Committee announces new mixer regulations
by CHRISTOPHER SPRAUGE

A list of general regulations for Babbson's mixer will be posted on September 17. The committee responsible for these rules consists of Debra Antilion, Associate Dean for Student Activities; Estelle McIlveen, Business Manager, Student Affairs; and the tri-chairmen of the Social Committee.

The rules include:
1. Responsibility for any resulting damage rests with the sponsoring organization.
2. Events are not to be scheduled on consecutive nights without authorization from the Office of Student Affairs.
3. All doors must be locked no later than 1:00 a.m. Music and beverage services must cease at 12:30 a.m.
4. Babson security must be hired for each event at the cost of $100.
5. The sponsoring organization must supply a minimum of four deputies who are responsible for general supervision.
6. The balconies are to be locked.

Honor fraternities set new elections for reps
by BOB BLOCK

Craig Thaxton, President of Blue Key, announced at the Student Government meeting Tuesday night that there were no more nominations for Treasurer, Henry Dowd, and David Constantine; the candidates for these offices, will speak to Student government next Tuesday, to be followed by the election.

Tom Raducha, one of the chairman of the Social Committee, explained to the representatives the problem that arose Friday night concerning the scheduled concert by The Crystals. "Instead of coming on Friday night, the Crystals showed up on Saturday night," explained Raducha. "The Social Committee has billed the booking agency for the $757 that was paid to the Crystals. We are also trying to recover the money paid out for the expenses of the concert," he added.

The next scheduled event will be October 18. Preliminary plans are for a benefit talent show and mixer, but at the moment plans are up in the air," stated Raducha.

Seniors plan organization to emphasize class unity
by LIZ MCCARTHY

A group of seniors are trying to organize groups who had licenses in order to make their last year at Babson more meaningful, according to Bob Neidelman. "Stuart Estra, and Aaron Weintraub, initiators of the action.

There's a lack of identity among class members, and there's a lack of emotional feeling ties to the school at graduation.

The group plans to motivate the class to organize activities for the week between final exams and commencement. "We want to have something special," said Neidelman, "the seniors don't have to stay here for that final week, but we want to give them a reason to stay.

Besides organizing class activities, Neidelman expressed the hope that they would revive the tradition of a senior gift to the school. "We want to get the presentation of a class gift started again," he said. "It would be something the seniors could do totally through our own efforts.

They also emphasized the importance of complete support by the student body, "It's everyone's responsibility to be involved in a group effort," said Estra.

Estra added, "We want to be sure to reach off campus students as well, because a good majority of the seniors live off campus.

The objective of the Babson College Graduate Student Association is to form a sense of identity among the graduate students," says David Atkinson, GSA President. The GSA sponsors three main social events functions for the 1400 grad students at Babson. The fall cocktail party, cheese and wine reception in the spring, and the summer cookout at the conclusion of second semester finals.

Atkinson believes the association should provide a variety of options, both social and academic, for grad students. "Our first goal is to change the image of the GSA from that of a strictly social group to an organization interested in helping the grad student academically, socially, and by acting as a liaison with the administration."

Other projects planned by the GSA for the second semester include tutoring for grad students, and a central used book file containing the names of people interested in selling their old text books. Atkinson said that the association would eventually like to include undergraduates in these two programs.

According to Atkinson, there are numerous problems facing the grad students at Babson. "GSA is working with the administration to improve the graduate student's quality of education, and discussing means of alleviating the critical housing situation involving graduate students."

They have scheduled a meeting in the Fo'c'sle, tonight at 7:30. "This meeting is kind of a test of what we want to happen in the future," said Neidelman. "In order to initiate anything, we're going to have to prove we are a body.

With enough support, the organizers hope to be able to turn the group into a formal activity. "We've not a standing committee, so we can't get money from Student Government, but if enough seniors show interest, we can charter the organization and receive funds from the government."

Weintraub said that the alumni office is in favor of such a class organization. "If it works out, they'll support it financially and otherwise. It would help them in some of the activities such as future Homecomings."

Two new licenses were granted this year by the Licensing Committee of the Student Government, in addition to the licenses renewed from last year, according to Bill Cross, Chairman of the Licensing Committee and Vice-President of the Student Government.

The committee issued licenses to a student selling Indian tapestries, and a group of students offering a liquor delivery service, grocer rentals, and a newspaper service.

At the beginning of this semester, Cross sent letters to the fourteen people holding licenses this year. Six applied for renewal.

There are currently eight business licenses to operate on campus. They include: tire sales, Jeff Heideman and John Dillard; Plants and Flowers, Skip Copeland; the Dry Dock, William Knight; Carpeting and Rugs, Geoffrey Allison; Babson Services, Jim Eads, Morris Lawse, and Hunter Townsend; Linen Service, William Hintermister; Indian Tapest- dry sales, Pierre Clemente; and Dry Cleaning, Stephen Evans.

According to the By-Laws of the Student Government, all students operating an enterprise on campus must obtain an operating license.

According to Cross, to obtain a license, an interested student must file an application with the Business Office. The applications are available at the Student Activities Office.

Next, he must discuss his intention with Elliot, McIlveen, the Business Manager of the College, and finally make a presentation to the Student Licensing Committee, comprised of the chairman and four students-at-large.

Neidelman commented that the lack of a feeling of unity hurts the alumni office as well as the class as a whole. "It weakens the sense of alumni unity that the school depends on so much."

They also hope to set a trend for other classes to follow. "We want to establish a precedent by organizing the senior class," said Neidelman. "If underclassmen can see that we're organizing our classes now, and by the time they graduate they can be a solid body."

He emphasized that senior class projects would also be open to underclassmen. "Anyone can work on the activities," he said.

THE BICENTENNIAL COMMISSION is Babson's opportunity for celebrating 175 years. They hope to "Prepare for a Better Tomorrow." Read about their plans on page three.
Early grads deserve something better

In the past, graduating from Babson in December has been a drain experience. No commencement ceremony, no baccalaureate parties before entering the real world. Even the diploma is sent home in the mail.

But if enough interest can be developed among those graduating early, there may be a regular commencement exercise this December.

In previous years, December graduates received an invitation to return to school in May and take part in the commencement ceremony then.

But too often students have not been able to return because of their jobs or geographical location. And there’s no reason why they should have to miss out on what most people consider a memorable experience.

Everything seems to be pointing favorably toward having a commencement ceremony. The registrars office reports that there will be over 100 students graduating this December.

And the Administration says that they will be open and receptive to the idea of a commencement, if there is sufficient interest among those graduating early, and if those interested can get organized.

So all that’s needed now is interest from those students. A questionnaire was distributed recently to those graduating early to find out interest. A large majority of those returned were in favor of a commencement program.

And as of now, the MBA’s that will get their degrees this semester have not been polled. Certainly they should be consulted before the plans go any further.

In the end, it will be the students who decide whether there will be a commencement program in December or not. Graduating from college may not be the biggest thrill of a lifetime, but if it only happens once, it should be a happy memory.

Magazine seeks outstanding college women

Glamour Magazine has invited Babson College to participate in their Top Ten College Women Contest. The national publication is looking for ten young women who are outstanding in their fields, and universities throughout the country who are “outstanding on the basis of their solid record of achievement in academic studies and/or extracurricular activities on campus or in the community,” explained Peggy Schacht, Glamour College and Career Editor. The ten national winners are picked by Glamour photographers and appear in the August College Issue. In addition to national recognition in the magazine itself and their colleges, the winners receive a trip to New York in April, May or June during which they visit the magazine’s editorial offices, meet staff members and enjoy entertain- ment arranged by Glamour. While in New York, they will receive a cash prize of $500.

Ms. Schmidt said that this contest has evolved over the past twenty years along with the changing interests and concerns of college women. “Ten years ago, it was a contest to select the best-dressed on campus, but since 1965 the emphasis has been on what college women have accomplished and said,” she advises Babson women to contact Babson Public Relations Director Dick Ros- nink for further contest information and applications.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

The purpose of this letter is to convey to the Babson College Student Body a number of concerns that an important upcoming event. The event to which I refer is the election of a student to fill the position of Student Government Treasurer.

Reiterating facts previously cited in this column, the office of Treasurer is officially unfulfilled as a result of the resignation of Al Holtz, who was duly elected last year. In accordance with Article III, Section 3, of the Student Government Constitution, an election is scheduled for October 7 to be conducted by and for the Student Government. Nominations will be accepted from Government Members up to the meeting of September 30. Concerned individuals should express their interest to any member in order to be nominated.

The election of October 7 will be exceptional in the sense that primary and final elections will be held with no campaigning period between them. Also, the graduating seniors of last year are not eligible for the position of Treasurer, which was not one of the seats up for election.

Having cited the facts and exceptions, I would like to strongly and sincerely endorse a very dedicated, experienced and capable candidate for the position. The student I endorse is Henry Dowd, an outstanding student in the Executive Board, and the qualifications neces- sary to perform superbly as the Student Government Treasurer. The position is currently held by Henry Dowd, the acting Treasurer, who was carefully appointed to fill this temporarily vacant position.

In closing, I strongly urge that Student Government Members care- fully consider the exceptional, tem- porary performance of Henry Dowd and objectively conclude that his election to the office of Treasurer is the only way to assure such an organized and accurate performance in the future.

Respectfully,

Mark Santos

Bicentennial group hopes for "successful tomorrow" by CHUCK OLIVERI

Most students have surely been told how so many people worked over the summer to prepare the campus for the bicentennial. There has been one group of people, however, about which very little has been heard thus far.

The Group is the Bahan College Student Bicentennial Committee (BCSB). The students are the very students and administrators who have been working together since July to make a bicentennial day.

According to Gordon White, the group's chairman, the basic idea was a concept of the students, Adron Amidor, Associate Dean for Student Activities, who said: "This idea was written up the proposal. At the beginning of August, we pulled everyone together and got things really rolling."

Theatrical Group presents murder mystery by JIM TABNER

The Baham Bicentennial Theater Group will present "Feathers: A Production" on November 20, 21, and 22, according to the "schedule," of the Theater Guild. The time of the production will be scheduled at a later date.

The play: a murder mystery by Agatha Christie, takes place on a vacation barbecue.

"This is the first time a Bicentennial audience will be exposed to a murder mystery," said Clay. "It should be a good introduction to the campus."

The cast, in order of appearance, stars Pat dutty as Rogers, Shirley Chisholm as Rogers, Mark Zeman as Narracott, Suzan Metcalf as Vera, Rick Pickett as Lombard, Don Schwartz as Marston, Dave Edgar as Bove, Dave Davider as General McKenzie, Karen Amen as Emily, Rich Toussaint as Waggrow, and Carol Deans as Dr. Armstrong.

Clay added that the production still lacked crew members for makeup, prop, and stage work. Anyone interested can contact him at 235-6223, or EXT. 485.

The First Annual Baham Bicentennial Speaking Contest will take place this fall, according to Professor Weeza, and Ian Salitch, members of the fresh man seminar class sponsoring the event.

"Applicants will be judged on the basis of style, originality, sincerity, and outrageousness," said Weeza. "The event is open to individuals, dorms, or fraternities, and "all others.""

Rules for the contest state that all contestants will be broken before a panel of judges, and before video tape cameras, according to Salitch.

Prizes for the contest include: First prize, a case of beer; second prize, coffee mug and T-shirt; and third prize, one case of apples.

Anyone interested in participating in the contest should submit applica tions naming status and record to be broken by Ian Salitch, Campus Mail Box 5.

From newspapers to TV... to the Statehouse to Babson

by CHUCK OLIVIERI

During the eight years he's been in the Boston area, Rick Pozniak has done more than most people dream of doing in a lifetime.

He has written for the Associated Press, the New York Herald Tribune, the Boston Globe, the old Boston Herald Traveler, the Boston Phoenix, the Real Paper, and Boston Magazine.

His assignments have kept him "in constant association" with kings, presidents, diplomats, actors, and actresses. Jackie Kennedy Onassis, Dick Cavett, Fanne Fox, and Muhammad Ali are among the people he's worked with.

Pozniak was also a part of the presidential press corps covering President Ford and Vice President Rockefeller. He's adventures even include traveling in the Concorde, the French supersonic aircraft.

"That's only the fashionable aspect of journalism though," Pozniak commented, "there is another aspect." He then spoke of plane crashes and racial riots which he has covered.

Others may even consider this other side of journalism exciting. For Pozniak stated that once, he was given twenty-four hour police protection for two days. "Threats were made against my life," he explained.

"Something I wrote wasn't appreciated, but it's still here." He also mentioned that, in addition to the Boston Police Department, the incident involved both the FBI and the U.S. Postal Service.

From print journalism, Pozniak went to electronic journalism. As a radio and TV reporter, he received several awards.

So, what does Mr. Pozniak, with such an impressive background, have to do with our college? Well, it just so happens that he has recently become Babson's Director of Public Relations.

Previously, he also has much experience in the field of public relations. He served as a press aide to Boston Mayor Kevin White, as Public Information Director at Emerson College, and as vice president of J.D. Associates (a PR agency). Prior to joining the staff at Babson, Pozniak was the PR director for the Massachusetts Home Builders Industry. His tasks there included the press-related aspects of a lobbyist at the Statehouse.

According to Pozniak, the purpose of the PR office is "to help disseminate news and information on Babson to various publics; these publics being defined as media, alumni, parents and various foundations."

"It is responsible for internal and external communication," he continued. "We will be trying to make communication more effective on campus. If one student group is doing something, I would like to let as many people as possible on campus know."

"According to the Student Government President," stated Pozniak, "there has been a lack of effective communications on this campus." He said that he would "make recommendations and implement procedures more effective than what's in use now."

Pozniak has accomplished much in the five short weeks that he's been here. One project concerned the School of Continuing Education's "Managerial Skills for Women" program.

"I've arranged for two coordinators of the program to appear on approximately twenty radio talk shows and on WBZ-TV to explain what Babson is doing to help women in management and explain points of the program," he said. "The program on WBZ-H radio was fed over the entire Public Broadcasting network. That's approximately one hundred stations; it's good publicity for Babson."

Babson professor Frank Genovesi's plan received much national publicity due to the efforts of the new PR director. (His plan presents a theory to prevent cities from going bankrupt.)

Pozniak explained, "I felt it was timely, topical, and unique so I phoned a reporter for UPI and he came and interview Genovesi. Thus far, my office has received approximately twenty news clippings prominently mentioning Babson along with Genovesi."

He cited coverage by the Globe, the Washington Post, the Chicago Daily News, the New York Times, Lowell Thomas, Harry Reasoner, Walter Cronkite, and others as "wide visibility for the college."

His latest accomplishment was the article in last Friday's Herald American which described the New England Law Enforcement Institute on campus.

At the suggestion of John Hornaday, chairman of the management division, Pozniak has arranged for two national professional publications to run stories and pictures of Babson's management laboratories.

Concerning the possibility of Babson's hiring an outside PR firm, Pozniak is optimistic. "Before I came here," he said, "it was my understanding that President Sorenson had come up with the idea and placed it high on his priority list." He continued, "most colleges this size have two people in their PR office; Babson's is essentially a one-man operation. If we use the firm, I'll have a helping hand in getting us national visibility that one man could not get."

"I'm very pleased Sorenson has considered an outside PR council, and I look forward to working hand in hand with whomever we choose," Pozniak added. "In my past PR experience, I've come across many leaders who had no idea of what PR is about. I'm impressed that Ralph Sorenson is so cognizant about what good PR is and what it means to an institution like Babson."

Pozniak feels that what stands out about Babson is that it is run as a corporation. "Most schools don't have the expertise and are doing poorly," he noted.

"It's my fifth week here and I'm very impressed by the school. It's a very exciting place," Pozniak said. Certainly Rick Pozniak has added to this excitement.

Over 250 alumni attend rainy ’75 Homecoming
by BILL SHANNON
An estimated 250 alumni attended Homecoming last weekend despite rain and a cancelled soccer game, said Ken Ornell, director of Alumni Relations.

The day began with registration under a tent set up on lower Humphreys Plaza. When alumni registered, they received a same bag, a set of Babson glasses and a schedule of the day’s events.

Popcorn, beer, and cotton candy were served in the registration tent. After registration, everyone proceeded to Knight Arena for a hot dog and hamburger cookout. The cookout was originally scheduled for the Colman Plaza, but due to the rain was moved indoors.

The soccer game, which was to be played against the University of New Haven, was cancelled and rescheduled for November 6, at home. According to Ornell, the cancellations gave the people a chance to talk to one another instead of going to the soccer game after the cookout.

“Homecoming turned out to be an excellent time for everyone. The rain was not without its benefits, namely it provided an opportunity for people to get together and talk.”

Alumni from many different classes, including one member from the class of ’24, attended the homecoming. Most of them had comments on how the school had changed over the years. Mr. Bus Richardson ’24, said, “It looks big.” He then went on to say, “I think they have done a beautiful job with the campus, but don’t let it get too big.”

He commented that there were only two buildings on campus when he was a student. Lyon Hall and Knight Auditorium.

William Crutchshank ’49, said, “Changes have been good for the better this year.”

The women’s forms and athletic complex are nice, but the greatest change is the fact that they allow women to attend the school.

Afternoon activities were followed by a cocktail party under the tent at 5:45.

Dinner was served at Trim Dining Hall. It consisted of a buffet style Trim DEAL with a common course of either a Steamship Round or Seafood Newburg.

The evening entertainment was provided by both the musical group “Two Car Garage”, and a belly dancer.

Mr. Ornell commended those on the Alumni Board for their organization and the students from Forest Hall that helped make Homecoming successful.

Social Committee hopes for compensation
by CHRISTOPHER SPRAGUE

Babsonian staff faces shortage of yearbooks
The Babsonian ran out of 1975 yearbooks Tuesday afternoon, according to Hugh Glaser, Editor-in-Chief. “To my knowledge, this is the first time something like this happened,” he said.

Glaser cited two reasons for the shortage. “The contract for the 1975 yearbook was for 1100 books, or 100 books less than the previous year,” he said.

Also, fewer books were sent to Babson for distribution to current students this year than last year.” Approximately 800 books were sent here last year, compared to only 496 this year.

The balance of the books were sent to all people receiving degrees in May or September, whether they paid for them. See YEARBOOKS p. 6

Babson Talent supplied them with no reason for the crystals no-show.

The $1400 includes the original $575 deposit plus money for the revenues lost by the Social Committee because of the band’s absence.

Needelman expressed personal feelings about the importance of a student's senior year in college. "I want to know that I'm a member of the class of '76. I want to be proud of what I'm part of."

He also commented on the fact that this is the class graduating during the United States Bicentennial. "We should be proud of the fact that we're graduating during the 200th year of our country."

The group expects that their classmates will be interested in supporting class activities. "After all," commented Needelman, "how many times do you graduate from college?"

"One major obstacle facing the association is the 95% of the 1400 graduate students attending Babson, are commuters, many with families and full time jobs. These responsibilities limit the students time on campus," said Atkinson.

Atkinson also noted the lack of adequate space for graduate students to congregate. "The present lounge is inadequate in holding only thirty to forty people, about 2% of all graduate students. Our long range plans include the possible acquisition of Lyon Hall's basement, now occupied by faculty."

He said this area would be used for executive offices (none presently exist), a study area, complete with a computer terminal, and a recreation lounge.

Regulations
10-No alcoholic beverages may be transported in or out of the Auditorium. Said Lawee, "These regulations are going to help us more than hurt us."

Licenses
stated, "a student is out of the boundaries of Babson and into large-scale business, the competition is tough."

The committee believes, Cross commented, "that two monopoles, the Dry Dock and the Linen Service, should not have competition as these are well-established businesses."

Students should feel they are not being treated fairly by a particular business. They may file a complaint with the Student Government.

The committee has the power to fine the business up to one hundred dollars, or suspend or revoke the license of the business in question.

Steve Needelman suggested that possible plans for a student-run venture program for parents of all Babson College students be looked into. "There was a favorable vote of 28 to 9 to further investigate the possibility of such an endeavor."

Representative Lisa Baker voiced her displeasure for the lines at the Beaver Bruin on Wednesday nights by suggesting that it should be some way in which Babson students get preferential treatment in essence to the Bruin. A majority vote ruled that the over-crowd at the Beaver Bruin should look into the possibilities of carrying out the suggestion.

Social Committee
Ed Arsenault, another thrichairman, said that using Banner Talent is a out of the question since they were sending a check that included ex -anes lost due to the broken contract.

The Crystals did appear on campus Saturday evening which he lead to speculation by the Social Committee that the group may have mistaken the date in the contract.

"We are sure it happened this way but there is always a risk when using Banner Talent, I'm thankful that the people understood. The Social Committee will have to rebound with a special event," said Arsenault.

Yearbooks
The book or not," he added. This included part-line MIBS. Forty-nine people are currently on a waiting list to receive a yearbook, and according to Glazer, a contract will be signed as soon as an additional printing of books.

"The additional printing will be for between 150 and 200 copies, to arrive in about five weeks," he said.

"The money for the additional printing will come out of this year's budget, although the situation is related to next year's contract," Glazer concluded.

Women's volleyball team adds to fall sports program

by MARK PYZNIK

Babson College has added a new varsity sport to its Fall Program: Women's Volleyball. Mrs. Fran Hartwell has been appointed head coach of this intercollegiate team.

When asked about the response of the women on campus about this new sport, Mrs. Hartwell said, "I had thirty-eight girls come out for the first practice. I originally planned to carry sixteen girls, but some of the girls looking promised so now I have a roster of eighteen."

The eighteen that comprise the Varsity and Junior Varsity teams are: Sherry Armer, Kathy Karlic, Marie Arrendondo, Gwen Johnson, Marcia Serphino, Adirahne Halley, Susan Kozera, Susan Jackson, Helen Rutt, Kathy O'Brien, Faith Howay, Sandy Kaye, Dorothy Logan, Peggy O'Brien, Marlene Browning, Ernestine Montillo, Ellen Rome, and Marta Arrendado.

"The games will be played in the main gym. We have been practicing in the small gym but the ceiling is too low and the court is not long enough," Mrs. Hartwell said. "Each game we play has a time limit of eight minutes or fifteen points, and we play a best two out of three series on both the Varsity and Junior Varsity level," she continued.

With regard to preparations, Mrs. Hartwell commented, "I have them do several warm-up exercises followed by skill drills and several scrimmage games."

Looking ahead, Mrs. Hartwell said, "I am very pleased with the girls enthusiasm and hard work up to this point. Of course, with the exception of several players, we have very little experience on the team. However, I feel that this enthusiasm will make up for some of their inexperience, and we should do fairly well."

The first game is Tuesday Oct. 7th at 7:00PM at Exley Gym against Endicott College. Admission is free.

Soccer team rained out in two games

The heavy rains over the past week caused two of Babson's soccer games to be cancelled. Babson was not the only school affected as even schools with artificial turf had to cancel their matches.

The game against Assumption College was to be played in Worcester last Thursday afternoon. As of yet this game has not been rescheduled.

The other game was to be played here at Fishon Field last Saturday against the University of New Haven. This was one of only three Saturday home games as well as Homecoming weekend.

"Even so," said Coach Bob Hartwell, "there were about fifty people waiting in the rain for the game to begin."

This game has been rescheduled for Thursday, November 6. Since the Beavers were not able to play they were dropped from 9th to 17th in the New England Soccer Poll. This also forces them to play three, three game weeks.

The not which created problems for the Jumbo goalies.

The Beavers continued the pressure until the waning moments of the game, when they fell back to protect their goal.

Mr. Hartwell commented, "It was a good team effort as we showed some real strengths. We were stale and uncoordinated for the first 20 minutes of the game," he said, "but that was because of the lay off."

Bobson got the victory but they paid dearly for the win. In addition to Cormony's accident, co-captain Steve Balicki sustained an unknown leg injury, and Willie Thibodeau had to have stitches in his chin. This Saturday, the Beavers will travel to Colby College for a two o'clock.

Buffalo 27
Denver 24

The Bills are hot. O. J. looks devastating and the big win over Pittsburgh was certainly no fluke. A tough Bronco team will provide a strong battle.

Miami 24
Green Bay 17

The Dolphins are hurting physically but their pride and experience should help pull them through. Coach Starr could use QB Starr. Haded is a good leader for the Packers but he never seems to produce a winner.

Oakland 31
San Diego 7

The Bay Area Boys look ready for a big win. Their lineup look almost like one of an All-Star squad. The changes are pretty helpless.

Los Angeles 28
Baltimore 20

The Rams are not in high gear yet, but the talent is there and they should win against this young Colt team which appears to be considerably stronger.

Cincinnati 28
Houston 17

The Bengals have looked great in their first two games. QB Anderson is one of the game's finest. The Oilers are vastly improved. Rookie runner Hardenman is a good one.

New York Jets 24
New England 20

The Pats are really hurt by injuries. They show a lot of guts but I don't think their effort today will be enough to top Joe Willie.

Pittsburgh 34
Cleveland 3

Pity the Browns! This year they are playing with fire. The Steelers, after losing to Buffalo, will want to take out their frustrations on someone. Cleveland is the unfortunate victim.

San Francisco 27
Kansas City 21

This should be a fairly close game between two teams that don't figure to go a long way this year. Look for HB Jackson to have a fine day for the 49ers.

Atlanta 17
New Orleans 7

This game should be as exciting as a Saturday night in Toledo. Each team is having difficulties. I think the Falcons will come through with win No. 1 for the year.

St. Louis 27
New York Giants 14

The Giants were trounced last week and today does not bring much hope as the Cardinals are a rugged, strong team.

Minnesota 28
Chicago 10

The Purple Gang is strong again. QB Tarkenton is on the way to another great year. The Bears are on the way up the ladder—slowly.

Washington 27
Philadelphia 17

The Old Boys have killed their first two opponents. Will they continue? RB Brown appears to be making a comeback. The Eagles are not soaring yet. As of now, they have been grounded.

Dallas 24
Detroit 13

The Cowboys are off to a strong start. They are surprising many. Detroit is little more than a fair team.

Soccer players need more support

There were about 75 people at yesterday’s soccer game. Considering the performance of the soccer team and the size of the Babson Community, I feel that this is far too small.

Within the past week, they have dropped from 9th to 17th in the New England Soccer poll just because they didn’t play. Coach Martwell commented, "we’re in a position where we constantly have to prove ourselves."

The two rainouts of the past season have put even more pressure on the team. Now they have three, three game weeks. This coming week they have four games in an eight day span.

There is nothing that helps a tired player more than a rowdy crowd cheering him on. Only six home games left in the season; you don’t have many more chances to root for the Beavers.

Another thing that should make you want to go out and cheer for the team is the type of players on the squad. One day they run a clinic for high school soccer players, and the next day they go out and play a hard nosed brand of soccer.

They live right down the hall, and sit next to you in class. They don’t ask for or receive any special treatment. The soccer team is as much a part of the Babson Community as we are.

If you think that school spirit is for the birds, then I have on last point. Babson players winning soccer on a tough schedule. Only one other variety sport can claim a 500 average. You will always see a good brand of soccer on Coleman Hall.

Whatever you’re looking for on campus; a chance to show school spirit, a winning team or just a good time, you’ll find it on the soccer field.

The next home game is next Tuesday, October 7. The kickoff time against Brandeis, who bombed Babson 6-0 last year is 3:00 p.m.

Babson defeat Jumbos 2-1 for second soccer victory

by ED SIMMONS

The Babson Soccer team brought its record to 2-0 with a 2-1 victory over Tufts yesterday afternoon. Babson and Tufts were ranked 17th and 18 respectively in the most recent New England Soccer poll.

Neither team got the upper hand in the early going. Although the Beavers failed to mount an attack, Tom Kelley and Jon Anderson, who were selected as Tigers of the game, were able to keep the Jumbos at bay.

It was an up-and-down ball game until the 12:45 mark of the first half. A Tufts forward dribbled free in front and brought the ball towards the goal.

Shane Kennedy fell to his right to retrieve a bouncing shot but the ball eluded him. It took a hard bounce and went off a defender's foot, into the left hand corner of the net.

The game returned to a see-saw battle with both teams gaining scoring chances. Robert Percil, a freshman, started things off after the Jumbo goal with a header that went wide.

Fran Pantusco, another freshman, had the next shot but it sailed above the crossbar. He also set up Steve Anderson for a head shot a few minutes later. Only a diving save by the Tufts goalie prevented a score.

Tufts came back and got a few scoring opportunities of their own before Jon Anderson got another shot for the Beavers. His hard, low line drive seemed destined for the lower right hand corner, but it was deflected wide at the last second.

Jimmy Powers brought Babson even with less than seven minutes remaining in the half.

Fran Greater sent a corner kick into a maze of players in front of the Jumbo net. Powers picked up the rebound and sent a hard shot from 20 few out into the upper right hand side of the net.

There was no more scoring, but both teams played in the second half.

Charlie Cormey and Tom Kelley collided while they chased a ball in front of the Babson goal. Kelley continued, but Cormey was taken to the hospital with a concussion. He returned to the bench late in the second half.

With less than a minute left in the half, Kennedy grabbed a long Jumbo shot. He landed out of bounds, and the referee called for a corner kick.

Kennedy claimed he was shoved, and refused to give up the ball. With the few remaining seconds ticking away, a Tufts player tried to take the ball away.

The ensuing altercation continued for about three minutes. The net result was both Kennedy and the Tufts player being thrown out. Dennis Donahue replaced Kennedy in goal. Coach Bob Hertwell later commented about "how nice it is to have a goalie like Dennis Donahue standing by."

Babson came out strong in the second half and never let up. However, most of the Beavers' shots were from outside the penalty kick area.

Pantusco had an excellent scoring opportunity ten minutes into the half. His hard shot from 20 feet out bailed wide of the net.

Mark Paylor's shot came even closer. He lobbed a shot two to the goal, which started curving in the direction of the net. He hit the inside of the crossbar and bounded across the net, but out in reach of any Bebon player.

Mr. Hertwell said, "I was especially impressed with the performance of the players coming off the bench."
