Charm Prize Finalists

Four undergraduate student business plans have been chosen as finalists in the Philip Charm Prize Awards Competition. The winner of the Charm Prize, a $4000 cash award, will be determined after each of the four finalist teams presents its business plan on panel of judges composed of business people and venture capitalists on Wednesday, April 3 at 4:30 p.m. in Trim. The winner will be announced at Founder’s Day ceremonies on April 25th.

The finalists are: Senior Richard Hurwitz and his team members, Faez Jusaji and Federico Galimberti, both December ’84 graduates, for their plan “Goodfood International.” The concept resulted from Faez’s watching the activities of a quality fast food establishment in Kowloon, Hong Kong during the summer of 1983. He was convinced that, if correctly implemented, the idea could be profitable elsewhere in the world. With the help of Hurwitz and Galimberti, the idea was expanded and improved upon.

Seniors Ted Fligor and David Gordon made the finals with their plan, “Professional Sales Training,” a company which teaches practical selling skills to managers and employees of small to medium-sized retail businesses. Fligor and Gordon’s personal selling abilities, their experience in training employees, and market research convinced them that an opportunity existed.

Junior Peter Altman is the lead entrepreneur of “Marketing/Write Inc,” a service that produces inexpensive typeset quality resumes and personalized cover letters for its customers. These resumes are designed for graduating college students and distribution will be through student-owned franchises on college campuses. A transfer from Cornell, Altman’s entrepreneurial track record includes founding of a free service with annual revenues of $75 thousand while still in high school.

“Julen Enterprises Group, Inc.” is a plan which represents expansion of an existing enterprise. Junior entrepreneur Jeffroy Brown has submitted a plan to acquire three competing super-market and two shopping centers over the next three years. Those acquisitions are designed to improve the overall condition of his family’s New England supermarket business, which presently owns five Shop N’Bag supermarkets and four shopping centers.

All four finalists teams developed their plans while students in Professor Jeffry A. Timmons’ Entrepreneurial Ventures course.

Educational Grants

The United States Information Agency (USIA) and Institute of International Education (IEI) today announced that the official opening of the 1986-87 competition for grants for graduate study or research abroad in academic fields for professional training in the creative and performing arts is scheduled for May 1, 1985. It is expected that approximately 700 awards to over 70 countries will be available for the 1986-87 academic year.

Student Government held the first meeting after spring break on Tuesday, March 19th. There was no guest speaker, but some very important topics were discussed.

VP Communication Chris Oates announced that nomination papers for SG offices will be available soon and that the student members of the Student Activities Offices. They are due by 4:00 on March 27th. Anyone interested in running for an office should speak with one of the current officers about the job and it's responsibilities.

Licensing Committee member Mike Sands filled in for the absent VP Mark Winken. It seems Mark get a little behind during his trip to San Francisco and couldn't make the meeting. Don't worry, Mark will be back next week to thrill and entertain us with his imitation of a VP licensing.

An introduced Entertainment '85 as a new student business run by Mark Rosen. Mark will be selling a discount book to the students with restaurant and clubs. The $25 selling price is discounted and can be recovered after you use only a few of the hundred coupons.

Greg's No-name Flowers will be run by Greg O'Brien. Greg will be selling flowers during selected campus events during the year.

President Scott Root discussed the proposed ban on Boston on the weekend nights. Concern was expressed over the degree of usage the bus would receive, and the times it would run were discussed. The bus will be expensive to run, and important that we determine if their is any demand for it before we commit ourselves.

The most important topic of the night was the proposed changes to the SG Constitution. The proposed changes are: 1. The VP Finance should appoint six members to the Ways & Means committee. 2. VP Social should have an ex-officio seat on the Social Committee. 3. Salaries of the VP's should be increased from $100 to $150 and the President's salary should be increased from $400 to $700 to $1000. 4. The Ways & Means committee will represent the SG and all financial matters and all funds will be allocated to events rather than organizations. The committee will meet weekly to review all proposed expenditures, and it will report to SG. The guidelines for use of SG funds will remain generally the same. Please see the minutes posted in your hall for further details.

These proposed changes will be formally discussed and voted on next week. As these changes will greatly affect the procedures for obtaining SG funds, it is important that students understand and support this system before voted on. If you have questions or opinions, you are encouraged to attend SG next week to voice them.

Student Government meets every Tuesday in Tomasso 209 at 6:00 p.m. Attendance was good this week with only Paul Fiorello, Robert Gleason, and Barb Lewis not attending.

OPEN FORUM
Thank You Gray Beards

Aren't we amazing! We, the entrepreneurial wonderkinds of today's bustling world. In recent study, it was shown that over one-third of all new businesses started in the United States were entrepreneurial entreprenuers 30 years or younger. This trend was further confirmed in Dallas last week at the Association of Collegiate Entrepreneurs' second annual conference. Calvin Clabough of TRAC (and key researcher for Megatrends) was present at the conference which was held at the Exors Anatole Hotel, March 15-17. When Clabough announced the results of the YES 100 (top entrepreneurs in North America and under age group), who had average sales of $9 million ($22 million if you include Steven Jobs...name of the list) his audience of over 600 professors, students, and professionals barely batted an eyelash. We have come to expect this kind of venture success in our entrepreneurial wiz-kids.

No we are not amazing! Sure we may have more resources and impressive credentials than our counterparts of 10 years ago, but we are struggling with any more God-given intelligence or talent. Then what is the value this new generation of young entrepreneurs are leading us toward new entrepreneurial heights at an exponential rate?

.. Enter the Gray-Beards, "Gray-Beards" are the individuals in entrepreneurial and investment circles who have spent a substantial career (20 plus years) actively participating in the formation and/or financing of entrepreneurial ventures. However, the Gray Beards I am referring to go one step further. For a variety of reasons (a sense of country's future economic development, a desire to share their knowledge, a way to make contacts, etc.,) they choose to invest their time in order to share the benefit of their hard-earned experience with aspiring young entrepreneurs and future venture capitalists. In an ever increasing number of these individuals are joining the bandwagon to impart their knowledge on America's entrepreneur youth.

Who says that today's youth do not listen to their elders? Many are and have proven that utilizing the benefits of the experience of these philanthropic Gray-Beards can range substantial educational as well as financial rewards for themselves, their employees, and their advisors. It is my sincere hope that the young entrepreneurs and Gray Beards of today will continue to facilitate these winning partnerships. The comprehension of entrepreneurial knowledge and experience in the future generation is vital, and for this I thank all the Gray Beards for their efforts in creating this promising environment.

Letters to the Editor

To the editor:
I believe that in a small college community, mutual respect and understanding is important. After almost two years at Babson, I have felt that most students do have some sense of respect for each other. However, we have observed recently places in doubt something that I once took for granted.

After President Dell mailed a photograph to Babsonian readers with the caption replacing the offensive picture, properly disposing of the replacement would have sufficed.

Now is the time for some Babson students to stop laughing and start learning how to be respectful of others.

Sincerely,
Jeffery Stewart Perry
President, BOOMS

To the editor:
On Monday stickers were sent out to the President's Office to be placed over the photo on page 176 of the 1984 Babsonian. These stickers can now be seen on doorways entering McCullough, garbage cans, bulletin boards in Hollister, and in a few more years probably the 400 I put them in. This is disrespectful to more than the BOOMS and President Dell's request, but also to college as a whole. Even though you may not find the original picture offensive, it is when looked at from an outsider's view. I am not seeking to change the environment of Babson College appear supportive of racist attitudes, which is it not. Please place the sticker over the photo as requested. If in support of BOOMS, then for the reputation of your college within its environment.

Sincerely,
Kevin J. Smith
Babsonian Editor
At The Gallery:
Steamship Exhibit

The Great Steamships exhibit is presently on loan from The Peabody Museum in Salem to Babson College. The twelve color posters which measure 31” x 41” will be in The Gallery at Horn Library through April 2.

The posters date from as early as 1863, with the most recent dated 1954. Each poster was produced to announce a new ship under construction, or to announce the launching of a new ship. The posters claim the ships to be of the newest tech-nology and the sleekest construction.

The "unsinkable" Titanic is included in this collection. At the time of the Titanic's maiden voyage, it was proclaimed for its double bottomed hull and sixteen watertight compartments. The British luxury liner sank April 14, 1912, with a loss of 1521 lives, when the ship collided with an iceberg.

Hours of The Gallery are Monday through Friday, noon to 2 p.m. and Sunday, 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

under your debts; just have faith in yourself and work the project hard. A simple success formula, and the only one he knows. He was so busy dealing with each day that he never noticed when he finally went out of the red into the black. He says, "Getting started? There is no right time, just do it." "The first olive out of the air is as good as the rest, just follow. Schulman claims that to succeed, you need people to believe in you, your work is your bond...you have to have integrity and be honest, deliver 100% product to the customer."

Perhaps it is enough to say that Schulman is a man, a Babson man, who had a dream. But instead of dreaming he decided to live it, not an easy decision but he never look back. Creating the 'platinum mile' was fun for him, a labor of love and an experience of a lifetime. The pride Schulman takes in his business shows, he says, he can still be seen picking up litter on his way into his buildings despite his level of success and wealth. With the 'mile' fully developed, the Westchester native insists that "there is only one very best location", and he must look for challenges elsewhere, spurning the idea of building another office park in a second best locale.

For a man who claims that "they didn't have a clue about the future while at school", and who "took a gamble on satisfaction rather than that just plodding through life in a comfortable state", he surely seems to know more than his modesty would have him claim, about living. "Take a shot, it will be the experience of a lifetime."

Musically Speaking

We Are The World

By Alan Bayne

It’s only been out for a couple of weeks, but you have no doubt already heard it dozens of times. It’s being played almost every hour on most radio stations and the single has already sold over a million copies.

I’m referring, of course, to the Lionel Richie/ Michael Jackson - penned “We Are The World”. The recording of the song represents the American equivalent of December’s “Do They Know It’s Christmas?” by Band Aid. The “We Are The World” concept was developed by Harry Belafonte and Ken Kragen (Lionel Richie’s manager), with Bob Geldof’s Band Aid project as inspiration. The purpose: to raise as much as $200 million to aid starving people in Africa.

In order to ensure the single’s success, 46 of the biggest names in pop music were assembled. The singers, who call themselves USA for Africa (United Support of Artists for Africa), represent extremely diverse musical tastes, from country (Willie Nelson, Kenny Rogers) to soul (Ray Charles, Stevie Wonder) to rock (Bruce Springsteen) and mainstream pop (Harry Belafonte and the Beach Boys). It is this diversity which makes the record (and the video) so intriguing, who could have ever imagined Willie Nelson singing a line after Dianne Warwick, Billy Joel following Tina Turner, or a fantastic call-and-response by Stevie Wonder and The Boss?

Of course, the single is only the beginning. A 12” version (remixed by John “Jellybean” Benitez) should be out this week. This will be followed shortly by an album featuring “We Are The World” as well as previously unreleased tracks from many well-known artists. It is quite possible that the album will be as successful as the single.

The USA for Africa and Band Aid projects (as well as the forthcoming “Feed the World” single by Northern Lights, a supergroup of Canadian recording stars like Bryan Adams and Anne Murray) demonstrate the power of the music industry can have. It’s good to see this power used in a positive manner. Africa truly has a severe hunger problem (especially in Ethiopia), and the help generated by projects like this could be the idea whose time has come. As the late Harry Chapin said, “When in doubt - DO SOMETHING.”

How You Spent Your Spring Break

The following collection of blurbs are direct quotes (or reasonable facsimiles thereof) from the students and instructors who make up the Babsn community. The sample may be representative of the Babsn population as a whole or perhaps not, you decide. At any rate, their exploits, claims and in a few cases I suggest, lies, are assembled here for your casual personal, or not, the spirit more.

Summer...
Silence inside...
Winds outside...
Still air...
Purple ceiling shadows...
As phantom visions...
Subliminal activity...

Like...
Lights out...
Empty bleachers...
Stacked chairs...

A mind will linger here...
In eerie, vulnerable...
Twilight zones...
In abeyance...

A mind will linger here...
In exaggerated fears and delights...
Where no decision should be made...
Where nebulous fragments of...
Hope/dread/aspiration/defeat/prayer...

In senseless competition...
Churn, blend, rise and fall...

First Day Of Spring

It's the first day of the spring
I can hear the nature sing
As winter loses it's sting
Listen to what it will bring.

Flowers begin to bloom
Butterflies leave their cocoons
Some in the afternoon
Some a day too soon.

I saved a life from a drowning sea
It was just a puddle to you and me
Others past said let it be
But, it meant something more to me.

You should have seen the smile on my face
As I took it in my embrace
I knew it felt out of place
So I kept a fragile pace.

At first it took a second thought
All the fear it fought
Then felt the bond we caught
A feeling that can't be bought.

So watch out when it rain
Help a butterfly of his strain
Cure someone of their pain
'Cause someday you might need the same.

—Blue Nitas

Chatoyant

I said the wrong thing to Grandma
It was meant for a six year old child.
When she stabbed an eighty year twain
I blundered, we should lock you in a box for a while.

Enticed by that underwater smile
Filmy whites of eyes in that face
I still can't believe that she's actually dead
Deprived some of the world of her grace.

Beckoning me to seek her milky spirit
Open minds as I look into space,
But there seems no existence of a telepathic message
Only paint and black rags in that case.

Pew and pew like sideless collins
My eyes filled at sight of the bereaved
As I sit here remembering the limitless torture
My heart wanders to one I so need.

The Tent-Man

He stand upon a concrete deck
Above the oceanside
A pulse is beating on his brain
The moon does pull the tide.
He gazes at the sky so clear
The moon beams on his head
He one he loves is so close near
He hopes he's not dead.

He turns to face five tiger men
And they do look amazed
His nickname is now the tent-man
He feel very dazed.
They call him this for one sole reason,
For he has pitched his tent this night
The security and shelter of the world is now gone
And he trembles with all his might

Jerkingly he turns to hide
Insults do fill his veins.
Maybe he'll try to shelter himself,
Can he but not go insane?
Another idea he now does think
Retreat into the night
Putting his tent where no one can see
On the poolside where it's dark not light.

He calms himself, shrinks down his tent
And slowly moves away
For the first he's been called that name
And there's nothing he can say
He'll pitch his tent and camp by the pool
Where no tiger man can see
To relieve some of his frustrations
And camp where nobody will be.

To Sandy...from Frosh
Orientation in General:

Do Yourself A Favor...
Can you pick them out of a crowd?
Those with ability?
Guts naturally fun, girls honestly friendly?
I'll bet you can't.

Can you talk to her now?
I mean really.
Why go for masks
When it's the character that counts?

Fun is the answer.
Do yourself a favor.
Frolic with those few
Who aren't talking to you.

Darkness

Looking and seeing light that isn't there
Asking someone to do nothing
Noticing something that's not what it appears to be
Eating something that has no floor
Drinking something that has no moisture
Loving someone who's full of hatred
Understanding someone full of sarcasm
Supporting someone that is evil
Agreeing with someone who is full of criticism
Looking and seeing darkness that isn't there.

Do Black Patent Leather Shoes Really Reflect Up?

By Brian Carr

Features Editor

"Catholic girls are like a willowbark - they never seem to go that far." is just one of the jokes at parochial education brought out by the smash musical comedy, Do Black Patent Leather Shoes Really Reflect Up?, now playing at the Wilbur Theatre. Based on the John Powers novel of the same name, the parody received rave reviews in Chicago, Detroit, Washington, and Philadelphia, but was a surprising flop in New York.

The audience is led by the character of Eddie Ryan, played by Russ Thacker, as he takes a look at the ariyal teachings of the nuns and priests of his childhood. Act One takes place in the classrooms of St. Bastion's School, as the universal trials of Grades One through Eight are recalled, including Eddie's dealings with his childhood sweetheart, Becky, played by Eileen Blackman. One needn't be a product of Catholic Schools to enjoy the comical portrayal of the harsh mistress or the pious Fr. O'Reilly, played by Wally Engelhardt, nor the fresh musical scores such as "Does God Love Little Fat Girl Too?" and "How Far Is Too Far?". The crowd was in stitches as they watched Mike, played by Peter Heuchling, display the benefits of rubbing a girl's elbow, and Felix, portrayed by Don Stitt, count up his 'impure thoughts' in preparation for confession.

Although USA for Africa's "We Are the World" is getting most of the attention, March is a month for many record releases that deserve mention.

To start, Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers have released Southern Accents, their first album since 1982's Long After Dark. The single, "Don't Come Around Here No More," features an Indian instrument called a sitar.

Robert Plant will release his next solo album on March 22. He will be trying to keep his streak alive of having each one of his albums (including solo, Led Zeppelin and The Honeydrippers) reach the Top 10. Also released on March 22 will be The Power Station album, which features John and Andy Taylor of Duran Duran, Robert Palmer, and Tony Thompson of Chic. The single "Some Like It Hot," sounds nothing like Duran Duran, Robert Palmer or Chic. The album, while probably not as good as supergroup The Firm, should at least be interesting.

March will also see the release of albums by such stars as Dan Fogelberg (who always make great music to get mellow out with), Kenny Rogers, Eric Clapton, and Phil Collins.

Half Notes No. 1 - Law suits are "in these days (part of the Yuppie movement, perhaps)." Michael Jackson was sued by some guy claiming he wrote the tune "The Girl is Mine" - the case was dismissed. Next, Frank Zappa was sued by former members of The Mothers of Invention. Now, Willie Dixon (who\) claims that Led Zeppelin's "Whole Lotta Love" is really a revamped version of his own "You Need Love." I must admit I haven't heard Dixon's song as recorded by Muddy Waters, but I doubt the suit will win. All I want to know is why Dixon waited 15 years to file suit?

Half Notes No. 2 - If you've been hearing too much of Madonna recently (she has currently 3 singles on the charts), you may be soon seeing too much of her as well. According to Rolling Stone she made a movie in 1979 called A Certain Sacrifice. She plays a dominatrix who has 3 sex slaves and is raped in this soft-core porn flick, which may soon be released on videocassette. Madonna makes her major-screen debut in April's Desperately Seeking Susan.

Half Notes No. 3 - Anyone care to venture a guess as to why Prince failed to show for the USA for Africa session? I wonder who else declined the invitation to participate.

Friday night, March 22nd, at the Opera House, Spiro Gyra is scheduled to perform. The show, presented as part of the Boston Globe Jazz Festival, starts at 8 pm with an opening performance by a relatively new jazz band, Special EFX. Headed by George Jinda and Chieli Minucci, Special EFX is about to release its second album, "Modern Manners." On Wednesday I had the chance to meet the band and hear them play at the Starlight Roof in Kenmore Square.

Special EFX has a sound that is difficult to categorize. This first impression was of a Pat Metheny sound of smooth scintillating guitar. Indeed Chieli Minucci’s chords were soothing to the ear. But Special EFX is more than that. Where the Pat Metheny Group often focuses on the lead guitar, Special EFX comes through with a more diverse total sound. The base playing of Jeff Andrews is ever present, along with J.T. Lewis’ drumming, to keep a funky but steady beat. Ted Le’s keyboards bring in another dimension: a fresh, unique sound that complements Minucci’s guitar well. Rounding out this total sound is the masterful percussion of George Jinda. Having at his disposal a seemingly endless supply of sounds completed the band’s sound. The percussion also added a Spyro Gyra flavor on upbeat songs that kept me moving.

Says Minucci, “I think the band is a big creative outlet.” That impressed me most in the live performance as the band played songs off of their new album, although they didn’t always improvise extensively, they felt comfortable with shifting the musical spotlight. This creative atmosphere was reinforced by drummer J.T. Lewis, who told me before the first set, “What I like about playing with Special EFX is that I was never told exactly what to play. I play what the sound makes me feel.”

The live performance had a good variation in tone ranging from the fun spirited “Fun in the Sun” to a slower, deeper “After One Empty Step.” “Greensleeves North” showed some of Minucci’s rock and roll experience as he edged out some firm chords in a solo.

All in all, this band was “maaahvelous.” J.T. Lewis called it “instrumental pop,” I call it groovin’ and spirited. The future looks bright for Special EFX, who will tour for a while with Spiro Gyra. Their new album was release on March 11th and with some airplay, will provide Special EFX the headlining shows they are looking for. For now, check them out at the Opera House this Friday at 8:00. The Opera House is right near the Park Street Station on the MBTA Red and Green Line. And, by Modern Manners so you can enjoy music made for a spring day. The sound will affect you specially.

Baseball Optimistic

By Rick "Animal" Teel
Sports Staff

The Babson Baseball Team is very optimistic about the upcoming season. The Beavers have a blend of experienced seniors and enthusiastic underclassmen that should bring Babson a great deal of success this spring.

The baseball team spent spring break in Florida. They played very well, putting in good defensive efforts and turning over 3 double plays. They also hit the ball hard. The highlight of the trip was Babson's 3-1 win over Edinboro State College of Erie, Pennsylvania. Edinboro is the class of their league and it was a great win to boost Babson's confidence for the season.

Babson is led by senior captains Joe Burkett and Bobby Sample. Burkett will be a key man on the mound and when Joe is not pitching, he will be playing left field. Bobby Sample has been steady performer for Babson for the last 3 years. This senior has not hit below .300 in his career and will be a great asset at third base.

Rounding out the infield will be Jim Agabedia, a sophomore shortstop. Senior Russ Nicololetti who hit .436 in the fall, will put his strong defensive talents to work at second base. Heavy hitter Mike Dayton will be needed for run production and the sophomore will play first base.

Babson will have a great deal of depth this year on the mound, behind the plate, and in the outfield. Coach Gary Stockbridge has quite a bit of depth in his bullpen. Tim Keen, Chris Fraga, Jimmy Taylor, Gary Raphael, Greg Moll, Kevin Flaherty and Tom Walbridge will be called on frequently to retire opposing batters. The word from down south is that you don't steal on George Ryan, as he threw out three attempting base stealers. Backing up Ryan behind the plate will be Mike Kalto, Mark Gagne, and John Donnelly.

The Babson outfield will consist of Burkett in left field when he is not pitching, junior Brock Romano will be playing centerfield and the fight for right field is between Paul Phibbin, Mark Gagne, Gary Raphael, Andy Spencer, Brian Thornton, and Peter Delahant.

Coach Stockbridge will be taking advantage of the bats of Billy Crottau and Bobby Gorton, both proven 300 hitters. Scott Stone will be used as a swing man in the infield and manager Bill Peck is proving to be a great help.

The baseball team will be playing this season on their new field on the back 40. Your support would be greatly appreciated when the baseball team opens up against Framingham State on Tuesday March 26 at 3:00. Babson will face Bates College Saturday, March 30 at 1:00, and Bowdoin March 31 at 1:30 p.m. all at home.

We hope you all had a joyous break, but now back to business. Both of us are extremely distressed over an editorial written to us in the last Free Press. Do these two milllions have nothing better to do? One chases Linda Lucky while the other imitates the Fall Guy. It is beyond us how a $12,000 education can provide nothing more intellectually stimulating. The problems the world faces today don’t seem to warrant the editorial space taken up by this trivial subject. All we try to do is provide insight for our readers into the complicated world of pro football. Instead of thanks, we get garbage written by 6.0 Moynihan and 5-year man O.D., who flunked his native tongue. Last week we missed what could have been extremely profitable, as our hero Jim Kelly covered again, and on the other side of the spectrum, Flukie didn’t. Two weeks ago we were 5-2, but last our 4-star special for the first time. This week’s currency is “pitched tents,” listen up all you Florida fans. Here’s our picks.

Thursday

Orlando plus 14 over Jacksonville: As Flukie showed, everyone was one once in a while. No reason why Orlando can’t cover these points. 100 pitched tents on Orlando.

Saturday

L.A. minus 1 over Arizona: Frank Kush beat up the Wranglers cheerleaders after their last loss, a la Rawbone. How can a team win at home without cheerleaders? 100 pitched tents on L.A.

Sunday

Houston minus 5 over Portland: Jim Kelly and Houston are on a roll, looking to be the first undefeated pro team since the 1972 Dolphins. 100 pitched tents on Houston.

Birmingham plus 3 over Baltimore: Just because the Stars beat up on hapless Flukie, we don’t anticipate them doing the same to the great Cliff Strand. 100 pitched tents on Birmingham.

Memphis minus 3 over Oakland: The Showboats have the premier “D” in the league and Walter Lewis is showing signs of brilliance. 100 pitched tents on Memphis.

Tampa Bay plus 2 over N.J. (): Flukie is throwing 60% on the year and has not thrown for 200 yards in a game yet. The kid is simply incept and is showing his true colors in pro ball. 400 pitched tents on the Bandits. Thank God he is not in the NFL because he would be punished.

Monday

Denver minus 6 over San Antonio: The Gold’s run and shoot offense has become tough to stop, and the Gunslingers have stopped nobody. 100 pitched tents on Denver.

Net for week: minus 50,.carousel minus 50

Lax Gearing Up

By Chip Gaysunas

Sports Staff

Fresh from a week long stint in sunny Florida, and with two months of indoor practice under their belts, the Men’s Lacrosse Team is looking anxiously toward their season opener at Westfield State this Saturday.

Second year coach Pete Ginegar sees a positive attitude in this year’s squad and is optimistic that this attitude will translate into a solid team performance as the season progresses. Coach Ginegar will get help from tri-captains Mark McCall, Alan Royal (sidelined for the season with a knee injury), and Kurt Smith.

The team’s strength will be tested early. In the next couple weeks as they’ll be going against three of the top ten teams in New England. A tenacious defense and the scoring punch of Junior transfer Peter Alman should help keep the Beavers competitive as they face their opponents.

The team promises to provide some exciting action this season and they’ll be looking for you support from the sidelines. Best of Luck Lax!
