Student Government Notes

By Sam Kwak
Contributing writer

The student government meeting held at Tannossio Hall on September 26 ran smoothly, being informative and productive at the same time.

Guest speaker Steve Stirling, athletic director, was very enthusiastic about the student’s spirit and participation in athletics. He is very proud of the new athletic center, although it is lacking in minor details such as a roof to keep the track and available water fountains. Alternatives are being looked into. An addition of 3 squash courts and one racquetball court will be added by October 15. Mr. Stirling stated that students will be required to bring their ID cards in order to limit entry to members of the Babson community.

Executive VP Tony Daigle reminded the attendees that the shuttle to the T will be leaving from Horn Library at 1, 6 and 8 pm on Saturdays, and 6 and 8 pm on Fridays.

Students who wish to appeal parking tickets may do so on Oct. 3, 13, 20; Nov. 13 and 22; and Dec. 11 at Trm 205.

The Programming Board is sponsoring a comedy night in the Fo’c’sle Friday night. Theta Chi will be holding a party in the Fo’c’sle Saturday night from 9-1.

The Hooters will be coming to Babson November 10 in the new PepsiCo Pavilion. Tickets will be available at the information center in Hollister starting October 20. The concert will be free to all Babson students.

Pritchett Responds to the Globe

By Faith Hickey
Contributing writer

In response to last week’s article in the Free Press concerning the whereabouts of Michael J. Smurfit’s $75,000 contribution to “Save the Globe,” Gordon Pritchett, vice president for academic affairs and chairman of the new committee, provided the following information:

The $75,000 donated to Babson by Michael Smurfit has been put into a special account to be used by the new committee in its study of the Globe.

The new committee will be called “The Future of the Globe Committee.” The committee will be comprised of any of the ten members of the old committee that were considered “active” at the time of its dissolution, one or two faculty members (yet to be named), Gordon Pritchett and Henry Denaught, the assistant vice president for academic affairs.

The Future of the Globe Committee will hold its first organizational meeting on October 10th. At this meeting, the committee will attempt to lay out a timetable for themselves, establish their objectives, and construct a set of operating procedures.

The new committee has been given a March 15th deadline to submit a proposal to President Glavin concerning the future of the Globe. This report is to contain a history of the Globe, ideas concerning the future of the Globe, its possible role in enhancing the school’s commitment to international education, how the Globe can be used to help market Babson in the international business community, estimates for the costs of the different options facing the school.

Committees to Set Precedence

By Erik Dubovik
News Editor

The Classes of ’90, ’91 and ’92 plan to utilize the latest wave of “Bab Pride” to the greatest extent. With a full schedule of events planned for all classes, the committees are already hard at work.

According to Peter Coumoundouros, senior class president, “the classes will be working with each other to bring the students together in order to form a tighter and closer group here at Babson.”

“We will be working with alumni affairs to link students together with alumni during informal information sessions,” stated Mr. Coumoundouros. The reason for these sessions will be to offer students from all classes the opportunity to learn about life after Babson as well as keep the alumni informed about current events at their alma-mater. The senior class also plans to donate a class gift to the school and is already well underway in the preparations of Senior Week.

John Devine, president of the junior class, announced that his committee has planned a volleyball tournament, beach party and a semi-formal (off-campus) as well as many other events to keep Babson students busy throughout the year. John also stated that the classes will be working together more than ever this year to provide a forum between students and administration by offering students the opportunity to voice their opinions, comments, and problems.

Meetings with the Office of Career Services, administrators and faculty to discuss the role and importance of the steering committees are being scheduled at this time.

Matthew Perkins, sophomore class president, shows great enthusiasm towards this year’s events. “Steering committees have never

Nut's To You
Focus On Student Businesses

By Bob Collins
Business Editor

The next time you are out shopping for Trim during the evening meals, take note of Laurie Levesque, owner of Nut’s To You.

Nuts To You is a student-owned on-campus business which offers candy and nuts to after-dinner desert prospects who are usually exiting from a Trim dining experience (please see Flashes Forum for a more detailed definition of a “dining experience”).

Laurie Levesque is a 20 year old junior from Woburn, MA, who is studying Marketing and Entrepreneurial studies here at Babson. Nuts To You has been in operation now for close to five years. It was during December of 1987 that Laurie purchased the business with roommate and partner Lisa Viechnicki from Babson graduate Mark Thompson. In the fall of ’88, Levesque bought out Viechnicki to become the sole proprietor.

Since that time Laurie has added several new features, including a wider assortment and selection of candies and nuts. She has also expanded the business hours (formerly operating three days a week) to Mondays through Thursdays from 4:30 p.m. until 6:45 p.m. New this year are new jars with FDA approved lids, which help to keep the products fresh, and a new scale. “I was giving away a lot of free nuts before, but the horridous old scale, my dad got me a new one that is accurately calibrated.”

Currently Laurie is having a new cart made which we consumers should see in operation within four to six weeks. Laurie is especially anxious about this, as she feels the new point-of-purchase display will greatly improve the merchandising of her candies.

In the ensuing weeks, Laurie is looking to hire another person or two in order to delegate some of the responsibility, so that she will have more time to analyze Nut’s financial position. “I use Lotus 1-2-3 to keep track of all my records, and I am now beginning to learn how to really analyze what they say.”

Sales have greatly increased over the past few semesters, which Laurie credits to repeat customers. Nuts To You does offer charge accounts to its customers for a $1.25 processing fee up front. Terms include a $6.00 limit and a two-week billing period.

You may remember Laurie and part of Levesque’s marketing strategy, which came two weeks ago in the form of a mass mailing coupon flier. “There was a pretty good response,” Laurie said, “I was surprised...a lot of people put it aside and have been using now. I felt good that I didn’t see a lot of them thrown away in the trash in the mail room.” Laurie designed the flier herself from the experience she received while working for Woodcraft Supply Corp. as a marketing intern this summer. She helped her brother put together the layout for a mail order catalog.

Laurie is extremely satisfied with the progress Nut’s To You has made. She credits the support she received from her parents as a driving force that helped capitalize the venture. “Babson [also] is very supportive of studentrun businesses, it’s a great place to start and gain experience for the ‘outside world.’” Levesque stated that others interested in starting their own businesses should, “Go for it! If you’re willing to put the time and effort into a business, then Go For It!”

Speaker’s Forum
International Marketing

By Bob Collins
Business Editor

On Monday night, Babson Marketing Association President Rob Hazleton introduced their guest speaker during MBA’s first event of the semester.

Donna W. Smith, Marketing Analyst for GTE Sylvania’s special product’s division, spoke for 45 minutes on national and global marketing.

Ms. Smith received her Bachelor’s Degree from Mary Washington College in Virginia and her Master’s from UNH. Ms. Smith, an avid skier, detailed GTE’s missions statement and organizational structure.

GTE places itself within five sectors: (1) Lighting, (2) Semi-Conductors, (3) Thin Films, (4) Process heat, and (5) Emissive Products. Ms. Smith is responsible for S-5 market and financial strategic plans as well as advertising products and overseeing new product development.

Ms. Smith attributes her analytical skills for contributing to her success. "Communicational skills are very important." Ms. Smith also stated that writing and presentation are very important in the corporate world.

As far as Global Marketing is concerned,

Ms. Smith stated that, “The travel is great!” However, there is culture shock that one must prepare for. Furthermore, you can not expect reality to fit into your plans 100%, for instance, Hurricane Hugo blew the roof off GTE’s Puerto Rico plant, which will seriously hinder the sales forecast Smith had generated.

Speaking candidly, Ms. Smith concluded with questions and answers. "I don’t think we could survive without the fax machine!" We are constantly releasing international press releases in up to three languages in order to go the "most basic for the buck!"

Ms. Smith concluded with advice to students, “You must be able to market yourselves to get to where you want to go.”

Money, Business & The Economy

By Bob Collins
Business Editor

This summer I had an opportunity to see one of Broadway’s most successful musicals in New York City, Andrew Lloyd Webber’s “The Phantom Of The Opera.” If you think the performing arts is not a thriving, growing industry, guess again.

The Phantom opened in January 26, 1988 to an advanced ticket sales of over $18 million! According to Variety, The Cameron Machliss-Keisky Group presentation recovered its 88 million production costs after 60 sellout weeks in the Majestic Theatre. This earns Lloyd Webber a weekly royalty of 9.35%, or just over $50,000 per week! The Phantom is currently sold out through February of 1990.

Get ready for a strong new fall advertising schedule! Marketers will spend an estimated $50 billion on ads this fall – a record figure!

The Walt Disney Co. agreed to acquire Henson Associates for an estimated $100-150 million. Henson was a privately held company founded by master muppeteer Jim Henson, creator of Kermit the Frog and Miss Piggy.

The sale, however, did not include Henson’s Sesame Street characters, according to Fortune magazine. Soon Kermit and Piggy will be joining Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck to the Planet’s theme parks, as well as starring in their own attraction at the new Disney/MGM theme park studios.

the Globe, designs of possible solutions, and a final recommendation. The final decision concerning the future of the Globe will be made by President Glavin based upon the information and recommendations provided by the committee.

The $75,000 will be used to obtain estimates, etc. If a decision is made by President Glavin to destroy the Globe, the remainder of the money will be reallocated to the school as Glavin sees fit. If, however, a decision is made to restore the Globe, the remaining money will go towards that purpose.

Dr. Pritchett stresses that the recommendation of the committee will be based upon logical analysis and not emotions. Pritchett states, "It is my intention to approach this project with an open mind to collect sufficient information from the community, from external experts, and from the former Globe Restoration Committee's laborers; and to make a rational and fair recommendation to the President."

Announcements

Attention undergraduate students!! If you have received parking tickets on the Babson campus that you feel were unfairly served, be aware of the Student Traffic Court. The Traffic Court is composed of undergraduate students who objectively and confidentially hear each plaintiff's case and render a final decision. So if you feel an injustice has been served, come see the Traffic Court. Court dates are:

7:00 pm in Trim 205
OCT: 2, 16, 30
NOV: 19, 27
DEC: 11

Representatives from two study abroad programs will be on campus October 4th from noon to 2:00 pm. Students interested may find the representative from AIFS, American Institute for Foreign Study, at Trim at one of the lobby tables. The representative from the Rockford College in London, will meet with interested students in Nichols building, conference room 162. These are both good programs for studying abroad. If you have any idea that you may take a semester abroad, speaking with one or both of these representatives could yield important information to aid you in making your choices and plans. Contact Mrs. Jackson, X4002 if you have any questions.

Steering Committees

had a well defined role in the past. We're in the process of building our image by uniting the classes and providing a liaison between students, administrators, and alumni. The sophomore class will be sponsoring Pub nights, barbecues, and dances, and also a few larger events that are currently in the works.

Roger's Pub will be used often by all of the classes for weekly Pub nights. Individual classes will sponsor nights to bring their members together while jointly sponsored events will promote unity and spirit between the classes. The jointly sponsored events, according to the committee president, will be one of the ways to make Babson a more tightly knit community which will ultimately help in bringing alumni together in future years.

The steering committee members are out to make this an unprecedented year for school activities, spirit, and unity in hopes that future classes will look back and strive to meet the same goals attained by this year's committees.

This Weeks Question: "What Do You Think Of The New Gym?"

The Right Perspective

by James Augir
Contributing writer

Guess who has become the most competent spokesman for the administration's Central American policy? Don Quayle. Quayle has pointed out that the Marxist FMLN guerrillas have been committing terrorist acts in El Salvador in order to cause that country's new leader, Alfredo Cristiani, to commit rash actions. The FMLN's most notable achievement, so far includes the murder of El Salvador's attorney general and the bombing of their president's house. The intended effect would be a crackdown by Cristiani and a subsequent cut off of Congressional aid to that fledgling democracy.

Quayle is also lobbying to overturn Congress's latest measure (after Congress's sellout of freedom in disbarding the Nicaraguan freedom fighters), which cuts off aid to police forces in El Salvador.

According to a news brief in the Boston Globe, there has been a dramatic increase in weapons shipments from Cuba to the Sandanista government, some of which can be traced back to Moscow. This is a flagrant violation of ceasefire agreements. It looks like Oscar Arias is going to have to hold his Nobel prize up to his chest to protect the bullets to be fired by the communist guerrillas.

At any rate, the much-ridiculed Quayle deserves recognition for his efforts to secure freedom for Central America and to bring the fighting of communism back to the mainstream.

Recently released polls calculated President Bush's popularity ratings at a lofty 76% with a 10% unfavorable rating. It is my belief that Bush has earned this high rating in most cases; however, his recent embrace of the bankrupt principle of gun control is an unconscionable abandonment of conservative principles. Furthermore, Congress plans on proposing even more stringent laws that apply to not only semi-automats, but to all types of armor.

In order to pass these laws, Washington had to come up with a new classification of firearms: "assault weapons." Congressional gun control proposals give vague and circular definitions of "assault weapons," which include handguns, shotguns and rifles, that are owned by millions of Americans and are used for hunting, target shooting and other legitimate practices. The fact of the matter is that semi-automatics have been owned and legally used since the turn of the century. Gun control advocates claim that these weapons have no sporting purpose. This is not true -- 20 to 30 million Americans use semi-automatic firearms for hunting and target shooting. Semi-automats are even used in U.S. Olympic events.

An average of about 3% of all reported crimes involve military-style firearms. When the average sentence served for murder is 7 1/2 years, I think that Congress should concentrate more on reforming the revolving door justice system than on trampling on citizens' freedoms.

Why Pay More?

Babson Women in Business (B.W.I.B.) held their first annual scholarship sample sale on September 19th and 18th, 1989. Twenty-five women's clothing and accessory representatives, including Calvin Klein, Lanz, Misty Harbor, Geiger, Deans, J.G., Hook, etc., displayed their fall fashions in Knight Auditorium and bargain hunters -- alumni, students, and the public, filled the auditorium to shop for merchandise marked 48-60% off all retail prices. The B.W.I.B. committee was pleased by the turnout and anticipate twice as many shoppers for their next sale planned for later winter. Keep your eyes and ears open to get the best deals in town! Why pay full price when we can get it for you at wholesale??

More than Meets the Eye

Take a glance at the bottom of the page and you will notice another ad for the Babson Free Press. With this advertisement, the Free Press is attempting to appeal to another side of the student. The Babson Free Press is more than just a couple of pages thrown together on a Wednesday night. It's also a business, to be run just like IBM, General Motors, or even Babson College: it's a social organization which introduces you to bright, hardworking students who are leaders on this campus, as well as administration, faculty, and staff members; it is an organization which will teach you basic organization skills and give you a sense of purpose and belonging.

When I joined the Free Press, I had no past experience with journalism or publishing. Yet, I was accepted and in about a year I became Editor-in-Chief. The Free Press turns to no one. We wonder who the person in order to help them achieve a sense of accomplishment to benefit themselves, the paper, and the community.

If you still have any questions as to what the Babson Free Press is all about just ask one of our members.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Holy Beaverdome!

Dear Editor:
As the Babson Community begins to "takeover" the fabulous Recreation and Special Events Center, I believe that a number of people deserve recognition for their sacrifices and hard work which have made the dream a reality.

Although all students suffered last year when the gym was closed during construction, I do not know of any other team that suffered more than the men's and women's swimming teams. Forced to practice at or before sunrise at Wellesley College -- yeah, thanks Wellesley -- we owe you nothing, these two teams deserve a lot of credit.

I would also like to thank, on behalf of all Babson students, Dr. Paula Roney, Athletic Director Steve Stirling, and his entire staff for coordinating such an extraordinary addition to our campus.

As with all large projects, there have been several small oversights, but they have been brought to the attention of the proper people and are quickly being looked into. I encourage all to bring further suggestions to Mr. Stirling as he and his staff are committed to ironing out all the wrinkles and quickly.

Lon P. Ross

One Mad Grad

Dear Sir:
I am a 1st year MBA student at Babson College. I recently read the Babson Free Press, Volume 42, Issue 1, dated September 14, 1989. After reading every section, article and advertisement, I realized too things. Not one section or article spoke about the MBA experience. Not one section or article addressed the issues facing either first year or second year MBA students at Babson College.

On page 4 of the same issue, you state: "The Babson Free Press is the student newspaper serving Babson College."

If this is consistent with the issues to come, I am not convinced that you serve Babson College. Perhaps, you should rename the paper the "Babson Free Press for undergraduates" and change your position statement to "The Babson Free Press for undergraduates is the student newspaper serving the undergraduate students of Babson College." By doing so.

Sincerely,
James D. Yancey

An Interview with Bill Beyer, GSA President

Interviewed by Chris Boyd
Grad Editor

Graduate Corner: What's the role of the GSA at Babson?

B.B.: I think the role in the past was to conduct social events, but presently with the new administration of Glavin coming in, it is looked at more. I think with the new energy, the GSA has to take on a more responsible role to the students as far as getting future employment, establishing an 'old-boy' network, like the ones at Harvard, MIT, Yale - skull and crossbones type of networks that are very subtle but vital, you'd have to be able to move into the job market with greater ease. This is a small college; we have a lot of successful people, and I think that if we can facilitate interaction with some of our alumnae and some of the people that are becoming involved with the school, we should be able to establish ourselves as a real force in the business community. Presently, the GSA this year has started to refocus themselves into trying to tie the present student body in with alumnae at a greater, higher level. We also believe that we should tie ourselves in with some of the undergraduates, i.e. their parents, because some of the undergraduates come from affluent parents who hold high places in the business community so it would be only beneficial for us to start tapping into those networks too. Babson's always had a good reputation, but that really doesn't do much when you go into the interviewing process. I think that the major message that the GSA wants to portray this year is what we learned from Tommons in our orientation last year, which is 'bite off more than you can chew, and start chewing.' And, I think that it means that when you do get a job out of here, you become the most aggressive, the most exploitive employee that these firms have ever seen, not to be subtle and try to blend in with the culture of any corporation or any job. You want to explode in the job and take as much territory as possible, and continue to do that until someone tells you not to. And when they tell you not to, write that one thing that they tell you not to do on a piece of paper, and then start venturing off in another direction, starting to take up territory in the next direction. And continually do this because what's happened in American business is that people have become too secure in their positions, and they're not really trying to excel, and Babson students are a little bit scared because they're not coming out of Harvard, MIT, or the big name schools, and they're willing to take risks and take chances and explode on the scene, and I think that this is something that a graduate student from Babson should be recognized for. And so, the GSA's function is to cultivate this attitude, to give people a center which this energy comes from, which is the Babson community, and to have the Babson community defined for them so that they feel like once they do leave Babson, they still have a spine or a strong center to come back to with successes, and also be able to help out in the future by helping other students from Babson explode onto the scene. So I guess what we're doing is we're really cultivating alumnae. We're cultivating present students to become strong alumnae in the future.

G.C.G.: What can I do for the GSA?

B.B.: The GSA's fundamental charter for this year is to get everyone involved, and so that anyone and everyone who wants to get involved in the GSA, there's an open door policy. We have arrived, and we are striving, to put people on committees, to be involved either in academics with our students or in the trustees of the corporation, or the administrators as far as the school is concerned. So you could be either involved in P.R., operations, or finance, or marketing the school. Last year we didn't feel like we had the torch passed to us properly, and this year we really do want to be able to pass the torch of the government to the first year students, and we also want to try to involve the juniors. And so, in that effort, the track leaders of the first year will be involved in the GSA also as far as representation of G.C.G.: Can you offer any words of advice for new students?

B.B.: For new students, I think that you have to keep a sense of humor about everything you do. I mean basically you know that people had a real sense of humor when they voted me as president after eleven years of being a ballet dancer. I mean, who in major business school, what kind of person would vote for a ballerina? A sense of humor, you definitely have to have. You have to have dedication, and you have to be a human. The only way you're going to be able to deal with this pressure is to keep your humor and keep being a human, and also bing off more than you can chew. Because every time you're pressed and you're forced to really, really work beyond what you thought you were capable of, and you accomplish, that's really the only time that you're living. So as a new student, all I suggest is I know that you're scared less and not exactly sure where this is all heading, but get into everything. Get your hands dirty constantly. Make a lot of mistakes, just write down your mistakes so you won't make them again. Just keep screwing up because eventually you're going to do the right thing and it's going to feel great.

G.C.G.: Are we having fun yet?

B.B.: Talk to my lawyer.

All of the information found in the calendar was taken from the calendar that is provided by the student activities office. If any of the information is incorrect or your club, organization, etc. is having an event but it is not listed on the student activities calendar that the Free Press has already received, then your organization must get the information for the event to me, Rebecca Geffert - Box 140. Deadline for the information is every Tuesday. This calendar is a service to the Babson community. So, please take advantage of it!!

Rebecca Geffert Peerless Editor
There I was, leaning back in my chair, staring into a blank computer screen. I thought about... what to write about... “What to write about...” Looking back, I find it funny that I couldn’t think of a good topic about Babson for my humor column. I mean, really, there’s just too many things about the Babson community that one can write good humor about.

Well, I came to the decision that there is no one part of the campus which affects so many of us on a daily basis, yet simply cries out to be ranked upon. You guessed it: Trim Dining Hall. Even the name itself brings with it a certain amount of dread. Now why exactly is that the name of our flab-fighting “Trim”? Here’s some of my favorite ideas:

Idea #1: Not many people like to eat there, therefore most people stay out of Trim.

Idea #2: “Trim” is actually a word to describe their budget. The food is so mediocre because their budget is “trim”.

Idea #3: Many of the virtuous young men who do go eat at the dining hall do so in order to watch the comments and goings of their favorite “Trim”.

Even if you don’t want to poke fun at the building’s name, there’s plenty of other places to poke with even more earnset. Take the menu offered, for instance. People actually prefer not to, yet in my entire time here at Babson, I estimate that I have eaten well over a hundred times and sixty burgers during lunch at Trim. This staggering number does not include the burgers I’ve eaten at the Exchange or the occasional dorm or fraternity barbecue. It does, however, include up to 140 pieces of Trim pizza, untold amounts of spaghetti, quantities of chicken a la king, abundant counts of donuts, deep-fried turkey with stuffing, and God knows how much lasagna. You know, those slabs of misery meat.

with the huge veins that you need a bench saw to cut through, that come in two varieties: burned and raw! I’ve devoured on the occasional Saturday dinner.

After those statistics, some of you freshmen are probably considering a hunger strike. Hell, after calculating the figure for the burgers alone I was seriously contemplating bulimia. Don’t let yourself be fooled, however, by the enormity of these numbers. I took me over two years to accumulate these totals.

Until I started eating at Trim, I realize realized exactly how many colors jello actually comes in. During the past two years I’ve counted (are you ready for this?) nearly 45 different colors. No lie! Now whether this is a result of the actual number of different flavors or the reuse of leftovers has yet to be determined.

You see, you freshmen will soon begin (if you haven’t already) to notice a sinister pattern forming in the menu. Basically, they serve the same shit -- (ahem -- excuse me "stuff") every week. Maybe this is what students with the able proportion of the students decide to go home for the weekend. It’s not the social status here at Babson. It’s the plain fact that many students, including myself, do not enjoy the prospect of another Saturday afternoon of eggs, rice, and tater-tots. (By the way, would someone please explain to me exactly what those poor little round yellow things that look -- and taste -- like fried hockey pucks are?)

And hey, how are those lines? Don’t you just love them? Oh, I just can’t stand to wait in line for twenty minutes after my morning classes. And the control system film... ooooh. Let me tell you people, your body odor does lose for my appetite. How about yours?

Let’s move on the subject of the lines for a moment. On a side note, I’m going to ask this question: why do so many of the foreign students eat at Trim? Answer: they probably grew up with someone who works there. It’s a damn good thing that learning a foreign language is becoming more rigorously stressed. Not only will you be able to communicate with other business people from abroad, but you’ll also be able to ask for some rice without the “stuff” on it and not be called a “bandejo” as you walk away.

Don’t get me wrong, most of the people who work at Trim are excellent. From what I was brought to understand, Trim’s effectively run by the Marriot Food Services Corporation in what is both an efficient and a professional manner. The facilities are also kept in a constant state of cleanliness that is in league with the finest of college cafeterias. Believe me, I’ve eaten in some real dumps that other schools have had the audacity to call dining halls. Compared to those, Trim is another notch in the belt of Babson superiority.

At the start of the semester I decided that it would be nice to have a regular column about the development of technology and what effects the advance of technology has on Babson. What I hope to cover in this column is the progress of technology in the computer industry and hopefully point out some ways that we can put it to use at Babson. It was intended to have this first column available for the first run edition of the Free Press, but for lack of better explanations, the excuses I am just happy that it is finally written and in this issue.

When I first came to Babson two years ago I noticed on the tour of the computer center that there were no Macintosh computers available, nor were there enough high powered equipment or decent printers (laser or higher quality dot-matrix). There was an attitude of reluctance to change and hostility toward progress and new ideas (does anybody remember the dullest?). Babson interested me as a school because of its entreprenurial courses and its image as a progressive leader in business. But what was disappointing was the extreme lack of leading edge technology for "leading edge" business students. When compared to Wellesley, Harvard, MIT, BC, BU, Regis or any other local college/university Babson students are at a disadvantage in the computer department. Many students are disappointed with the level of technology that Babson offers them for use at the computer center. The majority of workstations available were designed in the early eighties and cannot even run the leading edge of system software as described by Microsoft for IBM (OS/2 and Windows require faster processors and lots more memory, to be covered in a later column). Technology changes quickly and if we here at Babson do not update and introduce students to new levels of technology, then when we graduate and go on to the "real world" we’ll feel like outsiders. We need better "tools" and more advanced equipment available lest become a "secretarial school" offering basic courses in Lotus and Word skills.

Right now Babson is considering a multi-vendor environment (Apple, IBM, and others). To say that IBM or any one computer company is the sole owner of all of our problems is like walking towards a cliff with blinders on. Towards the end of last spring semester the Babson Macintosh Users Group was allowed to introduce a Windows environment (a multi-vendor environment for users to sell to students through agents at discounted prices hope-fully we will see some change in the character of Babson’s computer environment). With MS-DOS becoming outdated by the advance of technology (ie. at its limits) and the computer industry and users clearly preferring a "windowing" environment (GUI for the purists out there = Graphical User Interface) and a menu driven system controlled server. There is the ability to transfer IBM data back and forth and IBM’s will even be on the network. But this is not enough.

With Babson’s recent approval to allow vendors to sell to students through agents at discounted prices hopefully we will see some change in the character of Babson’s computer environment.
Movie Review: Black Rain

By Rebecca Gefffort
Features Editor

Black Rain is an international thriller starring Michael Douglas in his first role since winning the Best Actor Academy Award in 1988. Douglas plays Nick Conklin, a New York City detective who, with his partner Charlie Vincent (played by Andy Garcia), must deliver the brutal killer to Japanese police in Osaka. After the prisoner escapes, Nick and Charlie are left in the dark with a Japanese detective to recapture him. The case leads the officers into the city's exotic underworld, where rival Yakusa crime factions battle for supremacy.

However, the plot is much more complex than just your standard action story. There is also a subplot built into Nick Conklin's character. He is a cop who lives on the edge because his financial situation leads him to being dishonest. He feels betrayed by the system, and he has come to justify any immorality that he commits. Now, placed in a land where the group comes first, where dishonest means disgrace, and where people live by a code of honor. Nick must not only learn to play by totally new rules while trying to capture the criminal, but he must also come to grips with his own sense of right and wrong.

Michael Douglas portrays Nick in a manner almost flawlessly: his timings and expressions never appear to be out of place. More importantly, the character was developed to its fullest potential, which allows us to feel intimate with Nick. We are able to experience his joy when he feels he has won - a quality that almost every main character in a movie should possess.

Ken Takakura, who plays the Japanese detective, is a seasoned actor with the perfect mix of character. He is like the hero himself, someone who has been through the fire and had to learn from it.

Rebecc's Ramblings

By George Rebeck

It is just about that time of the year again. A time when you should be getting to know your roommate. I also remind you of a time when I managed to get one of my roommates into trouble...

Let us call him Gary. Why? Oh! It was his name. It was toward the end of the semester and Gary and I were just starting to settle in as roommates. It was absolutely amazing since we had nothing in common whatsoever. Gary was pretty excited because he had just turned 18 and I was the older one. That time, one could legally drink at that age. Unfortunately, the age was going up to 19 on January 1. Thus, Gary had about 40 days of legal drinking in front of him before he had to face the legal limit. (An interesting twist in the law that you might want to bring up to your class some time.)

In addition to the above facts, we just happened to live on the third floor which just happened to be directly above the old Pub. You freshmen and sophomores will have to ask your junior seniors about the 'Bever Brau.' However, let us get back to the story, shall we?

Wednesday night was movie night in the pub. Tonight's selection was a favorite of Gary's called The Pom Pom Girls. So, Gary decided to take a little break from studying and he walked down to the pub for a beer or two while he watched the flick.

Later that evening, the phone rang. It was Gary's mom. She said, "Gary there's someone on the line that says his name is Ma'am. He's down in the pub watching The Pom Pom Girls." He described him as having a very strong voice.

Oddly specific recall mentioning the title of the movie. He did not seem to matter. I assume that Gary bounced into the room a bit later seeing rather jovial. He heard about the phone call and said he had received any phone calls for the evening. He responded back that the mom had called. His voice sharpened a bit as he asked what I told him about his whereabouts. I, of course, told him that I told her that he was in the pub watching "The Pom Pom Girls." Gary now flew into a rage like a twister in Tornado. "What do I tell her I was in the pub. She thinks that I am studying!"

The morale to this story is be sensitive to that fact that your roommate and his/her parents may not be as sticky as you and your for Sandecks, do not tell his/her parents that he/she is watching a movie in the pub when he/she is supposed to be studying!

Well, Gary finally calmed down and I do not think that his mom was all that upset. His dad might be another story. My error in all this was that my parents would not be as kind to me if they knew about a thing like that. Of course, I was paying for "most of my Bachelor's education while Gary was on the parent plan."

Babson Field Hockey: On Fire

By Eileen A. Curcio
Contributing Writer

"On Fire" is the key term for the 1989 Women's Field Hockey Team. With a record of four wins and two losses, these Babson women began their season as the leaders of the New England Women's division.

Beginning this season with a bang is new to Babson coach, Linda Smurfl. Her encouragement has really made a difference in the team spirit.

The stars of the team are the individuals who play. We have two graduating seniors on the team, both defending the midfield. They are our Co-Captains Gina Calico and Jeanie Kelley.

Making up the strong offense is returning sophomore Erin Ferrell who is our leading scorer. Next in line are Laura Pighetti, Stephanie White, Sophia Geragonis, and Teen Roper as assets on our scoring lineup. Adding to this are our fancy stickworking defensive players Donna Stone, Sarah Dickerman, Kathy Cavanaugh, and first year, freshman goalie Kim Stull.

Many people complain that they do not understand our game. It's true that the more you watch, the more you learn. So come out to our next game, Saturday, and see what's going on at the field when we take on Assumption at 1:00 pm.

RUIN BOWDOIN'S HOMECOMING!!
Babson will be travelling to Bowdoin this Saturday for an important men's soccer game. If you are interested in taking a bus to the game, contact Tad Putney (x4053) by midnight tonight. The bus will be leaving in front of Trim at 9:30. The game begins at 12:30. If you'd rather drive up, the directions are listed below. TAKE SOME TIME OFF AND SUPPORT BABSON!!

Directions to Bowdoin:
- Take Route 95 North past Portland and into Brunswick
- Take Route 295 (Portland/South Portland)
- Get off at Brunswick exit for Route 1
- Go into downtown area
- At lights (I), turn right
- Go about 1/4 mile, at church in road, turn left behind church, go to lights and turn right.
In case you get lost... call Bowdoin at 207-725-3326.

Men's Soccer Dominating the Field

By Glenn Horner
Contributing Writer

The men's soccer team is off to their best start since 1981 and hope to continue as they head into some tough games in the upcoming weeks. With a record of 4-0, the Beavers are playing quality soccer at times, but feel they still haven't reached their full potential. Captains Tom Fisher and Tony Thiele have led the Babson team to victories over Assumption, S.M.U., and Colby. However, the brightest moment of the young season was the team's dramatic 4-3 overtime victory at the hands of Clark University. This was a major win for the Beavers due to the fact that Clark had not lost to Babson in eight years. Therefore, this victory was a major confidence builder and should prove to be a stepping stone for future success.

The Clark game also exhibited the pride, hustle, and desire of the Babson soccer team. The Cougars took a 2-1 lead with just over 5 minutes left to play. However, despite the hushed gloom that fell over the Babson field, the players exhibited a quiet confidence. With their backs against the wall, Babson marched right down the field and tied the game within seconds. After this momentous goal, the Babson team took the play right at Clark for the 30 minute overtime. Due to their belief in themselves and patience the Beavers were able to walk off the field with the win.

Although Babson's success has been truly team effort, a few outstanding contributions should be applauded. Sophomore forward Bob Pipe has come on with a bang, scoring 3 goals in 4 games. (Including the tying goal against Clark, and two game winners.) Also, sophomore back Paul Fitzgerald railed in his first collegiate goal for the game winner at Colby. In addition, sophomore goalie Steve Webber has recorded 3 shutouts thus far.

The team would like to thank the Babson community who have shown great support. With a lot of tough games remaining, the team hopes to see the fans continue to come out and back our team. This weekend the Beavers head to Bowdoin College on Saturday. There may be a bus of students making the trip. If you wish to take part contact any member of the team.
Women's Tennis
In Full Swing

By Joanne Saunders
Contributing Writer

Girls Varsity Tennis is on their way to a very promising season. With the new court, the team has been able to draw a few more fans but could enjoy more support from a crowd. Starting off their busy fall season with a 3-1 record, the girls are quite optimistic for a great season.

Their first victory was against Bryant College with a final score of 5-3. Senior Maureen Richard triumphed at first singles with an impressive win, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2. Freshman Meg Hennessy secured her first varsity win with a score of 7-6, 6-2 at sixth singles. Senior Laura Coussens and Sophomore Joanne Saunders both won their respective singles matches at 3rd & 4th singles and clinched their first #1 doubles victory together 6-2, 6-4. At second doubles, Maureen and Anna Newbern (Junior and 2nd singles) split sets, and due to the extended length of the match and the darkness, they didn’t finish the match. (Perhaps the tennis courts need lights for late matches and night play...hint...hint...hint.)

Senior, Lisa Hladerek, nakeds (5th singles) and Freshman, Peri Calville conquered their #3 doubles match 6-4, 7-6. Babson improved their record to 1-0 with wins over Worcester Polytechnic Institute 6-2 and Colby Sawyer College N.H., 6-3.

At Colby Sawyer, the duo of Newburn and Richard had their first win at 2nd doubles with a 6-3, 6-0 victory. Sophomore Kristen Roberts played her first varsity doubles match with Lisa H. and won 6-2, 6-7. Other wins supporting Babson were by Saunders, Hennessy, and Coussens in singles.

Bowdoin gave Babson a tough battle and unfortunately Babo lost 2-7. Victories for Babson were at 3rd singles with Laura Coussens playing a very tough match 7-5, 5-7, 6-1 and Lisa and Peri winning 3rd doubles 6-0, 6-1.

Babson’s next home matches will be Friday September 6th v. Welleley, Tuesday October 1st 3rd vs. Regina, and Thursday October 9th v. M.I.T. The girls’ varsity team should be congratulated for a fantastic beginning!! Stop by the courts and cheer them on to even more victories!!

Student Government

Missing Representatives - Kevin Richardson and David Spinnery
Gregor Speake - Babson College Athletic Director. Speaking spoke about the grand opening of the Recreation and Special Events Center. He praised the students on their patience and spirit now that the facility has finally opened its doors. The first couple of weeks will be a "learning period" as everybody feels out the new facility for pros and cons. The other part of the center is the PepBoo Pavilion, which will be completed in a couple of weeks. The fitness area has been packed consistently, and although lots of feedback has come to coach Stirling, he would still encourage the students to give him ideas and suggestions as to improving the facility. The only thing Coach Stirling stresses to the students is to have your ID on you at all times while in the facility to ensure that only Babson students are present.

President Reports
Executive VP - Tony Deigle - The shuttle was a huge success last week with a record 55 riders! The only change in the shuttle is that Saturday's first shuttle will run at 1:00pm instead of 12:00 noon. The Traffic Court will be coming to order for meetings on Oct. 2, 16, and 30 in Tram 205. The Traffic Court is perfect for reverting the irritating parking tickets that many students encounter. Use the Traffic Court to voice your views, it's there for you! Any ideas for events? Call Tony at X5444.

Finance VP - Steve LeDoux - Meg Brown Acquisitions was allocated $80 for a speaker and Theta Chi was allocated $400 for a party this weekend in the Fowle. Ways and Means Committee applications are still being accepted, so call Steve at X5452 for information.

Licensing VP - Craig Nesta - Four new businesses have been accepted on campus. Speaker Hats - For Babson soccer and Hockey games, Berto and Ernie's News, High Gear Printing, and IBM P5/2 Referral Service. If you want a business, call X4522.

Communications VP - David Zaslav - The Babo PRIDE School Song Contest is about to begin! Anyone interested in writing words to our first school song get busy immediately. Further details will follow...call X4522.

Social VP - Tom Flan contours - Last Saturday's band was exceptional as was the attendance, keep up the spirit! Homecoming (Oct. 14) will have Selectricution, a video dance party in Knight Auditorium and a Bonfire for the entire campus is being looked into. Any ideas...call X4524.

President Ted Putney's Report - The Pub committee is being formed right now, for information call me at X4063. The inaugural ball is set for Babson College students only at this time, and Tuxedo is optional. The Men's Soccer team is playing Bowdoin this Saturday, and transportation is possible if the interest is there! Get ten people together and call Ted right away!!

Scheduled Business - Ted Putney announced several committee appointments, and these will be listed on the Trim poster board soon.

New Business - On November 10 of this year, the new PepBoo Pavilion will break ground with a concert...THE ROETHERS!!! The Friday concert will be free to all Babson students! Babson security has been questioned about a lack of security at the gatehouse...and a complaint was issued that the rape phones have not been working...cars have been abandoned in the Trim lot...these points will be looked into immediately.

Announcements - The Programming Board is sponsoring the Closing Bell Cafe comedy of Dean Edelson and Bob Lazarus in the Fowle Friday night...Theta Chi Party in the Fowle Saturday night 9-1, Kegs and food!!...Sorority Rush on Thursday at 7:00 Open House in Pieta?? Next Thursday in the Quad, Freshmen and Sophomores...Men's Soccer Undergrads at 4:00!! The Baseball team finished 2nd in the M.I.T. tournament last weekend, and drilled Merrick on Wednesday 7-3!! Volleyball beat Emmanuel College on Tuesday, and Field Hockey plays W.P.I. at 4 on Thursday. Good Luck all Babson teams!!

Women’s soccer suffered a loss at the hands of Bowdoin on Saturday by a score of 4-1. Tara Horgan scored the lone Babson goal.

Yesterday, they triumphed 1-0 in a win from behind victory over previously unbeaten Mount Holyoke, Lauren Fresk, Tara Horgan and Julie Srexny chipped in for the 3-1 score. The win improves their record to 2-4 and their next home game is this Saturday against Colby-Sawyer.

Come join a group of people who want to play serious volleyball and have a lot of fun. There will be practices and intersquad games against other teams.

All willing to play and help organize are welcomed. Call Max at X4110 or write to Box 2458.

Women’s intramural flag football needs one more team to form a league. As of now, Coleman, O’Donnell and Maple Manor are the three teams and they would like to begin play as soon as possible. Any dorm or sorority that wants to be part of the action should contact Helen at 6042 or Laura at 6021.

The Babson rugby teams (who also happen to be the defending division 2 state champions) had a successful day at Framingham State last Saturday. The BABO A team won 19-4, while the B team cruised to an 18-4 victory. Their next home game is Saturday against Wesleyan.

Men’s Cross Country split a meet at Framingham State this past Saturday. They defeated the host, but lost to WPI. Their record now stands at 3-1 and their next meet is this Saturday at Connecticut College.

Shorts

The baseball team notched a 7-5 win over Merrimack yesterday. Mike Toggi Barra pitched a complete game and Ian Baxter contributed with a two run homer in the fifth inning. Their next home game is Tuesday at 3:00 against Wentworth.

The General’s Corner

By Rob Hazleton
Commentary

This past Sunday, forty screaming Colemaniacs and North Boys teamed up to raid Sullivan Stadium. After last week's Miami Massacre, our Fan Clan had three goals in mind: 1) have fun, 2) taunt coach Ray Berry, and 3) taunt quarterback Phunny Eason. All three goals were finally attained.

Armed with sheets to display and paper bags for our heads, we joined the rest of the crowd in protest of the Patriots appearance on the field. The signs ties to the top of the stadium fences read “Need Better Coach” with the NBC spelled out downward on the queen-sized bedsheet. A second sheet of equal size read “Give Flutie a chance - Go Pats.” No more than five minutes into the first quarter, a Pheonix O’ Security guards ordered us to take the signs down. Obviously, these rent-a-cops had not been told that Babson students don’t take orders well from rude strangers. We also questioned authority when juscifed, if you can muster the imagination to call these guys authority. It was at this point that the fan clan humored the cro-magnon look alike and took the signs down. However, we still had the paper bags for our heads which were decorated with anti-Berry, anti-Eason symbols. One of our Eason-Buster-Bagheads even appeared in Monday’s Boston Globe.

The game was on. In the second quarter, the Patsies swiss cheese defense was eaten alive by Seattle’s Dave Krieg, who suddenly looked like the best thing since sliced bread. This deserved fan reaction and in disgust, the Colemaniacs hung the signs again, appearing larger than the holes in the Patriots defense.

Again the security guards stumbled up the aisles. It took eight of them to confiscate the signs and one to hold the walkie-talkie. When we questioned why the signs were being taken, the guard with the radio grunted “our management doesn’t like em.” First of all, the Patriots’ management should be concerned with real problems, like the team for starters. Second, the signs were clean, did not obstruct anyone’s view and were in good taste. Moreover, since when does management have the right to censor such a worthy message?

In an act of protest, the Colemaniacs taunted the guards and demanded the signs back. In the commotion, I the author, was ejected from the game. Realizing that constitutional and fan rights had been violated, most Colemaniacs and section 318 left with me. As we marched down the stairs the crowd boosed and shouted communist slurs at the rent-a-cops. So it is clear that the Patriots’ problems are in the front office as well. In the end, the fan clan left smiling, because we had stood tall for democracy while the Pats organization bent over for Seattle.
