Tuition Revision Decision
No Longer Supposition

By Matt Beaumont
Contributing Writer

The Babson College administration has decided that it would be in the school's best interests to discard the controversial flat rate tuition plan and change to another system altogether. The plans they are considering for adoption are the Pay-in-Advance Tuition Plan, the Inden-tured Servant Plan and the Evil-Kinivil Plan brief description of each plan follows.

Pay-in-Advance Tuition Plan
Students will be required to pay their entire four years tuition in advance at registration of their first year. Payment will include an annual tuition increase of 12%. Approximate cost to incoming freshmen: $1,022,777.00. This plan will enable the school to invest the excess revenues to cover future operating costs, since alumni aren’t going to cough up a dime.

Indentured Servant Plan
This enticing alternative offers students four years of quality Babson College education free of charge. The only stipulation to enrollment is that incoming students must work for the college for twelve consecutive years immediately following graduation. This plan was developed to increase the workload on the Office of Career Services, and to “get a little help around the house.” The administration intends to use the slave labor to construct a new house for President Glavin, a Babson College Museum of Fine Art, and a massive pyramid which will take the place of the Globe.

Evil-Kinivil Plan
Like the Indentured-Servant Plan, four years tuition will be free to any student who completes the new, tough admission process. Applicants under the Evil-Kinivil Plan will be given a choice: they may ride a motorcycle over the Grand Canyon, put their head in an angry alligator’s mouth, or swim across the Jac Center pool, filled with hungry piranhas. Any applicant who survives the test, thereby proving their devotion to Babson College, will be admitted. The administration...

Disrespectful Alumnus Banned from Campus
Hines told “Use a Q-Tip Next Time!”

By L. P. Freedy
Contributing Writer

Woody Hines, a graduate of the class of 1969, was officially banned from campus for life yesterday on the charge of conduct unbecoming a Babson alumnus. Mr. Hines was caught picking his ear during a speech given by VP Student Affairs Paula Rooney during the opening of Parent’s Weekend.

Witnesses to the offense report having seen Mr. Hines scratching his ear earlier that evening. One witness told this reporter, "I saw his finger enter his auricular cavity and I just knew there was going to be trouble. I know Rooney and she just doesn’t go for that sort of thing.”

"Another witness recalled, "I was just about to fall asleep when Babo burst into the auditorium and arrested this guy. I guess they had been aware of his wax-re- moving activity and had him staked out."

Upon his arrest by Babson Public Safety Officer William Burke, Mr. Hines was taken to Wellesley Police Station No. 2 and fingerprinted. After heavy investigation and a thorough search, Mr. Hines' fingerprint prints were found inside and around his ear.

"That was the link we wanted," remarked Associate Dean of Students Joseph Ford. "With this proof positive, we can order a Judicial Board hearing to really nail him."

And nail him they did. Woody Hines walked out of the hearing with a lifetime ban from campus. The only places he is allowed to go are restrooms and the art gallery in the library. Although viewed as a heavy sentence by many, others saw it as pretty light. The victim, Dr. Rooney, was heard as saying, "I just wish he was still a student so we could have taken away his housing and really ruined his life. If it was up to me, I wouldn’t be a part of the Babson Community anymore.”

In his defense, Mr. Hines stated, "I was only trying to hear her better."

Kopp Orders Changes at FREEP

By Paula De Vasto
Contribution Writer

It appears that editorial policies of the Free Press are in for a major shakeup in the coming year, at least if Free Press advisor Prof. Robert Kopp, has anything to say about it. Kopp, who explained he was "fed up with the cautious and overly considerate approach" adopted by the paper, cited a "dress-down" meeting of the Free Press staff. In a blistering diatribe, Kopp accused the Free Press of "cow-towing to political correctness" and charged that the paper was turning into a "meathead for the bleeding hearts and liberal fingers." Worse yet, according to Kopp, was the Free Press's recent kid-glove treatment of the faculty, staff and administration. "If my phone is not ringing off the hook by Thursday afternoon (with bitter protests from higher administrators) you are not doing your job," said Kopp, as he pinched his angry finger at Bill Chihiholm, Free Press Editor-in-Chief.

Next Kopp took to task some of the papers regular columnists. Kopp criticized John Scalera for what he termed a "major re-treat." Kopp said, "John, in the March 26 issue you made a heartfelt and well argued appeal for community participation-you effectively inveighed against the campus, but it offended no one. Don't let this happen again or you're out," Kopp fumed. He asked Scalera to take a page out of James Auger's book. "Jim Auger's take-no-prisoners approach is what you should all be aiming for," Kopp admonished the Free Press staff. "When Auger wishes harm on his opponents--e.g., the animal rights activists should be attacked by animals (Apr. 4) -- this is super stuff! Opposing views should be treated with respect...NOT! I loved it, Jim, when you decimated both Paul Tsongas and Mike Dukekis--and this in only one column! This is what I call real efficiency in blasting the liberals."

A Focus on Student Business

Erol's Video Pirating

By Murray Fasolino
Contributing Writer

For a most bodacious example of a student business, we have Erol's Video Pirating Service, owned and operated by Erol M. Eyerez. This business was conceived last fall when Eyerez combined his entrepreneurial spirit with two VCRs and a set of coaxial cables.

Erol makes his living by renting video tapes and then selling them at steep markups. He has supplemented these revenues by selling tapes of sporting events which he records without the express written permission of the TV networks.

Erol attributes his success to U.S. technological know-how in copying videotapes. The technology here is so much better than in Turkey, man," Erol intones. "But then again, so is everything else."

When asked what gave him the idea that entrepreneurial spirit, which is needed to start up a venture of this nature, Erol says: "I had two coaxial cables. I have access to two VCR's. Hence, I realized that I could copy movies. Moreover, I am making a good profit in this business, man."

The business was not initiated without some tribulations. Initially the licensing committee was reluctant to issue a license for this enterprise, but Eyerez was able to exercise his persuasive powers. "I made them an offer they couldn't refuse," he says. To finance his capital equipment (the VCR and the cable), Eyerez stole them from a local appliance store.

I know what you're thinking: how will this growing enterprise affect emerging EC markets? According to Eyerez, the continuing EC resistance to the reduction of subsidies to the video industry will make it difficult for Americans like Erol to penetrate the European market.

Nevertheless, Erol remains optimistic about his future prospects. He plans to expand to other area colleges and increase his sales here through an intensive marketing drive. In addition, he is considering diversification into gambling, liquor and prostitution. "I and my colleagues may have to go to the mattressies because of this, but that is okay, man. Moreover, we can live life on the edge by ripping the tags off the mattresses."

Markets

The stock market took a drubbing this week as investor saw the bears mightily in a trading floor that was would be a lack of competor's graduating from business colleges in years to come; such a fear stemmed from the news that many colleges were instituting special fast-track programs.

 Commodities markets were abuzz this weekend as activity in the gruelling futures markets heated up.
A bushel of grain closed at $25.24 yesterday, up a whopping $5.32, or 28%. Much of this rise was attributed to an attempt to corner the market by investors J. Gregory Chalmelstein and Joseph Crowley.

It doesn't matter what the foreign exchange mar-ets did this week; anyone who played the Foreign Currency Futures game for Economics classes lost their shirts anyway.

Corporate:
Mergers and Acquisitions are not dead yet. Last week, corporate strife led to the dissolution of two other companies: Center and Augir ("We're Honest") and Chisholm and Kaplan dissolved amid controversy surrounding the firms' respective partners and clients.

It turns out that Mr. Larry Trebushi, formerly a senior partner of L.L. & Au-gir was engaging in corporate espionage, on the behalf of Sand Jockey Associates, P.L.C., located in London. For this reason, along with rumors surrounding his alleged involvement in the Gardner Museum heist (see Cover Story), Trebushi was pushed out of the firm.

Similar problems plagued Chisholm & Kaplan, whereby partner Jim Kaplan was expelled from the firm for a conflict of interest relating to Collegiate Coupons. Collegiate Coupons is a shaky business venture started by Kaplan in conjunction with Joe Weong, a questionable character from Melrose, MA.

After the smoke cleared from this shakeout,
Chisholm and Augir decided to partake in a merger.
The new firm, ironically enough, is named Augir & Chis-They have since been orchestrating an intensive marketing drive, using the slogan "We're Merged."

Economic:
The economy is still a hell of a mess.

Other:
Congress passed a bill which raises the top income tax rate to 39% and increases spending by $400 billion per annum. Ooops, I forgot. This is the parity issue.

- Negative Babson Image Shattered by Philanthropists

Last weekend, we were inspired by the Babson awards ceremony, in which students were honored for everything from outstanding academic performance dwells to involvement in extracurricular resume activities. Of particular note, however, are Mike Stratford and Mary Underwear, for their dedication to philanthropic bleeding heart causes. They are highly de-

More specifically, this award was inspiring be-

- Use Politically Correct

As you are all aware, we live in a society where language is redefined.

To combat that, we have drawn up a list of politically correct terms.

Correct use of the English language will,
of course, exterminate these problems from the national fiber.

The terms are as follows:

Humananned, not Manhattan.

The Washington
Native Americans, not the Washington Redskins.

David Letterperson, not David Letterman.

The Babson Waterpe-ople, not the Babson Water-

Sony Walkerson, not Sony Walkman.

Humanagent Accounting,
not Management Accounting.

- Controversial Victorious

- The Enemies List

No doubt about it. The funniest part of any political column is making out a list of enemies of those with whom the author respectfully comforts disagrees (idea stolen from P.J.
O'Rourke).

- The Kennedy royal

- The Belchertown Police

- Department

- Anyone who thinks you can cure herpes with quartz crystals.

- Professors who complain about Eurocentrism in academics.

- Terd Turner

- Earth First, Greenpeace and other, fuzzy-minded, oneworld organizations.

- Spike Lee

- The Compass Tuna.

- Oliver Stone—he made

Gordon Gekko look like the bad guy.

- Richard Darman—yes,

he works in the White House. If he didn't, he wouldn't be so bright.

- People who think the Baboon is evocative.

- People who think Daryl Gates should become Chief.

- Jane Fonda—she's still kinda' kinda' redskins.

- The Rockefeller's—I don't care how rich they are, they have all turned into a bunch of squishy H-b-e-r-A-L, ever since of J.D. passed away.

- Organizations with the word "peace" in their names.

- Mikhail Gorbachev—might as well kick 'em when they're down.

- Anyone who wears tie-dye shirts.

- The third floor of Hollis-tower.

- People for the American Way.

- Ralph Nader—his mouth is "unsane at any speed."

- The New Republic.

- Mary McGrory

- The AFL-CIO

- Richard Gephardt (but I repeat myself).

- The Collegiate Coupons

- The Reverend Al Sharton (Sharpton).

- The Rolling Stone.

- I'm sure there are plenty of other respectable citizens granola-crunchers whose beliefs differ from the conservative right view; unfor-nately, space constraints lack of creativity prevent me from doing so. Talk to you in quasi-seriouness next week.

In Our View...

As you have all figured out by now, this is our annual parody issue. I would like to take this time to familiarize this community with some of the administrators whose names you might not have heard of before. How well do you really know them?

Let’s start with our fearless leader of the Babson Community, President Bill “My ego is just as big as my body” Glavin, affectionately known to us as Billy Glavin. President Glavin has big plans for this school. If you read the fine print of the Strategic Plan, you will see that Billy Glavin plans to change Founders’ Day to Glavin’s Day, the Babson Beaver to the Babson Bill, and to have the new residence hall called Glavin Hall. His biggest idea is to have a life size billboard of himself at the front gate waving to students saying “Welcome to Glavin College!” Don’t worry folks, Xerox is offering to pay for this.

Dr. Paula “What do you mean they’re having fun?” Honeey is the Vice President of Student Affairs. One part of Dr. Rooney’s job is to create and strictly enforce the rules of the school. She would like everyone to know that she does not like this part of her job. As she said in a recent interview, “Dr. Honeey will be spending most of her time this summer finishing her new books: 1001 Ways to Make a Student’s Life Miserable and Not Feel Guilty”.

Jesse “Screw all of you, I’m out of here for two months” Putney is leaving his job of VP Finance this summer. Jesse Putney mentioned something about moving famous works of art illegally around Europe. When asked about the possibility of going to jail for such actions, Mr. Putney said, “the law that hanging around with hardened criminals would be a nice opportunity.”

Gorden “Have they hired my replacement yet?” Prichett is also leaving his position as VP of Academic Affairs this summer. Mr. Prichett said he needed new challenges in his life. Dr. Prichetti will no longer worry about if there are enough economics professors, but whether he has run out of milk and cookies.

Dean Christopher “Full Norton” Hennessy moonlights at night as the Masked Mender for the WWF. He said that this should come as no surprise, because statistically 70% of Undergraduate Deans moonlight at certain night jobs. Regarding the incident at Drop/Add, Dean Hennessy says he just forgot what he was at. He was under the impression that he was facing Hulk Hogan for the title.

Joe “How tang, they’re guilty” Ford is the administrative assistant to the Judicial Board. Dean Ford is very pleased with this year’s results; no one has been found innocent. He encourages all students to come to his office and check out his new guillotine.

George “You’re not getting a due out of me” Covino is in charge of Financial Aid. He loves his job; he hasn’t had this much fun since he foreclosed on his mother’s mortgage.

This Week: Babson Beaver

Hi everybody, I’m sexually offensive. Actually, I’m the Babson Beaver, but on this campus, the two terms are synonymous. I don’t understand why certain people on this campus feel that I offend them. I’m just furry, cute little animal that likes to play with wood and build dams, maybe it is where I build the dams. I just don’t understand how that can offend people. I guess that the smallest of things upset those who aren’t getting any action.

From what I hear, it is basically the females who are upset that I am the school mascot. Why? Do you have something against animals or is it the furry, cute little animal that some people on this campus prefer me over you? The response I have heard is that it is because of the sexual overtones. Well, don’t worry girls, I have never slept with a Babson male student and I never will. For all the girls that are upset that the guys around here like me as the mascot, let me make a suggestion to you. A male with low standards (this shouldn’t be too hard - there are a lot at Coleman) and get him drunk. Once he has his beer goggles on you should have no problem getting sex and then maybe you will loosen up a little bit. From some of the females I’ve seen, and I won’t mention any names, they should be happy that I am around because I’m one of the few things around here that has more hair on my body than they do on theirs. If anything, I should be sexually offended by some of you.

The Beaver has been the mascot of Babson College since 1919.

Seriously, I’m not such a bad boy. There should be pride that you’re my mascot. Just think of all the cool slogans you can have with me as your mascot. There’s “Beaver Fever. Snatch It.” Beavers on the Warpath,” and of course, my favorite, “You Can’t Lick Our Beavers.” Now I ask you, what could possibly be wrong with these statements which show school spirit and support our sports teams?

There is nothing wrong with having a beaver for a mascot. I have family members who are mascots at other schools and they don’t have this problem. Heck, the state of Oregon loves us so much they’ve called their state the Beaver State. Show your Beaver with pride and everything will be fine.
Letters to the Editor
Babo’s New Law Enforcer

Dear Editor:

Hello Babson Community! My name is Merrill Bates and I will be joining the Babson Campus Police this fall. I was forced to leave my last job as a policeman in Los Angeles due to that unfortunate incident. I say it was unfortunate not because it happened but because some moron filmed it. Judging by what happened, you can all see that I believe in a “hands-on” approach to business, which is why I came here. I can’t believe all the controversy over the incident with Dean Hennessy and that wuss at Drop/Add. My only problem is that Dean Hennessy didn’t finish that punk off. Back in L.A., that boy would’ve had his legs broken. It is this type of hands-on approach that I plan to bring to Babson. I propose that all campus police should carry handguns for everyday use and machine guns for riots. Deans should be given flame-throwers. B&G should carry stun guns. J-Board should have a fully-functioning guillotine and President Glavin should have access to nuclear weapons. The students here have it soft and I plan to turn things around. For example, if any of you punks get into a fight, we won’t stop it. In fact, we will even give you a couple of knives and let you go nuts. Who cares if you idiots kill each other, that will be two or three less headaches for us. The next on of you babies who complains about air conditioning or an overflowing toilet can expect 50,000 volts in return. If you guys cross a Dean, then you can expect to be roasted on the Back 40. These are just the beginning. If a food fight breaks out in Trim, we will just use our machine guns and kill the lot of you. With the tuition you boreheads pay we can survive for a long time without any students. And what about that kid who jumped off Hollister, what was he thinking? He had nothing to gain. I plan to paint marks on the parking lot behind Hollister and assign point values to them. In the future, students with Edwin Moses-like abilities have a good to reach. The farther you jump, the more points you will get. If you make it to 100 points, we will even pay the medical bills. Is that fair or what? I think next year is going to be a lot of fun.

Sincerely,
Merrill Bates

The Staff has the Right Stuff

Dear Editor,

I work for the Residential Life department at Babson and I would like to congratulate the various HH’s and RA’s for their tremendous job this year. I would like to point out some things you can do to make their performance even more stunning than it has been.

Always assume guilt. Nobody ever tells the truth so if you hear anything, use it against the person you hear it about. If there are no suspects and you don’t hear any rumors, simply blame Matt Eng.

Always let everyone know how powerful you are. If they don’t believe you, then just tell them. That will teach them to respect your authority.

Write up everything.

If someone questions your authority then just write them up and they will be kicked so far off campus that they’ll forget the face.

Well, that is all. Most of you have been doing the same duties all year, so keep up the good work!

Sincerely,
Don Panuccio

Economics Professor Turns Comic Martihensen Hailed as the New Dana Carvey

By Al Coholic
Random Idiot

In a shock to the academic community, and a jab to the entertainment industry, Professor of Economics John Martihensen announced his intentions of pursuing a career as a stand-up comic.

Professor Martihensen, when questioned about his motives behind the move, said, "If I can make my international finance class laugh at 8:00 AM, I can make anybody laugh.

Besides, Ed McMahon can only live for so long.”

Jokes in Martihensen's repertoire include:

“What's the real world to an economist? It's the nominal world divided by the price level.”

“You could jump out of an airplane with a parachute and be 100 miles from civilization, but only two miles from the nearest McDonald's.”

“This is just a puny graph. We'll pump it up even more.”

“Keynesian, bad. Neoclassical, good. Not gonna do it.”

“I know what you're thinking. How does this look graphically?”

“The trouble with Keynesian theory is that when you think you see the light at the end of the tunnel, it's usually a train coming the other way.”

“Unemployment here, inflation here. Gotta bring them together.”

Personally, I'd like to offer this advice to the aspiring comic: don't give up your tenure just yet.

"Hey, man. I've got the hottest, cleanest stable in town. And I mean CLEAN! Can you dig what I'm sayin'? No STD's, man. Homie don't play that!!"

It's his second year in business, and to celebrate his anniversary, he's slashing prices on all domestic women. You won't find a better deal anywhere this side of Hollywood Boulevard. Also, dowry rates in the Orient have fallen sharply and Eduardo is passing the savings on to you! This week, order any Oriental female and get another at half price! What a bargain! Higher price prevails, consumer responsible for all taxes and shots.

Your typical dot matrix printer. The new Apple StyleWriter.

Which price looks better to you?

Let's face it. The more impressive your papers and projects look, the more impact your ideas will have.

Which is why you might want to know about the new Apple StyleWriter printer. It gives you crisp, laser-quality printing for about what you'd expect to pay for a dot matrix printer.

It's compact (at just 13"x 5"x 8". It fits easily in the most cramped dorm room). It's quiet (so quiet you can print at 3 a.m. without waking up your roommate).

And it's from Apple, designed to get everything out of a Macintosh computer that Apple built it into. Not just the power to look your best. The power to be your best.

For all of your computer needs visit the Babson College Computer Store or call 239-5516 Mon & Tues: 11am-2pm / Wed & Thurs: 2-6:30pm Come see student demos and the newest in Macintosh technology at the Macintosh Computer Fair in Trim on April 25 from 11-6 Macintosh Classic in stock now!

Men's Lax To Be Cut From School Budget

By Joan Gervise

Contributing Writer

Rumors circulating that the Babson Men's Lacrosse team will be cut from the school budget just might come true, school officials hinted yesterday.

Based on the fact that the team lost to M.I.T. last Wednesday, and many other stories about the squad, the school says they should reach an agreement by today.

"The team is just way out of hand," said one source who wished to remain anonymous. "We've already been told about the situation for a long time, and it just hasn't gotten any better." One distraught fan was overheard mumbling, "They lost to M.I.T."

It would be a sad sight if the lacrosse team was indeed cut, but as another Babson fan put it, "They just aren't that good."

Keg Racing: New Varsity Sport?

By Ike Ipanter

Contributing Writer

The dream of Keg Racing as a sport just might become a reality here at Babson. There is a strong movement to get the project underway, and advocates are predicting the present activity could become a sport by next spring.

"All we need is some dough and a place to hold it, and we'll be off," says one supporter.

The idea of a Keg Race is to form teams of 5 or more, then kill a keg as fast as possible. The team that finishes before everyone else wins the race. The prize for imbibing is a free keg the next weekend for the winners, courtesy of the losing squads.

Of course, these are penalties, just like every other all-american sport. If a player on a team takes the keg, he/she is disqualified. If a player is caught driving a car, the player is banned from organized competition.

"We're gonna make this work," shouts many of the enthusiastic supporters. "We feel Babson has the ability to win it all. We aren't foolin' around-we're serious."

Everything You've Always Wanted To Know...

By Neil & Bob Faste
Contributing Writers

Most sporting newspapers are afraid to get down to the real nitty-gritty about today's most celebrated athletes and teams. However, we feel it is our obligation to give you the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help us God. So here are the answers to the top ten questions you've always wanted to know about your favorite athletes, but were afraid to ask:

1) Although Pete Rose won't get into the Baseball Hall of Fame, he will be appointed race track commissioner of Suffolk Downs.
2) Broken Arrow is scheduled to play the National Anthem at this year's World Series opener.
3) It's Larry Bird's religion that prevents him from getting a new job.
4) The Babson Men's Lacrosse team really will be cut next year.
5) What Roger Clemens really said to umpire Terry Cooney was, "Hey, Babson Lacrosse is gonna be cut next year." (Clemens was thrown out of the game for gross misconduct.)
6) Michael Jordan, due to ethnic background, has decided to change his name to H.Imichael Jor-dan.
7) Babson Football is still undefeated.
8) Babson Hockey isn't.
9) Bob Jackson didn't really hurt his hip busting through the line, he was showing Richard Gere a three-point stance.
10) Babson's fan attendance at school sporting events was rated the highest among all schools--nursery schools, that is.*

*This is not a joke.

Thank You For The Memories, But...

By Gordon Liddy
Contributing Writer

For the past year, many of the Babson sports teams here have given the fans something to cheer about. For instance, you may recall some of the following:

The Women's Basketball team's march to the New England Championships, culminating with the team capturing the title.

Or how about the Men's Basketball team's awesome run to the ECAC Final round. Although the team lost in the final game against a tough Colby club, they managed to collect their share of thrilling wins. The Beavers knocked off Brandeis and Tufts on 01 along the way.

Then there is the Hockey team's trip to the Division III Final Four. The team lost to Wisconsin-Stevens Pt., the eventual champion but it was a hell of a ride the whole way for Babson.

All the teams performed exceptionally well this year, and those are memories that the team members will keep. But, just remember, next year some other team will come along and do everything better than you did. Therefore, you'll soon be forgotten about. Oh, well.

SQA V.P. Communications Marki Baer also tried to bring attention to the "banned Bruno" affair.

Hi!

I'm Marki Baer and I think that this whole escapade just isn't nice and that we as a student body need to get together as a whole and say something about it. And we'll have milk and cookies... Hey I'm down here!
