On Wednesday, February 28, 1990 at 1:30 pm the voting table for the Student Government primaries closed and several hours later, the two final candidates were announced for the race of vice-president of social, Matt Beaumont will face Missy Bell for the Student Government position. The votes which decided the primaries were extremely narrow. For the three candidates the 341 votes were counted as:

Missy Bell: 122
Matt Beaumont: 112
Scott Abate: 107

As of this writing, none of the candidates have requested a recount.

In a phone interview with Candidate Beaumont, he stated, "I wasn’t surprised because both of the other candidates had spoken well and made some excellent points, and I’d like to see a greater voter turnout next year." in response to whether he was surprised by the close results. Candidate Bell, similarly stated, "No, I wasn’t [surprised] because I felt we were all well qualified." However, she did comment, "I was surprised that I came out on top."

When asked how the election turned out, she replied, "When asked how the election turned out, she replied, "I was surprised that I came out on top."

Maugle Announces Candidacy

By Bob Collins
Managing Editor

There was a surprise turn of events this week in the race for student government elections as a write-in candidate stepped forward and announced his intentions to run for S.G.A. president.

Fritz Maugle, a junior from Montreal, Canada told the Free Press in a personal interview that he intends to run for the student body’s highest position. "Now you have a choice," was Maugle’s campaign statement posted on a Design Asia in January. The only name that will appear on the ballot, however, is current V.P. of Finance, Steve Ledoux who is a junior from Bedford, NH.

As of last Thursday, Ledoux stood unopposed for the presidency of S.G.A.

Last week, the Free Press reported that there was "No Choice" for the president and Executive VP positions. Now that Maugle has made his intentions clear, only Dave Zaslaw will remain unopposed for an S.G.A. position.

As Maugle was starting some last minute campaigning, Ledoux was taking the news in stride. Ledoux told the Free Press, "It's not a shock. I always felt I would be opposed."

Steve Ledoux currently serves as V.P. Finance for student government. Steve, a junior from New Hampshire, is a Finance major.

Fritz Maugle currently serves as a Residential Assistant for Coleman Hall. Fritz, a junior from Montreal, is a Marketing major.

My experience on the executive board and with various committees would make me an excellent president." Maugle, on the other hand, felt that he has a strong support base, "I would not run if I did not think I could win this race. I am qualified for the position.

The final decision now rests with the students. Final Elections will be held next Tuesday and Wednesday (March 6 & 7) at 11:30-1:30 in the mail room in Edlis and from 8:00-9:00 in Trim on Tuesday evening.

A Focus on Student Business

Snack Attack

By James R. Augier
Business Editor

The words “snack attack” come to mind pretty often here at college. Most of us can’t count the number of times when that Trim meal somehow just didn’t quite hit the spot, or when we needed cheap “munchees” for parties or school events. This fact has been food for thought for entrepreneurs David Magoloff, Anthony Caterino and Bill Webster, who started Snack Attack as a student business this year.

Products sold include name brand chips and pretzels, as well as a snack mix, which the business owners say is “addictive.” It was when they came across this snack mix that these entrepreneurs decided it would be worthwhile to set up a selling effort here at Babson. These products are obtained on a wholesale level, and then are sold for below-market prices.

Snack Attack offers free delivery for orders placed and sells not only to individuals, but also to various organizations for events. Tuesday’s Wynton Marsalis concert and last week’s Theta Chi party are examples, and they plan on providing for other events, including outdoor sporting events when lacrosse and baseball seasons roll around this spring.

So far, Snack Attack’s marketing has entailed flyers and word-of-mouth. According to Magoloff, this strategy has allowed for a few good ribbons out there in the market—i.e., sales are good.

Since their business has been in operation for only two weeks now, these entrepreneurs say they will be happy in meeting campus demand for their products, and have no immediate plans for expansion or diversification.

Shopping in the Market

By Gary Stelner
Staff Writer

Here’s a quick multiple choice question to prepare those of you who will be taking examinations soon. When’s the best time to buy stock in a company?

A.) When somebody just gave you a “hot” tip?
B.) When the company is coming out with a new and improved product?
C.) When its Christmas Time?
D.) When your broker recommends it?
E.) None of the above.

The time to buy a stock is after you have researched the company and have determined it to be of good value.

In my column last week, I stated that there are general rules to investing in the stock market. 1.) Buy low and sell high. 2.) Buy quality and hold. 3.) Choose financial sound companies. 4.) Diversify. 5.) Don’t try to outsmart the market. These rules sound fairly obvious. This week I will attempt to provide slightly more specific guides to buying stocks.

borrowed. It is slightly differ-ent from the familiar debt to equity ratio. For example, if the total capital of a com-pany has is $10.00 and $8.00 came from borrowing (debt), then the debt to total cap-italization is 2/10 or 20% ratio whereas the debt to equity is 2/8 or 25%. In this example, 80% of the company's total capital is from borrowed money. I would recommend eliminating 35% debt to capitalization ratio.

The second item of importance is the financial strength rating assigned to it by either Value Line or Standard and Poor's. The companies are rated from C to AA++. I would recommend eliminating any company that is not given at least a B+ rating.

3. Book Value

Book value is an attempt by the accounting and auditing profession to determine the "real" value of a company. Because determining the "real" value of a company is a difficult and often subjective process, the accounting and auditing profession try to be conservative and thus, generally underestimate the true value of a company's assets. I rec-ommend that you use Book Value simply as the min-imum amount that the stock is worth.

4. Earnings

If a stock is cheap, it proba-bly means that either earnings are down or are anticipat-ed to be down. If this is true, take a further look. This may be the time to buy. Be sure to determine whether the earnings are down temporarily or whether there is a perma-nent change in the industry. One industry where this question is particularly per-tinent is the defense indus-try.

5. Dividend

In my column last week, I stated that you need to be patient to make money in the stock market. It's nice to get a fat dividend while being patient. If you can obtain a dividend of let's say, 5%, you would be great since if you put your money in the bank, you'd probably be getting only 7% anyway. So, for a mere 2% a year, you get the thrill of a potential capital gains windfall! That's almost more exciting than going to Wonderland!

6. You're The Boss

Don't listen to your broker. Forget about the new and improved product! Hang up the phone if anybody tries to give you a "hot tip" (unless that tip comes from Ivan Boesky or Michael Milken). Forget about Christmas. You're the boss. Use the guides described above and determine if this stock is the best investment for you.

I welcome your comments, questions, and suggestions at Box 2340 or X4845.

Right Perspectives

This week we have wit-nessed the passing of one of the most notable and underveloped ex-ecutives in the business world, and helped to render obsolete the pernicious smear campaign waged against the wealthy.

Forbes frequently came under fire for having a good reputation. Perhaps one of the most recent examples of redistributionist whining came during Forbes' seven-thirtieth birthday party, a spirited bash in Morocco. When it was determined that Forbes had spent about $6 million on the party, the lib-erals belched forth an ire comparable to that which Veninou showed upon the people of Pompeii. Remi-niscent of the Saturday Re-viewer's quip of Henry Ford's sizeable expenditures on debaters, they asked "how can you spend so extravagantly at a time when others are in such great need?" they asked. Simple—he was spending the money that he had earned by being productive.

That expenditure probably helped more people than if he had given the money to charity. First, think of the caterers, musi-cians, photographers, hotel workers, not to mention journalists who were put to work because of this expenditure. These monetary transactions also generate tax revenues for the various governments. Think of the shipbuilders and art dealers and aircraft manufacturers that were enriched by Forbes' spending. Think of the people that were in-pired to work harder upon witnessing the degree to which one person can enjoy the trappings of the capital-ist system. One of the biggest brouhahas started up when it was said that Forbes was considering a tax write-off for the expenses. He didn't do this, but the point remains that Forbes did more for this country than most taxpay-ers do.

This, of course, is just a small example of the unfair treatment accorded to today's wealthy. The fact is that Forbes, Trump, Polling, or any other business leader happens to run large enterprises that employ thousands of workers. The businessman is the foun-tainhead of all that is good in society. Yet, a business-man's drive for higher prof-its is dammed as "selfish" greed, even while unions strike for higher wages are considered "noble" and "contributing to social gains."

The businessman. Malcolm Forbes among them, have been used as scapegoats for the economic problems created by the welfare state and the bureaucrats. At any rate, Forbes should be lauded for his un-wavering commitment to the capitalist ideal—never a moral second-hander, he set his own standard and lived up to it. Perhaps he could be best symbolized by his infamous Harley-Davidson motorcycle—be-speaking cantankerous independence and spirited adventure. Forbes contributed a great

Candidates for Student Government

Steve Ledoux

This year has been characterized as a year of change, and indeed it is. Among many things, we have seen a new and energetic college president, dedicated area coordinators, and a renewed sense of school spirit. However, change carries with it responsibilities. We must carry all these important changes into the next year with the same spirit and energy as we have this year, and we must also look for new changes to improve our community.

Next year will see the implementation of the President’s new strategic plan from the excel teams and there will be changes in Student Affairs and Residential Life as well. In terms of school spirit, student government will expand the programming of many large events which created a tremendous amount of spirit and energy this year.

Student Government will have the sole responsibility of planning the Presidential ball as well as another mas- jor concert. In addition, Winter Weekend will be brought back and both Spring Weekend and Homecoming will be expanded.

Experience for a Better Babson Community

By David Zaslav

My term as Vice President of Communications for the Babson College Student Government will soon be over, and I will not soon forget the constant meetings, events, and discussions that I went through.
Bill Chisholm

I feel that Vice President of Communications is an important position as it is the link between Student Government and the student body. With a small campus like ours, we must make that link as strong as possible.

I am a sophomore majoring in marketing and communications. I am also the Sports Editor of the Babson Free Press. This position has brought me close to Babson athletic teams and has helped me become a competent writer and organizer, both of which are critical to a successful VP Comm. Because of my current position on the paper, I feel that I can work well with them in updating the campus on Student Government activities.

I am very excited about the possibilities for the upcoming year. I want to be part of a team that pushes school spirit to a level higher than it has ever been.

I have several ideas on how I would be able to help achieve this in my position. I will continue the new tradition of announcing upcoming events on the megaphone at Trimm. I want to keep working for a campus radio station to achieve a goal which we are very close to attaining. I will post agendas for body, administration, and faculty on what is happening at S.G.A. Since the Free Press has been a part of so many events of Babson, I want to continue these traditions here at Babson.

I believe that the Free Press must work to expand the position of the V.P. Communication. I hope to work with the Free Press to obtain space in the paper strictly for Student Government use. With this space, I intend to produce a newspaper that will keep the students informed of the happenings of Babson as well as inform the students what is happening at S.G.A. Since the Free Press has been a part of so many events of Babson, I want to continue these traditions here at Babson.

Mike Carenzo

It is my contention that the position of V.P. Communications is more than just that of a "minute taker". We have the opportunity to use our voice and opinions to give meaning to important issues.

For two years of my life, I have been a member of the Student Government and I have seen the changes and the growth that has taken place. I am running for this office because I believe that I can help improve the social climate at Babson. I believe that the social climate is one of the most important aspects of a college education. In the past two years, I have been involved in many different activities and I have seen the changes that have taken place. I am running for this office because I believe that I can help improve the social climate at Babson.

Matt Beaumont

There are so many things going on, I can't decide what to do! We should have this dilemma all the time. All of us have experienced the frustrations of Babson's social life and asked ourselves, "Isn't there any thing that can be done?" Yes, there is. My name is Matt Beaumont, and I am running for V.P. Social. I'd like to tell you a few moments to tell you why I'm running for this office and how I think I can help improve the social climate at Babson.

I am running for this office because I believe that I can help improve the social climate at Babson. I believe that the social climate is one of the most important aspects of a college education. In the past two years, I have been involved in many different activities and I have seen the changes that have taken place. I am running for this office because I believe that I can help improve the social climate at Babson.

My name is Missy Bell and I am running for V.P. Social. The social activities on campus have been plentiful and greatly over the past year. Yet, with all the activity for the 1990-91 year, the possibilities for a great social life at Babson are endless. An enthusiastic, organized, and committed person is needed to carry out the job to improve your life at Babson.

Involvement is the key to a successful social life at Babson. The willingness to become involved at Babson, where your interests are most, is the key to a successful social life at Babson.

With the help of a strong, effective social committee, my job as V.P. Social would be to introduce exciting, festive activities that would mirror your desires for an improved social life. The events such as: the traditional Babson Weekend, the Inauguration, the Concerts, the Spring Weekend, and the Winter Weekend will be spectacular if the proper planning takes place. I have confidence in my ability to plan and execute a big, active weekend.

My goal is to make Babson an enthusiastic, spirited campus with a social agenda. My commitment is to you, the student body, to make your social life at Babson the best. I will work hard to fulfill your appetite for a great social life and I hope you will give me the opportunity to represent you as V.P. Social.
VP Finance Candidates

Craig Nesta

My name is Craig Nesta and I wish to serve as your next VP Finance. I have learned this past year from experience that all Executive Board positions are commitments. As a current Executive Board member, VP Licensing, I have spent numerous hours fulfilling and I hope surpassing the expectations of myself and my position. By electing me as VP Finance, I will continue to dedicate my time and effort and most importantly my enthusiasm to this very important position.

Amy Carroll

My name is Amy Carroll and I am a sophomore Accounting major here at Babson. I am running for the office of Vice President of Finance, what I feel to be one of the most important positions on the Executive Board. I have been a Student Government representative since I have been here at Babson. I have attended every meeting with the exception of one during this time period. This past November I was truly honored to be chosen Student Government Representative of the Month by the current Executive Board.

As V.P. Finance, I would chair the Ways and Means Committee. This chair requires strong organizational and leadership qualities, both of which I believe I possess. It also requires a person who is not afraid to speak their mind or vocalize questions concerning possible discrepancies. Having been on the Ways and Means Committee for the past year, I am very familiar with the operating procedures. I feel this fact will ensure a smooth transition if I am elected. I have attended all weekday meetings of the Ways and Means Committee and I have never been afraid to express my opinion.

The Budgeting Process, which will begin in a few short weeks, is one of the most important functions of the Ways and Means Committee. I was very much involved in all aspects of the budgeting process last year. This experience is one that will be invaluable this coming year. The budgeting process was very successful last year and I am confident that if elected I will have the necessary sight to oversee an equally successful budgeting process in the coming months. I have worked closely with the current V.P. Finance, Steve Ledoux, on the Budget Workshop which was held last Saturday, as well as on our handout, "The Big Picture," which we hope will expedite and simplify the budgeting process for the individual organizations as well as for the Ways and Means Committee. I feel I possess very sound judgment, I am not afraid to work hard, and I am willing to put in the time and effort necessary to be a successful Vice President of Finance.

We have seen many positive changes this year at Babson, a new President, a new gymnasium and basically a new, and much more positive attitude towards Babo sponsored events, and I intend to continue to further promote these fantastic changes. Therefore, I ask for your support and I look forward to serving you in this capacity. Vote AMY CARROLL, V.P. Finance!!!

In Our View...

As Student Government is about to pass on to a new generation of students it is time for the organization to take stock of itself. This week’s meeting was close to absurd. Aside from being melodramatic and overdrawn, the hour spent can be considered wasted in what was accomplished.

During the past academic year, Student Government has seen the evolution of committees, probably the most bureaucratic tool ever invented, and therefore one of the most worthless. I tend to believe that Student Government has committees on committees. As Philip Crosby wrote in his book, "Managing Things: The Art of Making Things Happen," "A camel is a horse designed by a committee."

Besides reviewing the function of each individual committee, the SG association should define what issues it will focus on in the near future.

As well, periodic reviews of a Representative’s involvement in SGA should be looked into by an independent board of students to see if they are living up to their duties. Student Government, as a whole, not just the executive board, must take a strong and candid look at itself and its objectives in order to be considered a viable source of authority and value to the community.

Sincerely,

Ken Ross

Write-In!

By Fritz Maugle

You are the students of Babson College are entitled to a choice. Therefore, I have decided to run for President of Student Government as a WRITE-IN candidate. Let there be no doubt about my intentions. If elected, I will put as much enthusiasm and energy towards representing you as I have in supporting Babson’s athletic teams as a loyal and vocal fan. Some of you may be concerned about my qualifications for the job. I have been representing the student body in my participation on two separate committees, the Quality of Student Life Committee and Roger’s Pub Board of Overseers. In both these positions, I have worked closely with members of the administration. My input has been valued and in some cases, as the new varsity sports pictures in the pub show, implemented.

As President of Student Government, I want to work with the administration and public safety on clarifying what the role of campus police should be. Are they an enforcement agency or are they here primarily to help the students? I am also very interested in really addressing diversity issues. Let’s not wait for a problem to develop before we sensitize ourselves about the needs of a diverse community. I welcome the formation of an environmental organization on campus. As President, I would support actions that will make Babson an environmentally educated community. The present administration has put forth much effort in creating spirit and pride in our college, but the job is not done yet.

As President, I will also work hard to achieve a higher level of spirit here at Babson.

I believe class officers play a key role on our campus, and although they are a separate entity from student government, I will work closely with them to better define the roles we should play in improving campus life. I am not a Greek myself but I support their efforts and contributions to the social life of Babson and I will work closely with them and the Greek Council because we all want to make our stay here at Babson as rewarding as possible.

Thank you for your support and remember my name will not be on the ballot, so WRITE-IN FRITZ for President.

The Free Press would not include Mr. Maugle’s speech in the Candidate’s Section since he did not submit his candidacy papers on time.
Letters To The Editor

Environmentalism is an anti-business, anti-capitalistic and anti-man. Capitalism tells man to go out into the world and create the values he needs to live and succeed. Environmentalism asserts, "Don't touch anything!"; modern man is an unnatural aberration of nature who should sacrifice his values to preserve the environment.

Environmentalism does not support the "environment" to serve man's ends, but places the environment as a god above men. For instance, nuclear power is objectively a revolution in public health and safety. It doesn't dispose of any of its waste- products on land. Nuclear power plants do use fossil fuels; all the wastes remain at the plant and can be safely disposed of using current technology. After 500,000 years the nuclear radioactive waste is less radioactive than coal ash for the same amount of electricity produced. As designed, liquid-cooled, cooled world nuclear plants are at least as safe as fossil fuel plants, and are much less dangerous than having oil and natural gas being stored and transported. By law, nuclear plants are continuously monitored so as not to emit more than a small fraction of the radiation from a chest x-ray or natural background radiation. If the environmentalists wanted better for the environment for man's benefit, they would produce more. As it stands, the cost of nuclear power is less than fossil fuels. Instead of destroying nuclear power, they demand nuclear power and then attack fossil fuels. Man's needs and standard of living are utterly irrelevant; the environment is an end in itself. It's logical that their leaders attack virtually all new, man-serving and nature-controlling technologies, everything from genetic engineering to food irradiation to cathode ray tubes.

Babson should em- phatically NOT include this "new thinking" into the classroom. Babson should teach students how to defend business and more broadly, how to protect capitalism from its innumerable enemies. Babson should teach students how not to unwittily hurt capitalism. As businessmen have done so often by such actions as asking for protectionism and special government favors, by not defending property rights, and by appearing irrationalists such as the environmentalists.

Currently the environmentalists want you to sacrifice the time of your life to recycling. What happens if they don't get "enough" recycling? They'll consider the Rhode Island solution: forced recycling. Should we unleash brute force on innocent people? Yes, if we can make people do good. If an environmental tyranny sounds absurd, observe nuclear power. The same fate awaits all industries and all the rest of us under environmentalism.

Sincerely,

Paul Greene

What can Babson do to improve the health center and related services?

In any case, you have my vote for doing a great job. Keep it up!

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank the police of Babson Public Safety Department for their expeditious service when I needed them the most. Tuesday, February 20th. I woke up in the morning unable to breathe. My husband called 911 and within minutes the campus police were knocking on the door. Although I was able to start breathing before they got to my apartment, the fact that I knew they were on their way and so near helped me relax and think clearly so I could remedy the situation.

I would like the campus police department to know that my family and I feel very safe knowing that they are so near. More importantly, it is important to point out that the professionalism and sincere concern that they exhibited, show us that the bad press that they get around campus, from time to time, must be either false or the result of Whitby by someone who had been caught with their hand in the till.

I only hope that by writing this letter, the community will see what an as-

BRYANT
Bryant had a Dating Game last week and it was a huge success. The following couples were matched: Edie and Gretchen, Matt and Helen, BJ and Michelle, and Tim and Nicole. The lucky couples will enjoy a fun flite, wowing for two...

CANTFIELD
This weekend we went from sundowners ourselves to roof sledding at the Country Club. And to North boy Andy Steele—you might have been "credited" with a win over Canfield in hockey, but you never did nor will earn it!

COLLEEN
B.R. L.B. are here for the Colleen I Intramural team...Congratulations to the Soccer players, winners of the 1st Babson Invitational Indoor Tourney...How's the hip Harry? Happy 21st Rathslem...Happy 8 Day Jaime—Thanks for the great enter...There's not much Alex...Where's everybody's clothes, at Reggie? Our clothes are worse than yours?...What party?..."Look, it's people leaving a movie theatre..."...Johnson (referring to everyone filing out of the basement)...Papst, what are you doing in Colleen?...What the hell is Colleen Headquarters?

MAPLE MANOR/GREEN GABLES
Green Gables is Maple Manor, and Bryant all "hooked up" for a good time with the Dating Game this past Thursday! Maybe you bumped into some Babi Bobo couples at a flick this past week. This weekend Green Gables is having the second Annual Blind Date Ball. And it's going to be better than ever! Watch out!

NEW HALL
Congratulations to Lon Rosa who is responsible for the successful development of the NEWS PRESS. Good luck to all the winter athletes in the upcoming tournaments. Especially the 2nd and 3rd floor hockey players, Earle the Pearl and Jamie Bearer in Basketball, and Sean Russo and Heather Jones in Swimming. Hey, good luck especially on the 4th floor: Hang in there, the word is: It's getting rougher.

PARK MANOR CENTRAL
Get those hands ready for our "How to give a massage" seminar! And don't forget about our "Screw your roommate party"! We'd like to give a warm welcome back to Charlie McCarthy from a wild time at Mard Grass!! And Charlie, "Show me your..."

A Discussion With A Friend

By Aravind Farmanfarman

I had a discussion with a friend of mine last night that I would like to relate to you. It is not so much the substance of it that I will describe in the next few lines but rather how it took place.

It was the sort of conversation, the sort of exchange of ideas that should take place much more often among us presumably educated people. The subject of our conversation was new, almost to me. Not that I had never had the opportunity of thinking about it. But it was one of those subjects that you usually don’t talk about very much. It was not superficial, like the usual remarks and petty topics that are so often characteristic of a normal day’s use of a language. We were not just trying to fill in for time either (which, without us realizing, passed so rapidly as to surprise us both). It seemed like we were both exploring, experimenting and seeking a truth that was within our reach, but that could not have been discovered by our individual selves. So the input of both of us appeared to be a necessary factor for the attainment of our goal, which, by the way, was as elusive as a mirage and as unclear to us as an object in a thick mist. It was a tremendously rewarding conversation in that the various aspects of a topic were analyzed and numerous ideas were constantly exchanged. Where we disagreed, we explored further. Each time we found a common ground for agreement, an additional step was taken towards the “truth”, and we were brought closer to it. It was not an opinionated discussion like those you so often see daily, where typically some people always try to impose their ideas and ways of thinking on everybody else. The basis from which we started was primarily one of respect for the other’s ideas. We did not at all try to impose anything on each other; we made it fully (and implicitly) clear from the beginning that such was not our aim. Rather, we took turns to listen to each other’s point of view, patiently waiting while, in response to the ideas that we were hearing, new ones clicked in our minds, which we then stored in our memory as we prepared for our respective replies. There was no rivalry between us. Our intent was not to demonstrate our general knowledge, or to impress one another or our command of some topics related to our conversation. Rather, it seemed like both of us were trying to learn more from each other, and in the process, deepening our understanding of the subject and getting to know each other better.

After playing a two hour plus concert, Wynton Marsalis simply sits back and enjoys napkin with the autograph seekers, letting one pre-teen girl play for him and another young boy actually try out his own trumpet. Laid back and calm, the young winner of eight Grammys does not come across as the arrogant purist as he is so often portrayed in the press. This does not last long however, as he starts responding to questions about fusion and pop music.

Asked whether or not he would play fusion, Marsalis said, "I am not going to give up." Famous for his attacks on freeform and fusion jazz, Marsalis is involved in a struggle to separate what is considered popular from what is considered good. He was quoted in Rolling Stone several years ago as saying, "I want people to know the difference between what's popular and what's good. Just cause something's doesn't make it good."

Although considered an elitist, Marsalis's music gives him a tremendous amount of credibility. Constantly criticized in the press as being too refined (asked if he had read the Sunday Globe's review of his Saturday night performance at Regattabar, Marsalis said, "I don't need to read it. It just says the same thing, that I'm too sophisticated.") Marsalis responds that those critiques are a racial thing. You get used to seeing black people presented as buffoons and because I'm not going to present myself as that "bulldog" the press is forced to label him as too refined.

Wynton Marsalis

By Kevin Heald
Contributing Writer

From modern jazz to New Orleans jazz to the Blues, Wynton Marsalis and his septet played it all at Babson's own Knight Auditorium Tuesday night in front of a standing room only crowd, which might just be the largest ever attended at Knight auditorium except for opening day of freshman orientation. Starting with the conservatively modern sound of The Majesty of the Blues, the title track of his latest album, Marsalis then went all the way back to a 1923 Jelly Roll Morton song entitled Jungle Blues.

From there he and the band, composed of Wyvette Gordon on trombone, Todd Williams on tenor sax, Wes Anderson on alto sax, Reginald Veal on bass, Kelvin Riley on drums, and Marcus Roberts playing the piano, went on through the spectrum of jazz touching on traditional, be-bop, and the Blues while conspicuously avoiding that which is called fusion jazz.

His own compositions included a lusty ballad entitled The Seductress, and a love ballad entitled The Very Thought of You. Todd Williams played an elegant un-titled composition which Marsalis temporarily named Babson. Coincidentally, Tuesday was Mardi Gras, and Marsalis and the band were up for the celebration, with a majority of the songs done in New Orleans style. The highlight of the evening was the culmination into the celebratory Mardi Gras finale which provoked one mad dancer from New Orleans onto the stage with the handkerchief in hand and a bad case of rhythm. Having finished with the two prepared sets, which included a song the band had never before played together, Marsalis went into a wild Dixieland tune that let the musicians groove.

The only low point of the evening came during the Programming Board's introduction, in which Eric Wells listed the great names of jazz and then said "You may not be familiar with these names..." Unfortunately for Wells and fortunately for Marsalis, the audience was primarily non-Babson students and they were quite familiar with the names of Jelly Roll Morton, Louis Armstrong, Charlie Parker, Dizzy Gillespie, Billy Holiday, Miles Davis, and John Coltrane and how Wynton Marsalis measures up to that history. Although it was somewhat embarrassing for Wells to fail the cultural depravity of Babson students, the remark probably would have been well deserved had Babson students been there.

The audience instead was responsive and enthusiastic for what may well go down in Babson history as the greatest concert ever. Marsalis doesn't play all the songs played on Tuesday night in every concert. Those songs were in simple celebration of Mardi Gras, and Babson College was the only audience to hear the Marsalis Septet play them.
"sophisticated." They want an "authentic black...and sophisticated is an enemy of the paper," he went on to say that the press now labels his attitudes as "elitist as a result.

Marsalis' latest album is an exploration of the roots and history of jazz entitled The Majesty of the Blues. The second side of this album contains a mournful eulogy on the Decca of Jazz, which Marsalis says is about the romance that jazz inspires in people of all cultures. You see Russians...and Chinese people listening to jazz and their going to do the same thing that Americans are going to do when they listen to jazz. If they are male and female they're going to get together and make children." It is also about the fact that "the cornerstone of American culture is Blues." Marsalis says that Blues is the mythology of America. It is about a central journey. The Death of Jazz is also about the struggle of people against forces that are trying to hold them down. "Do you want to negotiate with bullshit. If you take the other choice, its death," said Marsalis referring to a combination of things including letting racism win out, and selling out musically to gain listeners. "Most musicians get into music to get chicks," he said, "to be endorsed. That's why I went into it, cause the women dig the sound. Its mainly a sexual thing. Once you can get past the endorsement you can get serious." Marsalis is as well known for his classical playing as he is for his influence on modern day jazz. In 1984 he won grammy awards for both jazz and classical work and did it again in 1986. He says he has given up classical for now, however, "because I don't have enough time to practice." With such a presence in the jazz world, that dedication to one art form can only help the greatest trumpeter of this generation.

A true attribute of this film in the neighbor, played by Joan Cusack, who quickly "believes" the older of Lange's sons. Cusack's character delights with off-the-wall humor in her unique delivery. Lange is wonderful in her role as a single mother dealing with realistic problems in a believable fashion. No extraordinary events are necessary in Geffen's story telling. Instead, honest fiction serves up plentiful doses of humor, poignancy, and tears. The acting abilities of the younger boy in this movie are truly remarkable. He is an honest-to-good kid, not a 30 year old wit packed in a 10 year old body. In fact, the youngster nearly steals the show with one of the final scenes where he and his mother, Jessica Lange, try to muddle through their emotions and their situation. Almost without flaw. Men Don't Leave is a reversal of the recent success formulas of out of place characters in out of bounds settings. Geffen has proven his adaptability in the entertainment industry and provides, for me at least, one of the best movies released in quite some time. One suggestion: avoid the previews anyone who wants to "let you in" on the plot, Men Don't Leave is best approached without preconceived notions. Try it - you'll like it.

Low-Fat, Low-Chole-
ssterol Nutrition Guidelines

In recent years, the American diet contains large amounts of fat and cholesterol, two of the six lifestyle factors associated with increased risk of coronary heart disease. The remaining four lifestyle factors are excess body weight, stress, smoking and sedentary lifestyle.

Suggestions for a Healthy Meal:

1. Reduce total fat intake and especially saturated fat. Eat chicken and turkey (remove skin), and fish frequently.

2. Limit red meats (beef, pork, veal) to two or three 4-oz servings weekly.

3. Use low-fat or skimmed milk products.

4. Use soft margarines, and unsaturated or polyunsaturated oils.

5. Limit cholesterol intake. Avoid liver, other organ meats and processed meats. Limit egg yolks to two per week.

6. Consume a high-fiber diet: Use oats, oatmeal, whole grain breads and cereals, brown rice, legumes (dried beans & peas), fresh fruits and vegetables.

7. Read labels to find hidden fat. Note that crackers and some bread and dessert products contain coconut oil, palm or palm kernel oil, and in advance and $10 on the night of the show. For more information call: 617-425-7744. Tickets available at all Strawberries Records and Tapes locations, Out of Town and The Channel Box Office.

To charge tickets call TOLL FREE: 800-770-8434 or Concert Charge at 617-497-1118.

Necco Place is located adjacent to the Channel, 25 Necco Street in Boston. The producer, promoter and creative force behind Urban Rituals is CM Productions, a Boston-based entertainment agency dedicated to presenting and promoting new artists. "Urban Rituals exemplifies a trend in the arts for the nineties," explains producer Michael Caggianone. "Now that hunting is hard to come by, the artists who thrive will be self-supporting acts that don't rely on expensive props or staging to convey their expressions. All of these entertainers are innovators who interact with and challenge their audience on a personal, emotional and intellectual level. This type of entertainment programming works in venues such as the Knitting Factory and The Kitchen in New York City, and we're determining to make it work at Necco Place and to bring new music and performance to Boston on a regular basis.

announces an enhancement to the PS/2.

A high-speed loan.

If you're like most students, you're often running low on cash when it comes to really need. That's why we've come up with the IBM PS/2 Loan for Learning. It may not be fast. And it's not affordable. Expect rates are substantially lower than those on most consumer loans. Just 1.75% above the Prime Rate (as published in The Wall Street Journal). Qualification is based on your financial status and ability to repay. Students, parents and faculty may be eligible.

You're smart enough to get your Geography, Entertainment, and Sports & Leisure on the PS/2. All in one turn.

And you're still smoking?

Babson Circle K is happy to announce its new board of officers for the 1989-90 year. Congratulations to Kyrm Cirrincione, President; Joe Fernandez, Vice President; Andrea Doblas, Secretary, and Adrian Tore, Treasurer. You can certainly look forward to another successful year from Circle K under the leadership of these dedicated individuals.

We would also like to thank everyone who purchased a Valentine's Day Candygram from us. We hope you enjoyed the lollipops. With your help we raised over $200 for the St. Vinnie Pediatric Trauma Institute, which is a specialty hospital in Boston to provide care of young children who are victims of serious acci-

On Wednesday, February 21, Dr. Gurucharan Singh Khalsa presented a Wellness Workshop on the creative management of stress. A small group of 15 students and two staff members enjoyed Dr. Khalsa’s 2-hour presentation which included a discussion of the sources and the physical, mental and emotional manifestations of stress in today’s fast-paced world. Also included in the workshop was a demonstration and a chance to practice Kundalini Yoga techniques to help develop the “Stress Master” in each of us.

Stressors (the actual events and circumstances that cause stress) cannot be completely eliminated from our lives, so we must learn how to limit the negative effects of stress on our mental, physical, and emotional health. “Stress Masters” are those people who handle stress positively and effectively. Whether or not events in your life have a negative or positive affect on you is dependent upon how that event is perceived. Stress Masters are generally characterized by the three C’s: Control, Communication, and Challenge.

Stress masters view themselves as having an acceptable level of control over the events and circumstances in their lives. Even in those cases that they have no control, they generally recognize that they do have control over their reactions to these events.

Stress masters are also generally good communicators. In the management of their reactions to stress, the kind of communication that is most important is internal communication. What we say to ourselves, how we think about our position is essential to limiting the negative effects of stress. Good internal communication allows us to process events and circumstances and promote commitment to our goals and dreams, and limits alienation.

The last of the three C’s is challenge. Stress masters see events and circumstances that others might see as devastating as a challenge. Stressfull events are viewed as opportunities for appropriately creating an opportunity for learning and growth. Clearly, these three characteristics are very much inter-related. The first step in stress management is the recognition that although you may not have control over some of the external stressors in your life, you do have complete control over how you react to those stressors.

The second step in stress management is to learn and practice positive coping techniques. As was stated earlier, the goal is not necessarily to remove all causes of stress from your life (next to impossible, unless you want to become a monk or nun in a secluded monastery or convent), but to limit the negative effects of the stress that are necessary parts of the way we choose to live. Coping techniques are as varied as the people who practice them. Some people learn to cope negatively with stress by using alcohol and other drugs to numb themselves to the effects of the stressor. Often have you heard someone say, “I just need a drink or two (or ten) to relax,” or, “I only smoke to calm myself down.” These techniques are negative, because they can become a source of stress themselves. The negative effects of stress are generally only masked by negative coping techniques and not effectively dealt with and dissipated.

Positive coping techniques allow you to feel in control over your response to stress. Ideally, you should choose an activity (it may be appropriate to learn a number of different techniques) that you enjoy and will not find tedious or boring. Some examples of positive coping techniques include: aerobic exercise, stretching exercises, biofeedback, mental imagery, Swedish massage, meditation, progressive muscle relaxation, Tai Chi, water relaxation, and yoga.

Dr. Khalsa is a nationally recognized expert in Kundalini Yoga, which is just one of 32 major branches of Yoga Techniques. Slightly different from traditional Hatha Yoga (which focuses on maintaining mental and physical balance by holding complex poses), Kundalini Yoga works the entire nervous and glandular system. It increases mental clarity and awareness and can provide greater creative and physical energy. By combining simple chants, exerises and meditative techniques, a “Yoga Workout” allows you to clear and relax your mind and body.

The next Stress management Workshop will be held Wednesday, March 28 at 6:30 pm in the Commuter Student Lounge, but if you are interested in trying this form of stress management join us on a drop-in basis in the Aerobics Studio, Recreation and Special Events Center on Wednesday Evenings at 6:30. Good luck and relax and enjoy your life on your way to becoming a “Stress Master.”

Measles is a serious disease that is highly communicable among those people who are NOT immune. There is now evidence that protection from measles is not necessarily conferred by a single dose of vaccine. Cure of measles outbreaks and epidemics of measles at colleges in Maine and Florida.

The Massachusetts Board of Health has notified the Babson College Health Services Director, Carole Warsh, that all persons who plan to travel to Florida for Spring Break (or in the next month) should check their immunity status to measles. It is now recommended that two doses of vaccine since age 12 be required as proof of immunity.

Babson students should call Health Services (x4297) to determine whether they are considered immune. Students born before 1987 are considered immune. Special clinics to vaccinate those who need it will be held on Tuesday, March 6th and Wednesday, March 7th. An appointment will be necessary. There is a $5.00 charge for the vaccine. the state no longer provides us with this vaccine.

An alternative site to receive the vaccine for only $30 is the Brighton Marine Hospital, 77 Warren Street, Brighton, MA located between Commonwealth Avenue and Cambridge Street. Hours are 8:30-11:30 am and 1-4 pm. No appointments required.

Lady Cagers End Season

By Pam Lawler

It was another thrilling season for the Lady Cagers, for the second time in this season Babson challenged Mt. Holyoke on home turf. This time it was in the quarter finals of the New Eight Tournament playoffs. Once again Babson defeated Mt. Holyoke, in the regular season Babson whipped them by over thirty points, this week’s contest showed more challenging for Babson with a win of 60-56. The hard earned win over Mt. Holyoke launched the Babson team into the semi-finals vs WPI. This second contest proved more than another victory for the Lady Cagers. On Thursday, February 24th Babson faced their last home game for the season, WPI. WPI went into the finals and bowed to this year’s New Eight Conference Champions - Wheaton College.

Babson vs Mt. Holyoke was much more than another victory for the Lady Cagers. On Thursday, February 24th Babson faced their last home game for the season, WPI. WPI went into the finals and bowed to this year’s New Eight Conference Champions - Wheaton College. The team performed well in the Mt. Holyoke game. Joanne Choule was the high scorer for the Babson team, from the charity stripe WPI shot 89%, while Babson College shot 42.6%. The final score of the contest was 67-56. Through the darkness, the Babson team showed its true colors. Joanne Choule still sparkled bright with a 15 rebound, 18 point game. Nancy Langenvin added 10 points for the Lady Cagers.

The team ended the 1989-90 season at 12-13, defeated during the semi-finals of the New Eight Conference. Although the team was not at its finest, it had two representatives from the team accept awards at the final ceremonies. Joanne Choule made the 1989-90 all Conference Team. The seniors were honored us all season with her consistent rebounds from the guard position.

It was the aggression of the Babson team that lead them to a victory over Mt. Holyoke. The game was tied several times throughout the contest and was an exciting show of talent and ability, too bad the refs were asleep for most of it.

Babson traveled to Wheaton College on Saturday, February 24th to play against WPI in the New Eight Conference finals. For the second time this season WPI defeated Babson, behind the aggressive defense and strong outside shooting efforts of their entire team. Jody Norman was unstoppable and poured in 32 points for the Engineers from the point guard position. A strong inside show was given by Michelle LeBuissef with 14 points. In the end, it was the strong free throw shooting of WPI which put them past the Babson team. From the charity stripe WPI shot 80%, while Babson College shot 42.6%. The final score of the contest was 67-56. Through the darkness, the Babson team showed its true colors. Joanne Choule still sparkled bright with a 15 rebound, 18 point game. Nancy Langenvin added 10 points for the Lady Cagers.

The seniors have been to 4 ECAC Tournaments and 4 NCAA Tournaments. Their freshmen year, the seniors finished 2nd in the GA Activity Hotline at 24390. Here is a look at these five Beaver seniors:

1. Dana Janis - A transfer from Hockey East's U Lowell in 1987. Dana enjoys a fine career at Malden Catholic (Home of former Beaver star Tom Sasso and current teammate Jeff Sadowski) and accepted a scholarship to U Lowell. After two seasons at Lowell, Dana returned to Babson.

2. Cindy Colantuono - Babson's top scorer this season, Cindy had 16 goals and 14 assists for 30 points for the Beavers. Cindy is also the Beavers' top penalty killer.

3. Lisa Marinaro - Babson's top defensewoman this season, Lisa had 10 goals and 16 assists for 26 points. Lisa is also the Beavers' top penalty killer.

4. Joanne Choule - Babson's top scorer this season, Joanne had 18 goals and 15 assists for 33 points. Joanne is also the Beavers' top penalty killer.

5. Nancy Langenvin - Babson's top defensewoman this season, Nancy had 6 goals and 11 assists for 17 points. Nancy is also the Beavers' top penalty killer.

The team ended the 1989-90 season at 12-13, defeated during the semi-finals of the New Eight Conference. Although the team was not at its finest, it had two representatives from the team accept awards at the final ceremonies. Joanne Choule made the 1989-90 all Conference Team. The seniors were honored us all season with her consistent rebounds from the guard position.

#15 John Herlihy - The Worcester native entered Babson 4 years ago from National Prep Power Northwood. The rugged left winger immediately made his presence felt freshman year twice capturing ECAC Rookie of the Week Honors, setting a Babson Rookie record with 26 goals and leading the team with 9 game winning goals. "Herli's" capped off his freshman year by being selected by the New York Islanders (NHL) in the 1989 entry draft. John recently broke the 60 goal career mark. #15 has been a consistent scoring threat for four years and is a solid two way player. John's younger brother Mark currently plays left wing on this years team.

The Beavers are looking forward to playing at Middlebury.

The Babson Beavers recently wrapped up their regular season with an 18-10-1 record (14-4-1 in the league) and wound up as the top seed in this weekends ECAC East Tournament. Much of this year’s success can be attributed to hard working coaches Stirling and Denardo. They instilled a play of underclassmen and 5 players who spent 4 years in the hockey program. The seniors have been to 4 ECAC Tournaments and 4 NCAA Tournaments. Their freshmen year, the seniors finished 2nd in the GA Activity Hotline at 24390. Here is a look at these five Beaver seniors:

1. Dana Janis - A transfer from Hockey East's U Lowell in 1987. Dana enjoys a fine career at Malden Catholic (Home of former Beaver star Tom Sasso and current teammate Jeff Sadowski) and accepted a scholarship to U Lowell. After two seasons at Lowell, Dana returned to Babson.

2. Cindy Colantuono - Babson's top scorer this season, Cindy had 16 goals and 14 assists for 30 points for the Beavers. Cindy is also the Beavers' top penalty killer.

3. Lisa Marinaro - Babson's top defensewoman this season, Lisa had 10 goals and 16 assists for 26 points. Lisa is also the Beavers' top penalty killer.

4. Joanne Choule - Babson's top scorer this season, Joanne had 18 goals and 15 assists for 33 points. Joanne is also the Beavers' top penalty killer.

Back From D.C.
Men's Hoops Begin ECAC's

By Sedge Saunders
Staff Writer

Last weekend the Babson men's basketball team took their traveling road show to Washington, D.C. for the Eastern Invitational Tournament hosted by Catholic College. The tournament showcased some of the best Division Three hoop teams on the Eastern coast. Babson was pit in a tough bracket, with three teams in the top twenty. But Babson was up to the challenge and left a lasting impression on their feisty opponents.

Friday the Beavers found themselves facing a tough Emory squad, who boasted a 21-2 record. Babson came out shaky and Emory took full advantage, jumping out to a 22-11 lead in the first half. The Beavers were plagued by turnovers and poor shooting, which didn't help their cause in the least bit. But Babson went on a run of their own and thanks to Jimmy Pierrakos, who was playing the game of his life, the Beavers were only down one 37-36. The second half was a see-saw battle, as Coach Dellier's team came out of the locker room firing up Wooden Hines, back from an ankle injury, started heating up from the outside while Pierrakos, who was constantly being double and triple teamed, continued to be a force underneath, carrying the Beavers for much of the half. Babon cut the lead to one just under four minutes and Kirk Malon scored on 3 straight put up moves. Emory replied to lead by seven, but trifectors by Wooden Hines and Jim Drakely squashed between two Emory foul shots cut the lead to three. It was too little too late, though, and Babson fell short 62-76.

A thorn in the side for the Beavers was their .063% shooting from behind the three point line. Leading the way for Emory was Terry Gorsech who finished with 16 points. Jim Garrett had 13 points and 11 boards while the Hines/Hat pace accounted for 33 points. Babson was led by super soph Wilt Ferrante and senior undergrad Jeff Street. Babson would have an incredible 39 of a possible 40 minutes. The uncanny Jim finished with 23 points and a game high 14 boards. Wooden Hines, with 11 points, was the only other Beaver in double figures. "Holes" who usually is a major factor, was in foul trouble the whole game.

On Saturday, Babon took on Nazareth, another tough squad. The Beavers came out sluggish and never really got into the flow of the game. Nazereth played a picture perfect game. They moved the ball crisply around the perimeter and buried nearly every shot they took. Babson trailed by 10 at the half but, despite the superb play by Jim Pierrakos, the Beavers lost 93-77. Babson was stopped by their unusually bad field and they truly feel free throw percentages.

Nazareth (18-8), which shot an amazing 60% from the field, was led by Mike Funk Jr. with 24, while Adrian Myers and John Gerbinski each had 14.

The 1989-90 ski team came to an end last weekend as the men's team failed to qualify for the National Meet to be held in Waterville on March 7-10. After Friday's giant slalom, the Beavers were the only team with very strong performances by all of the skiers. Sunday was a day that few of us on the team wish to remember. Matt Koval, whose good run was robbed by Paul Bellucci did like-wise on his second run, it didn't help, as he is a top four. Amberst, Boston College and Plymouth State will represent our region at the Nationals.

year. Bird is such a fine all-around player that he can be seen playing the point on the Beavers power play. This position utilizes both his hard shot and passing ability. Tim hopes to continue his hockey playing in Europe next year.

#18 Jamie Rice
From near by Newton and Hotchkiss, Jamie has enjoyed a fine four years for Babson. Playing on the line with John Herhly for much of his four years, the right wing enjoyed his finest season last year finishing third in the Beavers scoring list and leading the team in assists. "Rice" is a big, physical wing who plays as well defensively as offensively. Not a flashy player, Jamie comes right in and right out to play and sees ice time in many crucial situations. Jamie also doubles as a relief pitcher and tri-captain on Babsons baseball team. Rice captured the M.V.P. of last years M.I.T. baseball tournament for the first place Beavers.

Good luck in the ECAC's to the team and thank you for four great years to the seniors.

Babson's men's volleyball club has been experiencing a promising season. Having just come into existence this year they kicked off the season with a win against WPI on Feb 15th. Only shortly afterward the team was invited to a tournament at Salem State, featuring two of the best teams in New England (UNH and WPI). Babson was unfortunately placed in the same division as both of these teams. The other division consisted of the host, Bryant and Wentworth College. Babson lost the first match against the eventual winner BU but continued in the second match to beat UNH in an exciting match and eliminating them from the tournament. Babson eventually lost semi-finals but displayed a promising performance for the future.

The fine coaching of Judy Blinnstrub was recognized by all the coaches of the New Eight Conference. Coach Blinnstrub was awarded the Coach of the Year, 1989-90. We always knew she was great, now everybody else does too.

Locking ahead, the Babson team will be working hard during this season. Although the team loses two important seniors it will keep a junior, four sophomores, and five freshmen. In the next few years the Babson team will be working very hard and should be extremely promising.
Men's Soccer Wins Indoor Tourney

By Tom Lapointe
Contributing Writer

This past weekend the Babson Soccer team finished first out of a field of fourteen other college teams that competed in the first Babson Challenge Indoor Cup Tourney held in our own PepsiCo Pavilion. The Tourney included Div. I power houses, U.R.I. and Providence College, heavily favored Div. II teams, Springfield and Bentley and all the way strong teams from Brandeis, U.S.C.O.A., Amherst and Middletown among others.

Unlike outdoor soccer, indoor soccer has six men per side including a goalie. A total of sixteen teams (two from Babson) were divided into four brackets of four teams that played off among themselves on Saturday. On Sunday the best two teams from each of the four groups on Saturday faced off against each other until only four teams remained (Babson, Middletown, Bentley and Providence). By 5:30 pm Sunday Babson finished it's undefeated (7-0-1) two day record by eliminating Bentley 1-0 in OT to win the first Babson Cup.

Six tourney all-stars were chosen. Bob Pipe and Bob Pickett from Babson, Miguil Mattin and Seth Arnold from Bentley, Vezir Ajro from Middletown and Mike Novara from Brandeis. Out of those Bob Pipe received the Tourney MVP.

The soccer team would like to thank the Women's Softball team for running the concession stand and Soccer World for partially sponsoring shirts for the top teams. Due to the incredible success of the first Tourney, this is sure to be a superior, annual event.

The action continues to be hard hitting and the fever pitched as teams battle it out on the Pepsi Cola Rink. This week's action had some major upsets as well as some close games.

The men's hockey game was between the Pepsi Cola Rink and the All-Stars. The Pepsi Cola Rink won 3-2, but the game was filled with exciting play. The Pepsi Cola Rink's goalie, Marc, made some great saves to keep the All-Stars at bay. The All-Stars' center, John, scored a late goal to tie the game, but the Pepsi Cola Rink's left wing, Mark, scored the deciding goal with seconds remaining.

The women's hockey game was between the Pepsi Cola Rink and the All-Stars. The Pepsi Cola Rink won 2-1, but the game was a close one. The Pepsi Cola Rink's goalie, Maria, made some great saves to keep the All-Stars at bay. The All-Stars' center, Jane, scored a breakaway goal to tie the game, but the Pepsi Cola Rink's left wing, Lisa, scored the winning goal with seconds remaining.

Magic of the Mind

Craig Karges is so sure of all his abilities that he risks his own performance fee, the money is returned to the sponsor if he fails. He realizes that there are bound to be skeptics in every audience. If anyone can ever prove that Craig has solicited help from the audience prior to the evening's entertainment, he promises to donate $10,000 to charity.

His notoriety has extended beyond the realm of live performance. Karges has been a frequent guest on television talk shows throughout the United States. He has co-produced and starred in two half-hour television specials for PBS in his home state of West Virginia. On the television show "PM Magazine," Craig duplicated a drawing being thought of by the show's host. In addition, he was able to locate the one hotel room out of 200 that the host was hiding in.

Appropriately, Craig has titled his show "Magic of the Mind." Perhaps our greatest magic is within ourselves. Craig claims to have no supernatural powers. He states "If my show goes beyond entertainment, I hope that it may motivate people to explore their own minds. We only use ten to twenty percent of our brain. When you look at the potential that's there within each of us, I think it's just incredible!"

RAVES: Gallagher's American Experience

By Drew Jackson Staff Writer

Although Route 9 in Natick isn't the first place most people think of when they want fine food, Gallagher's American Experience, a relatively new restaurant, is fast becoming a bright spot in local dining. A varied menu, combined with a bright atmosphere, ensures a pleasurable experience for most every table.

The long list of appetizers features such items as Maryland Crabcake, french onion soup, prosciutto with melon, and chilli or cheese nachos are both good.

For a light and inexpensive meal, the individual serving pizzas are a surprising hit. A very thin crust, real chunks of tomatoe, and lots of cheese make these well worth trying, perhaps with one of the various salads offered.

The menu also features a good selection of sandwiches for a light meal. In fact, if you just want a quick sandwich, a small cafe' separate from the restaurant has the sandwich menu, along with Gallagher's large selection of desserts.

For a main course, the various seafood entrees are usually very good. The scallops in caserole feature fresh scallops in a mixture of bread crumbs, butter, and wine. The stuffed shrimp and lobster pie are also very good. One occasional seafood special to avoid is the lobster ravioli. This dish was incredibly dry and had very little lobster. The kitchen also apparently couldn't decide if a red sauce added to perhaps biven the dish up was going to work (it didn't), as there were only two uneven blobs present.

Be sure to save room for dessert at Gallagher's. The wonderful dessert menu includes such delicious choices as chocolate pecan pie, brownie sundae, and triple chocolate mouse cake. They also have a good selection of after-dinner drinks.

Gallagher's American Experience is located on Route 9 West just before Super Stop & Shop in Natick. Many items offered on the menu are also available for take-out.
