Campus renovations near completion

Work on the Horn Learning Resources Center, now under construction in the educational center is making "exceptional progress," according to Grounds Chief Edward Sullivan. The 58,000 square foot facility is expected to be completed on schedule in the late spring, and should be ready for occupancy by the fall of 1980. The Office of Planning now houses 14 students. A new apartment complex for graduate and undergraduate students is expected to be completed by Christmas, and another apartment building is currently under con- struction. The classrooms in Park Building are currently receiving a long awaited renovation, and new doors and locks were installed throughout the building. The College purchased #10 Babson Park Avenue, a small group of buildings adjacent to Mather Dormitory Building. A committee is presently evaluating possible uses for them, with an emphasis on providing additional study facilities, a possible theater, and in some cases, a possible theater and rec center. A number of rooms in the building are scheduled to be completed in September, and an additional room is scheduled to be completed in October. Babson Circle K presents check on MD telethon

Peter McNally and Craig Gibson of Babson's Circle K Club appeared on television over the Labor Day Weekend to present a check to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The check, for $2492.00, was raised by the Circle K Club during the annual Muscular Dystrophy Dance Marathon, which took place over a period of last year. McNally, chairman of the event, presented the check to WCBS television personality Rich Trainer during the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon, and explained how the money was raised and what the club's role is in the service club's major project last semester.

Circle K was also the recipient of the Single Service Award for the Dance-A-Thon at the New England District Convention, as the outstanding service project of the year. The convention, held in April, elected club members Cathy Crisman and Kathy McGahey as District Governor and Secretary Treasurer, respectively.

McNally also announced that Circle K International had chosen "Tooting, Life's a Dream" as the theme for the 1979-80 period. The group hopes to be used by all clubs to base their activities upon, in conjunction with the theme. Circle K celebrated its International Year of the Child. Local club Roy Anderson also noted that Circle K is sponsoring an airport pickup station and a further hunt in conjunction with the freshman orientation.

Communique from the State University of New York, College of Environmental Science and Forestry, and the State University of New York, College of Environmental Science and Forestry.

The Communique Live-in Program, which provides housing for commuter freshmen and transfers in the spring semester, begins on Sept. 5 at 10:00 a.m. and continues until the Communique is published. The Communique is the Chairperson of the Live-in Program this year, with the Commuter Students Association as a committee.

On Wednesday evening, from 7:00 to 7:45, the commuter students will be given an orientation to residential community living. This is sponsored by the Commuter Students Association and will be held in Trin 201-2. In addition, something new has been added this year. The Communique participants' meal tickets will provide meals for the students through Friday dinner. This will facilitate involvement of the commuters in all the activities planned for Friday. In the past, commuters were only provided food until Friday lunch. The participants will be divided into three rooms for the students to put their luggage for the day after they check in at 9:00 a.m. The rooms will be kept locked, and only the house counselors will be allowed to retrieve their luggage. It is hoped that this will persuade the commuters to stay all day on Friday.

On Friday evening, a new commuter orientation is planned to educate the commuter students. From 4:00 until 4:45, there will be a rap-up session which will be used for questions and answers as well as a type of pep rally to help the commuters feel as much a part of the campus as the residents. The program will include a guest speaker, who will provide the meeting with the commuters' enthusiasm and support. The program will be the beginning of the new commuter week end and their first year of college.

New counselors welcomed by admissions staff

Ms. Beth Heidenreich is now the Admission Counselor. Originally from Seattle, she now lives in Newton. She was a resident assistant at Wellesley College, a university where she graduated in May with a degree in secondary education. The thing she finds most appealing about Babson is its small, friendly atmosphere.

The position of Assistant Admissions Counselor is open to the best graduate candidate for the position. Babson is a small, yet highly selective, college that requires a lot of commitment from its students.

A new counselor has been added to the office this year. Babson has also a new Director of Minority Affairs. She is the son of a Babson alumnus and has a degree in economics from Harvard College. She is working hard to ensure that Babson remains a place where all students feel welcome and at home.

The new dean of Continuing Education is James D. Browne. His background includes a degree in engineering from MIT, and a degree in business administration from Harvard University. He has also served as the director of the Division of Continuing Education at Columbia University.

Dr. Tag Gallagher has been named Assistant Professor of Film and Video. Dr. Gallagher most recently taught Introduction to Film, History of American Film, and Advanced Analysis at Bates College.

In 1978, Dr. Gallagher completed his dissertation on John Ford and received his PhD at Columbia University. While at Columbia, he also taught Documentary Film.

New counselors welcomed by admissions staff

The Admission Staff has had to replace many of its admissions counselors, who have left for various reasons. There are presently four new members of the admission's staff.

Editorial

Right kind of involvement

The years one spends in college can be very rewarding. As cliché as it may sound, this experience is what you make of it. Many people are inclined to believe it is the institution producing rather than themselves, which is responsible for a good or bad college experience. This, however, is not the case.

One way which a student can ensure himself or herself a rewarding college career is to get involved in campus activities. Not only does the involvement an enriching experience for the individual, but if a sizable portion of the student body gets involved in campus concerns, it can enhance the college image. Even if it is too often, only a small group of students in each class participates in various campus activities. Consequently, this group's opinion does not reflect the entire Babson while the remainder of the class members pass through without experiencing this. Thus, the events, the diversity of campus leaders and programs are limited.

There is really no excuse for remaining indifferent to campus activities except sheer laziness. There are so many activities, clubs, and associations that an individual would be hard put to say there is nothing to interest him or her. There are fraternities and sororities, associations which deal with areas of study, clubs made up of people who share a hobby, student produced media, theatre guild, and community service organizations. It is true that even though Babson already offers this variety of groups and opportunities, students also have the option of creating new clubs and associations.

It is important to remember, however, that it is quality of participation and not quantity which is significant. Participation in as many clubs as possible is not the best way of reaping the benefits of college life. Spreading oneself too thin does not help anybody. Each student should examine the ones that interest him or her and be interested. After giving one a try, the student should choose those they feel they will enjoy. By making this choice and being involved in one's activities, an individual is then able to make a significant contribution to his or her own development as well as to the school's.

Silver lining

As any college student for prospective students knows, the legal drinking age in Massachusetts was raised to 21 in 1980. While it has been in effect for several months now, the effect on the Babson campus is yet to be determined; some speculation went into effect so late in the semester.

While it did not actually touch the lives of Babson students, for the sake of THE major issue around the college last year, Student Government debated it at length. Students across the state raised their voices in protest; there was much debate on what could be done to keep Babson from becoming a "saimcau campus", a situation where no one is here on weekends but the dorm halls are wide open.

What no one seemed to notice aside from the hullabaloo of which there was a considerable amount in that it may be more dangerous to the college and students to have an increase in the drinking age was that this new law has a silver lining, and it is rather surprising that no one has brought out some good points of the situation (except, of course, for Governor King).

For example, it adds some excitement to the otherwise humdrum life of an 18 year old. Before, beer and liquor were easy to get, no sweat. Just walk in, show them your ID, and you were in. Now it is a challenge. There are identification cards to be made up, hidden to be discovered, places to be found. This new law brings back to those bygone high school days of fun and excitement that are not as far away as one might think. Not only does it bring excitement, but it also brings new friends, another way in which it has blossomed.

Also, look it at from the college's point of view. As we all well know by now, running an institution of Babson's caliber takes a lot of money and adds to campus life expenses is the well embraced with open arms. Now, suddenly, a college joins a country club, which is usually no extra security officers, clean up and demand that the student body abide by the rules.

Quite possibly the law also may result in fewer hangovers, beer-beliers, and bloodshot eyes in these days of increased health awareness, the benefits of a healthier and more fit student body are obvious.

Of course, none of this is any consolation to anyone, the horrible deed has been done. But lets it be known that the Babson administration cares about us and has our best interests at heart.

Post's Corner

Dealing with the diversity of college life

Entering college means many things to the new college student; it will encompass a great deal more than the freshman can imagine. Orientation is only one aspect of the orientation that many freshmen go through. Something that many of the freshmen will be able to conquer, while some of them will submit to defeat is the diversity of the new college life with a positive attitude and hope for the future.

One unique aspect of college life is the diversity which each person will be faced with. There are 326 international students who have chosen Babson as their college, and 336 different backgrounds forming the basis for life at Babson. There are very few students who are the only people in their lives which the opportunity will exist to take advantage of this diversity. Some of the freshmen will find that the many different kinds of people will open new doors, while others will find that they can not blend into this diversity.

Another aspect of college life that the freshmen will encounter is a workload greater than that found in high school. A great deal more knowledge and resources are available for those who wish to take advantage of them. Some of the freshmen will choose to take full advantage of all Babson College has to offer them, while others will find that their work is overpowering and will limit to the challenge.

The freedom that the freshmen will be exposed to in college will be handled differently by the different types of people. The new students will be making the transition from a situation where they have been ruled by force ever present in their lives to an environment where a great deal of permissiveness is allowed. No longer will there be someone responsible for their actions. Instead, it will be forced to take the responsibility for their actions upon themselves.

While there will be a great many who take the new found freedom in their stride, some will go hog-wild and overboard and find themselves free from anymore college.

The freshmen will also quickly discover that there are people on campus with whom they will remain on very friendly terms but not maintaining the relationship from their first day at college. Perhaps, a group of friends will find themselves to be inseparable. On the other hand, they will discover that there are people who they do not particularly like. Yet, one of the learning processes of college is learning to live with those whom you like, as well as those whom you may rub the wrong way. Some of the freshmen will find that the make more friends than others, some will emerge as the leaders, and some will become the outcasts from the entire group.

It is inevitable that almost every freshman will encounter numbers, dates, and insignia of size and magnitude. Although most of these problems will be small and easy to solve, some will seem insurmountable. It is the responsibility of the student to seek help with these problems, and solutions do exist. There is no reason why anyone should be left to try to figure things out by themselves, they can be guided by some predication. A minority of freshmen will let themselves be swallowed by their particular problems while most will achieve success and learn from experience.

On every college campus, there are many different and interesting ways for students to become involved in a variety of activities. From athletics, to running your own business, to joining any organization; something exists for everyone. If nothing interests a particular group, it is their responsibility to do something about it to become outing and start their own club or activity. There is a great deal of opportunity for each and every student. Desmert this fact, there will be a select few who choose not to become involved in any activity. These are the people who will find themselves having little in common with others. Other freshmen will become over-involved as a danger however, in not having enough time for friends or studies. By and large, students will find a happy medium and find their limits for the extra-curricular life.

It is not the intention of this columnist to depress the entering class of 1982, nor is it my purpose to frighten anyone. Rather, the purpose of this column is to make the freshmen aware of some of the dangers they will be facing in the upcoming year. It is my goal to give each student a warning so that they are aware of the pitfalls and failures which have plagued countless others. Best wishes to all you.

President's welcoming address activities which give you personal satisfaction.

There is an orientation program, specifically designed for freshmen. However, even after the best orientation programs, questions will arise. Many students have questions that are more or less routine, yet too complex personal problems. Babson has the staff to handle to look for help. The tradition at Babson is for all freshmen to help the new another students, teachers, staff and administrators.

Finally, Babson will be for each of you whatever the interaction between it and your own particular circumstances produces. It is up to me to urge you to make sure that you strive not only to work and striving but also to relax, education, and relaxation. You experience will be better thereby.

I hope to be become acquainted with all of you some time over your years here. Because of my schedule, it is frequently easier for me to talk with you individually for a short time either on campus or as I am lunching in Trim to than to make individual appointments. Please do not hesitate to come up and say hello. I will see you on campus or at Trim.

I am very pleased that you are here. On behalf of the entire Babson community, I wish you a happy and productive experience at the College.

Orientation Program and schedule

The advisor program was established to achieve many goals. It is designed to introduce new students to self-exploration, facilitating some self-understanding and promoting constructive academic experience. The advisors are the core of the Orientation program. It is also stressed that the freshmen/advisor relationship will be the basis for a long standing friendship.

Each advisor has ten to twelve freshman/transfer in their residence group and Celko tried to include at least two people in each group. The group meets in the same residence hall, putting roommates in different groups. The need to be on the session schedule is for any students to communicate their administrative problems to the orientation group. The advisor's first contact with the freshmen will be on Wednesday morning when they check in at the residence hall. The advisor will be meeting again to discuss common problems they may have encountered on courses for Friday. Almost all the activities during the Orientation Program involve the advisors and their groups. This is to facilitate the familiarization with each freshmen with other freshmen and to prepare them for their upcoming year.

Babson College women's tennis team looks ahead toward upcoming season

The women's tennis team ended the season with an 11-2 record, displaying one of their best years ever. This was somewhat of a surprise for the team was not expected to have performed as well as it did with its expanded schedule. They look forward to another fine year, but will depend on the caliber of the incoming freshmen.

There will be several voids that will be difficult to fill in this year's squad. The loss of Sally Shea and Mary Whelan (both seniors last year) will be felt.
The team will also be missing the transferred Paula Muziale, who jockeyed with Sally Shea for the number two and three spots.

The team will be looking to Captain Cathy Scholtz, who held the number one spot last year to have another excellent season. The performances of returning veterans Trisha Bernard, Amy Faircloth, Kristine Polish, Ellen Berry and Karen Myjak will be a key to the success of this year's team.

The squad is slated to enter into two major tournaments this year, giving them a chance to prove themselves against high-caliber competition. The team will try to prepare itself for its tough schedule with a vigorous pre-season training schedule to help build-up stamina. All prospective players are to meet on Sept. 5. Contact the athletic office to find out the time and place.

SPORTS TALK

Welcome back

Welcome back to Camp Babo...Hope everyone's summer was as relaxing as mine. Well anyway, fall is upon us and with it comes the Babe soccer season. Looking ahead, the team is optimistic, as they have been working very hard throughout the pre-season...Although they lost a few important starters from last year, Babson soccer has a reputation for making up for a lack of individual stand-outs with superb team work...Needless to say Babo will once again be well worth watching throughout the season.

Slump time

What can you say about the Sox? The second half slump again. It seems as if their lack of pitching caught up to them...The Eck may be a 20 game winner, but who else do they have...So they have other guys that will win a few for you, but what about their ERA's...No doubt Fenway is a hitter's park, but the Sox have to get more pitcher's that can win games without Boston's top hitting...Yes, the key to Boston's slump is not Don Zimmer or anyone else, it is, what it has been in the past - PITCHING.

Miller is back

The big question in the golf world is "How about that Johnny Miller?"...Just when everyone thought he was gone for good, he battles the year's hottest golfer, Tom Watson, for the Hall of Fame title...Let's hope he keeps away from chopping wood and motorbikes over the winter...Speaking of Watson, he could win over a half million dollars this season - not too bad for a weekend job!

What 'Steel Curtain'

I didn't recognize the famed "Steel Curtain", but it didn't matter. The reserves were good enough to beat the Pats. In an exciting overtime thriller...Boy, did Miami kick out vs the Bills but then again did you expect the Bills to win...If the Steelers can get out of the hospital in time for next week's game vs the Houston Texans, Houston should get right back in the hospital considering the way they lost.
FOOTBALL PICKS

Los Angeles 10 . . . At Denver 17
L.A. had the jitters offensively in their opening day game. Against the polished Orange Crush defense they'll have their problems.

New York Jets 10 . . . At New England 21
The Patriots will be looking to prove that they are a true contender after falling in Pittsburgh in the season opener.

Cincinnati 21 . . . At Buffalo 19
Both teams are still trying to establish themselves. The Bengals get the edge with Anderson and Griffin in the backfield.

Houston 21 . . . At Pittsburgh 27
The offensive attack of Campbell, Pastornik, Johnson, and Fritsch should run up some points against the Super Bowl Champs. However, the awesome Steelers will prevail.

Minnesota 13 . . . At Chicago 20
Kramer may have had an impressive day in his first Vikings start but the Bears defensive attack should begin to gel led by Walter Payton.

New Orleans 17 . . . At Green Bay 6
New Orleans lost a tough overtime game last week and will be seeking revenge. The Pack's impotent offense will get sacked.

St Louis 30 . . . At New York Giants 10
If Cardinals' rookie running back, Anderson, can punch out 193 yards against the Cowboys he should have a field day with the Giants.

Washington 28 . . . At Detroit 14
After losing a heart breaker to the Oilers, the Redskins should be out for blood. Skin's will take over where the Bucs' left off.

Tampa Bay 10 . . . At Baltimore 24
Baltimore can't afford to let this one go after the loss to K.C. Their division is too tough to let this one slip by.

Cleveland 14 . . . At Kansas City 10
Tough game to pick. The Fruttis brothers give the Browns the edge.

Dallas 27 . . . At San Francisco 17
At improved 49er team shouldn't really give Dallas too many problems. Cowboys sheer strength and depth gives them the upper hand.

Oakland 14 . . . At San Diego 17
This should be a great match-up. The Fouts-Stabler rivalry should be the key. Look for the Chargers to pull off a mild upset.

Seattle 7 . . . At Miami 10
The Seahawks are still having their problems, but could surprise Miami. Expect Griese to have a good day.

Atlanta 10 . . . At Philadelphia 28
The Skowfooks are still having their problems, but could surprise Miami. Expect Griese to have a good day.
The Babson College sports scene:
news from around campus

All candidates for the men's cross country team should report to the gym at 3:00 on Monday, Sept. 10, ready to run. The first meet of the season will be Sept. 15, at the Northeastern University Invitational.

All candidates for the Varsity baseball team should meet in the small gym at 2:30 on Monday, Sept. 10. Practice will follow the meeting. The baseball season opens up on Sept. 16, with a double-header at St. Anselm's College.

A meeting for all men interested in playing Varsity or Junior Varsity hockey are to meet at 2:30 on Tuesday, Sept. 11 in the small gym.

Unfortunately for those who thought the new gym facilities would be ready for the fall semester, there have been more delays. The present problem stems from the humidity we've experienced this summer. The new multi-purpose gymnasium is going to be equipped with a special rubberized floor. The contractor says that having to tear up the floor and replace it will delay the opening.

Anyone interested in joining the Men's tennis team should report to Babson Hall, Room 203 on Sept. 17 at 4:00.
