how dare you accuse me of being involved in an activity which could be considered immoral and illegal? My forefathers and godfathers would roll over in their graves if it wasn't for the fact that they were wearing cement sealsers, if they saw this crap." When asked if he would resign, Salvatori said that anyone who asked to hear his resignation would have their knees broken by his attorney Rocco Greco.

Sal's opponent, Jon "Tex" Michelson was nowhere to be found or comment. Someone said that he was sleeping with the fish, whatever that means. However, Trudy Gantzer said that he would talk to us as long as we didn't mention his name. Trudy said that this isn't the first election to be fixed. "Last years election was fixed. The people wanted me as their president, but Cecil studfed the ballot box. I bribed and bought everyone to win that election. It should have been mine! It belonged to me! It was mine!" cried Gantzer.

According to Jane Pflyan, Director of Puppet Activities, a committee will be formed and headed by Amy Penniman (Sal's girlfriend). If she thinks Sal is innocent, he can remain president, Miss Penniman

VP Perry Indicted for Insider Trading
Glavin suspected as accomplice

By Boyd Jeffries
Contributing Writer

Students and administrators alike expressed shock yesterday upon learning that Business and Financial Affairs VP James Perry has been implicated in an insider trading scandal.

Said Richard Breeden, of the SEC, "Perry has brazenly violated securities laws by trading on inside information, stock parking and securities price manipulation."

A group of 11 Babson finance professors blew the whistle on Perry, who also taught finance prior to assuming his present job. These professors, who spoke to us on the condition of anonymity we feel they were: David Drinkwater, John Brennan, Frederic Hooper, Tom Anderson, Ralph Kimball, John Ballantine, John Edmonds, Demir Yener, Ann Thomas, Peter Kozel and Donalt Santilli.

Apparently, when Glavin learned of the unfolding scandal, he instructed the twenty finance professors, including Perry, who was then among them, to write a letter to the Editor of the Babson Free Press, in response to an article discussing insider trading written by the then-Business Editor James R. Augst.

"The article, which defended the SEC bureaucracy's efforts to squelch insider trading, was clearly a political gambit," say law enforcement officials. Glavin allegedly compelled Perry to author the letter to uphold the image of the image of Babson, and then required the other 11 professors to sign it. According to Breeden, "Glavin put a gun to the heads of the finance professors and made them an offer they couldn't refuse— either your pink slips or your signature will be in front of you in thirty seconds."

This action would certainly make Glavin an accomplice, given his early knowledge of the wrongdoing.

When asked to comment on the matter, Perry said, "Justice will be served, and I will be proven innocent—after all, this matter is outside Babson's jurisdiction. Therefore, I will be the ultimate process and the basic civil rights guaranteed to me by the Constitution."

Sexual Deviance

By Dr. Bruce Weithelman
Contributing Writer

Amy "The Animal" Penman was arrested early Sunday morning for table dancing at a Peitz 44 party. It is alleged that she became quite intoxicated and began dancing wildly. As the police report states: "She then proceeded to climb upon a coffee table and put on a show. The top three buttons on her blouse became unbuckled and she gave way to a few sudden views of midriff. In addition, she was wearing a skirt and as she twirled, she allowed a little more leg to show than is socially acceptable."

Witnesses at the scene say that they don't believe the show was unacceptable. One bystander commented: "She was cool. People here are too uptight. She showed us that you can't take life too seriously."

It seems that Amy Penman was caught in the act as Babo entered the suite to investigate excessive noise. They observed her and were forced to bring her in. The arresting officers were Andy Walker, "Big" Lenny, Al Todaro and "Wild" Raoul.

To protect her from "The Wrath of Mom," the officers called her boyfriend, SQA President, Sal Salvadori. Sal bailed her out, took her back to her room, and put her to bed to sleep it off. When asked to comment, Sal added: "She's wild, she's crazy, she's perverted, twisted, and sick. I like that in a person! No, but seri-ously, she is going through a phase, I guess. She has quite a bit on her mind and needs to escape. You know the old saying, 'If you work hard, play hard.' She takes it too literally. I'll talk to her."

Amy has no recollection of the event. Her lawyers plan on entering a plea of either not guilty by reason of temporary insanity, or not guilty by reason of alcoholic intoxication. Amy is currently enrolled in ALANON and seeking psychiatric assistance. She added: "Sal has been very supportive during all of this. With his help, I'll be fine."

Well, I guess Babson does have a Mike Delakoske and Kitty after all.

The Koppoy Man Praises FreeP
Hard-Hitting Journalism Style Commended

By Homer Sectual
Contributing Writer

Recently Professor Iob Kopp confronted the Free Press staff with his annual review of the paper’s progress. Following are excerpts from his comments.

"Last year at this time I was frankly concerned that the FreeP might become a campus forum for debate with both sides of the political spectrum represented. I am happy to report that, thus far, the FreeP has managed to give those of a more liberal persuasion precious little ink. I sense that some of the one-sided salvos that have been fired by the FreeP’s cadre of conservative columnists have totally demoralized the opposition. What is also a nice touch, is when a member of the community pens a response; these are cleverly placed in the least conspicuous positions in the newspaper."

"Secondly, I must confess that I began the year worried about the FreeP staff being overworked. With weekly deadlines and the normal journalistic demands of investigative reporting, double checking facts, proofreading and revisions, I was concerned that the staff would be able to do the job while having time for normal course studies. Fortunately, my concerns were groundless! Over the past several issues columnists by writers such as Broderick, Chisheim, Sepso and Underwood have been pure opinion pieces containing almost no facts at all. I applaud this type of writing as a way that the staff can get a paper out each week on time and still keep the total workload to manageable levels. If this policy continues, as I hope it will, into the foreseeable future, the FreeP can be a leader in saving money on student author salaries as we may be able to totally eliminate reporters across the board."

"Finally, before I close, I just want to give my nomination for article of the year. This article is definitely Tom Broderick’s recent musings on ‘useless liberal arts courses at college. In an era where most outside observers are arguing for more bread in the Bachelor’s degree curriculum and at a time when corporate recruiters are seeking out the highest quality individual regardless of whether or not they process a business degree per se, Mr. Broderick is fearlessly bucking the current trends. Again, I am proud of the fact that Tom Broderick has maintained the courage of his convictions despite the fact that others both in and outside of our community—such as Prof. Marty Trop—find his views to be both parochial and out of date."

In closing, Kopp again congratulated the FreeP staff on the progress made over the years and expressed optimism that similar strides would be achieved in 1992-93.

A Focus on Student Business

Ahmad’s Asassination Association

By Wolfe Blister
Special to the Free Press

Ahmad Aslam, that seemingly innocent man about campus has been hid- ing a dark secret from us all. That is, until now. Ahmad has recently applied for a student business license for a most unusual sort of venture, but one in which he apparently has a great deal of experience. The service which Ahmad has brought to the Babson is murder. That’s right, murder. For the right price, Ahmad will have that despised adversary of yours disposed of: with or without pain.

Ahmad picked up his trade early in his childhood, and has been perfecting his craft ever since. He now keeps a small arsenal and other various devices of death in his dorm room.

Ahmad made his first kill at age five, and after that, he says, “It was with becoming ever easy for me to be with doing it again and again, man.”

Ahmad offers special rates for his service like full free get one free. Administrators are half off the regular student price. Some specific people will also be offered at discounted prices. One of Ahmad’s cheapest rates is for the violent assassination of Bill Chinoster. “I’m going to get that god damn Chinoster man!” he said.

This interview ended abruptly when Ahmad, apparently angry about a tough question threatened this reporter by saying, “Do you know what I do for a living man? I sleep poorly, I weep, and I kill you next man!”

State of Social Emergency Declared at Babson!

Politically Correct Campus Regulations to be Enforced

By Mindless P. Zealot
Business Editor

In an unprecedented move on college campuses, the Ministry of Infringing on Student Affairs and Residential Limitations of Freedoms in Personal Life has instituted a directive which imposes state of social emergency on the Babson Campus. All regulations stated in this emergency directive are effective as of midnight Thursday, April 2.

The state of social emergency was instituted in an attempt to remedy the fact that for the past few years, members of the Babson community have displayed a general propensity for insensitivity. These intolerant individuals have, in the past, opposed such progressive programs as Multicultural Week and the distribution of guides to politically correct language in English Composition classes.

The intent of the state of social emergency is to eliminate any politically incorrect language, speech or actions from the entire campus, including class lectures, discussion and private conversations. In short, the directive prohibits from campus anything which may be interpreted as being insensitive.

The Ministry will be distributing, in the near future, a guide to politically acceptable terms and actions belittling a Babson student. An advance, abridged list of terms and actions included in that guide is printed on the next page.

It is hoped that all students will properly and expeditiously conform to the new, high standards set forth in the directive.

According to the directive, a Sensitivity Board will be established as a special branch of the Judicial board. All proceedings of this board will take place in the Star Chamber in the basement of Hollister.

The Sensitivity Board will serve as a judicial forum for any cases involving members of the Babson Community accused of breaking the state emergency regulations set forth by the directive. The Board will have the power, under the state of social emergency, to discipline any individuals who it finds have acted in a manner unbecoming of a Babson student. The scope of punishments which the Board can hand down range from expulsion to surgical removal of the tongue.

The issuance of the state of social emergency is seen as a step in the right direction for the school by many members of the Babson Community and has got good responses from the academic accreditation boards.

One anonymous liberal arts professor (individual) names are no longer important in our collective community as he/she felt that this action by the administration was long overdue and will produce only positive results.

Nine Secrets of Success You Will Never Learn from TommyVu

By Peter Kesting
Staff Conformist!

If someone would guarantee that you will be successful in every endeavor that you choose to undertake, would you listen to them? I thought so. You all know that you could shell out $10,000 and go to a Tommy Vu seminar to be told how to become successful, but who in their right mind would do that? Fortunately for you, you don't have to. I have decided to give you free advice on how to become successful. Why am I doing this, you may wonder? I guess I just can't suppress my altruistic instincts anymore. By following the advice that I present in the following list, you will be guaranteed to be an absolute success both here at Babson and in the real world.

The fundamental idea behind being successful, you must understand, is that you must conform. You certainly will never be able to get anywhere by being an individual, so with this in mind I present to you nine specific ways to conform and thus be successful not necessarily in any order of importance:

1) Kiss Ass. You will never make it to where you want to go without kissing ass. Who's ass should I kiss, you may ask. It is important to kiss everybody's ass: your professor's, the administrators', your future boss's, and last but not least, your own. I'll admit it's pretty messy, but it will certainly earn you the respect of your peers. (However, I would strongly advise against giving your teacher a peck on the cheek after class. This has been known to result in disciplinary action.)

Most students are thoughtful, tolerant, able to accept change in the work place (yes, it does matter that Chairman is an outdated term)... -M. "Useless" Tropp

m. "Useless" Tropp must be done. Suck up or die!

2) Use Politically Correct Language. Face the facts, in our day and age it is essential to communicate effectively. By using outdated terms such as chairman (use chairperson) and woman (use woman/women). You will never be able to communicate your ideas very well. Never offend anyone by using outdated terms.

3) Never Question Anyone or Anything. You should certainly refrain from presenting opposing opinions to those of authority. Achieving success will certainly require you accept what other people tell you. If the administration creates a policy stating that every student at Babson must at least once in their stay here at Babson clean Billy Glatvo's shoes with his hot tongue, do you question the something up, pass the blame onto someone else. Sure, the person that you blame will probably get in trouble, but this is no matter to you since you have sufficiently sustained your credibility. Destroy or be destroyed.

It's all the other students, who seem content to let one small bunch of zealots do their thinking for them. —M. "Useless" Tropp

4) Be Dishonest. Honesty will get you nowhere. Mislead your peers; steer them off course so that you can get ahead. Lie, cheat, defraud everyone you come into contact with. You are surely naive if you think they're being honest with you. Lie or be an idiot.

5) Don't Think for Yourself. If you do this, you may actually have an idea that is different from the ideas of everyone else. It is essential that you copy the ideas of everyone else, because theirs are right and yours are wrong. You must always be right.

6) Blame Others for Your Mistakes. Wherever you screw up, pass the blame onto someone else. Sure, the person that you blame will probably get in trouble, but this is no matter to you since you have sufficiently sustained your credibility. Destroy or be destroyed.

7) Always Be With Others. It is harmful to do anything by yourself. You don't want anyone to think that you are a loner. Besides, it is always safer to be with others, when you run into trouble. For example, suppose someone doesn't want to be a success approaches you and questions your ideas. You would certainly be in trouble by yourself, but with a group you could beat the pulp out of that person. Safety in numbers, I always say.

8) Be Liberal With Your Money. Whenever you receive monetary compensation, give it away immediately. Your image will be enhanced if you give to worthy causes like PETA and Greenpeace. People do not tolerate greed, so don't be a capitalist pig and keep all of the money you earn for yourself.

9) Always wear your hockey helmet, when driving the small bus. This is pretty self-explanatory.

Having read this, you now hold the key to your future. If you don't remember anything else, remember this: the key to your success is conformity. Those who do not observe the rules, are bound to be destroyed by them. Success cannot come to those who no longer exist, so kiss ass and live long.

The virtues expressed in this column are those of a socialist and are representative of the liberal arts department at Babson. The administration is a whole.

Guide to Terms No Longer Acceptable at Babson (Abridged)

Chairman

Used to incorrectly describe the chairperson of a corporation, committee, etc.

Keg, Punch Bowl, Central Source

Use "evil source of hedonistic, individual pleasure" to describe these troublesome devices. A lot of campus rapes start here!

Liberal Arts Division

No longer used to describe what is now the most important facet of Babson's academic program. Use "Division of Enlightenment and Human Development."

Business Courses

No longer necessary. Use "Crude, Simple-minded Forums for Insensitive Ideas and Learning."

SAM POTTER LOSES AGAIN... AND AGAIN... (He takes a lickin' and keeps on tickin')

Third semester senior, Sam Potter, recently lost his fifth and final bid for the Student Government Association V.P. Social. However, his 72 loyal constituents have been assured that he will in fact run for the Graduate Student Association V.P. Social pending his acceptance into the program. Sam feels he will have no problem getting in, after all, he has accumulated almost 180 credits at Babson over the past 5 years.

Sam has been very persistent in his campaign for V.P. Social. However, he has lost consistently since his freshman year by an increasing margin. Yet he never gave up. When asked why he continued to set himself up for a loss year after year, he responded by saying that he had always planned to use the office to further his political career. Several people reminded him that he had to start a political career before he could further one.

Besides losing his fifth straight election, Sam received some other startling news this week. He was informed that the activist award he received from Choral was a reflection of his silky manageable hair, and had nothing to do with his political actions.

Although Sam was quite upset by this news, and his final loss, he was comforted by the Women's League of Voters. The President of the League sent a card saying, "Roses are red, violets are blue. You'll never win, will you get a clue?"

Since he could not be elected to Babson's SGA, Sam suggested having a "V.P. Social of the Week" and providing transportation to and from area schools. His efforts came to a halt when several replies came in from other colleges saying, "Sorry, we don't really want you here, either."

According to Sam, he knew he was up for his toughest battle in this year's election. He stated, "I just didn't have a platform. Once Jimmy Buffet died, I knew it was over for me!"

Restoration of the Globe

By James Hoits Contributing Writer

The Babson Globe has undergone extensive renovation over the past few years, as can be seen by the depiction at right.

Chris Lingamfelter, who has been the curator of the Map and Globe for the past 37 years, has stated that the earth's revolution over the renewed exposure that the landmark has been receiving. The orb, which measures 9.5 feet in diameter and weighs 40 tons, was built at the behest of Roger Babson in the 1890s. A press release from the administration stated: "the state of the globe symbolizes our stance on diversity and globalization here at Babson College."

The globe has since been popular with students, who have not only enjoyed its use for target practice, but have also found it far superior to dormitories literal. Around the world parties. Additionally, many students have found the inside of the globe a hospitable spot for what the administration calls "cohabitation."

Dear Eduardo,

I have problems in engaging in sexual intercourse; in short, my soldier won’t salute. I think my problem started on my last trip to Babson College. After I saw what this school had to offer, I’ve had a strong disinclination to dipping my prick. What should I do?

Dear Eduardo,

I can’t believe that you advise sexual intercourse as a solution to everyone’s problems. Sex is a beautiful and loving experience that should be shared between two people who love each other. I think what you are doing is sleazy and disgusting. People like you should be put behind bars.

Tyson To Appear At Babson

In conjunction with his request for bail pending appeal, Mike Tyson has been scheduled to speak on the seriousness of date rape in today's society. He is slated to appear at several of the country's top schools, the second of which will be Babson. His experiences as one of the world's most renown athletes give him an extensive approach to the topic as well as a significantly high level of audience attention. He is tentatively scheduled to appear at Knight Auditorium, on April 8, at 4:30, immediately followed by a procession through the Babson campus and dinner with Tyson at the Trim Pasta bar. Attendance is free with Babson I.D.

Wrestlemania Hits Babson

General Glavino Defends BWF Belt Against Python Paula & The Dragon Bids For L.A. Hackett’s Inter-Campus Title

By "The Gypsy"
Contributing Writer

Many years ago, when the wrestling age was 18 and when Babson was fun, wrestling was small business. However, today it is a booming industry, with the Babson Wrestling Federation as the leader.

On May 22nd, the federation will hold its first Super Card at the St. A WEEK Gym. Tickets are sold out, but you can view this on pay per view at the low, low price of $99.99 (not available on Babson campus). The main event will be the BWF champion General Glavino versus Python Paula. In pre-match interviews the "Python" stated, "I'll squeeze and squeeze until my slimy hands are around that belt. If I have to, I'll use my patented 'screwdriver' move to destroy the General." This will be a match our grandchildren will talk about.

In another match, the inter-campus title, held by former LA policeman "Hammer Them Till They Pass Out" Hackett will go up against fan favorite the "Dragon" man. The "Dragon" man is fast, and can marculate any student in 4.0 years. Hacketts's trips to Burger King, Mr. Donut's, and Domino's may prove fatal, as the Master of skill will most likely wrestle his way to the title.

In another feature event, "Boom Boom" Hennessey will go up against "The champion of all students," Super Salvatori. Super Sal has stated that he will not allow "Boom Boom" to get in the first punch, "I'll take him down fast...revenge will be ours!"

In a special Battle Royale, Martin T. Shake- spera is the favorite to win. In past matches, he and his manager, Bismark Kering, have been tearing apart opponents. In his last match, he yelled, "To mane Tom or to kill him, that is the question." No one knows who "Tom" is, but be sure that anyone named that is in deep, deep trouble.

The last match will be for the tag-team championship. Faith Incorporated (a.k.a. Fabulous Faith and Tiny Marcel) will go up against the OCS Connection (a.k.a. Marvelous Mary and Sappy Sam). This match will be so boring, but be sure they will all talk a good match with nothing to show.
